What the Gray House Hid

The Mystery of a Haunted Mansion

by Wyndham Martin

You give me the same sort of comfort that Appleton does. He tells me what curdles my blood, and then explains it all away by a carpenter's estimate that missed the mark.

It was a very comfortable motor trip for the Hanbys. When Junior drove, his father thanked God that his will was made and his affairs were in order. When Hanby was at the wheel, his son struggled between a feeling of pride that his progenitor still had his nerve left, and a fear that never again would he tread the campus of New Haven.

"Corking road!" Junior commented, when Pine Plains was in sight.

"Was it a road?" his father demanded. "I'm relieved to know that. I thought it was a race track."

"Where's the Gray house?" "We passed it on the last lap." "You might have pointed it out to me," remarked young Hanby.

"Why? I thought, as we went by, that neither of us would ever have the opportunity to inhabit it." Junior laughed.

"This old bus can certainly clip off the milestones!" "Don't boast. You only scratched the one you hit."

"It beats me," his son remarked philosophically, "why cows don't know their own minds. I didn't dream that beast was going to give us a race."

"Slow down, Junior!" his sire commanded. "We've got to stand well in this community." Hilton Hanby stepped from the car, to be greeted by the local police chief and an officer from Kingston.

"This is my son, Sherlock Gaboriau Hanby," he said. "Is the inquest over?" "Yes," said the local man. "I wish you'd been here before." "Any clew to the murderer?" Junior asked.

"Not a one." Junior smiled. He knew exactly how it would be.

"But there's a mighty interesting development. This fellow Kerr wasn't Kerr at all. He had a whole string of aliases. We finger-printed him. Your caretaker, Mr. Hanby, was Red Chapin, wanted for 'most everything up to murder.'"

"That's interesting," Hanby exclaimed. "A murderer murdered!" He was not pleased to think that such a man had been in his employ although engaged by an agent.

"His references were stolen from some Spanish war veteran named Kerr. We'll find out all about it soon. Also he had Kerr's discharge papers and a medal. Want to look at him, sir?"

"Not on your life!" said Hanby who detested morbid things.

"I'd like to," Junior suggested. It was his first opportunity to see a man with a price on his head. Death had revealed with marked emphasis the unusual qualities with which Red Chapin had been endowed. What he had tried during life to hide was now plain for all the world to see—the loose mouth, the short cranium, the thrust-forward jaw. Junior shuddered a little.

"What do you suppose he wanted the job of looking after an empty house for?" "It's my belief he was hiding," said the policeman from Kingston. "I've checked up on him pretty well. He kept to himself in Kingston. He received no callers or mail. His landlady says he was suspicious of strangers. Red was always one to frequent pool rooms and places like that; but this trip he kept away from them. Why? He knew they were after him."

"Who?" Junior asked eagerly, forgetting that he was listening open-eyed to a policeman ignorant of psychology.

"The man that bumped him off. We shan't probably ever know who. We've got Red, and somebody else'll pick up his pals when their time comes."

The policeman pointed to the dead man's big, roughened hand. "That's the hand that squeezed the life out of a Salt Lake City detective. Strangled him in a telephone booth, he did, and not a soul near by heard it. That's the hand that shot half a dozen men. Look at that face, Mr. Hanby, and when you see another like it, watch out!"

"I will," Junior said quickly. He envied the professional his poise at a moment like this. So occupied was he with this intimate touch of crime that he did not notice until the car slowed down to pass Amenia that he again missed the Gray house.

"Wow!" he said, a mile or so further on, "you missed that truck by little less than an inch!" "You exaggerate," replied his father. "I wasn't half an inch. Pelham may have news."

They did not speak again for some time. Then Hanby surprised his son by asking questions concerning Leslie Barron, the youth to whom Cella gave a good deal of her time.

"Les is a peach," said Junior warmly. "If I were he, I wouldn't stand the way Cella behaves. One day she's sugar and the next vinegar." "I've seen that," Hanby returned. "That's not unusual. I did not mean that. Is he courageous? Would he be a useful man in a tight place?"

"You ought to have seen the scrap he put up against a strong-armed waiter that tried to put him out of a roadhouse last April! The waiter was an old heavyweight pugilist, and he certainly could punch. Les knew he was out-weighted and outclassed, and he had a chance to duck; but he isn't that sort of mother's boy. He was out for twenty minutes."

"That's interesting," his father commented. "I didn't think the languid Les had a fight in him; but you don't expect me to approve of a rowdy boy being thrown out of a questionable roadhouse, I hope?" "It wasn't a questionable place," Junior retorted. "You've taken mother there. Les isn't rowdy—he's just fastidious. He complained of a big fly in his coffee. That roused the waiter to fury, and he said that Les could drink it or not, but he had to pay."

MALPEQUE

The service in Princetown United on Tuesday evening July 21, was well worthy of occasion.

The induction of the Rev. M. A. MacMillan of Baddeck, C. B., to the pastoral charge of this congregation. The Rev. Dr. E. H. Ramsay of Trinity United, Charlottetown presided and after the singing of the opening hymn and the reading of Scripture by the Rev. L. P. Archibald of North Bedouque. The Rev. L. B. Campbell of Trinity United led in prayer.

In his introductory remarks Dr. Ramsay spoke of the removal of the Rev. E. Aitken—the former pastor—to the larger field of work in St. Andrew's Church Sydney, C. B. The chairman said the thoughts of many of us are with the things of the past and he referred to the Rev. George MacMillan—a former pastor—whose name is still revered in this congregation and whose sterling worth was recognized throughout the Church at large.

Reference was also made to the Rev. M. A. MacMillan, who has been called to this congregation and who after his graduation had ministered for three years in his home congregation. The impressive induction service followed and the newly elected pastor was then given the right hand of fellowship after the singing of a hymn, Dr. Ramsay introduced the Rev. L. B. Campbell who in a very appropriate manner addressed Mr. MacMillan on his relation to his people. In his opening remarks, he referred to the former minister of this church, making special reference to the Rev. N. Gillis in a manner so tender that all present were deeply moved. This address ended, Dr. Ramsay introduced the Rev. L. P. Archibald of North Bedouque, in such a way that recalled memories that will live on—memories of the Rev. Dr. W. P. Archibald whose associations with the members of this community endeared him to one and all. Mr. Archibald in an inspiring address impressed the people with their obligations to their new pastor. The singing of a hymn and the pronouncing of the benediction brought to a close the induction service and as the congregation filed out, they were introduced to the pastor and his wife, the Rev. M. A. and Mrs. MacMillan.

Miss Marion Sutherland of Ottawa is a welcome visitor in this place and is a guest of her brother Mr. Leigh Sutherland.

The Rev. J. M. and Mrs. Murchison of St. John N. B., who are summing in New Glasgow were motorists here on Thursday.

Miss Sophie Ramsay, Alberton, and Miss Lillian Donald, R. N. B. left on Thursday for Halifax, N. S. where Miss Ramsay will receive treatment in the hospital there.

Mr. Hartwell Crozier, connected with the Bible Society in New Brunswick, and Mr. Percy Crozier of Halifax arrived here on Wednesday evening to be in attendance at the funeral of their brother Mr. A. S. Crozier.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Montgomery and Mr. Stewart Montgomery of Fort Hill were motorists to Darnley on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Campbell of Long River were visitors here on Thursday.

It is pleasing to learn that Mrs. Hartwell Crozier has returned to her home and that it has not been necessary for her to receive further treatment.

The Rev. M. A. and Mrs. MacMillan of Baddeck, C. B. motored here on Monday evening. At Borden they were met by the members of the Session of Princetown United and their wives and on arrival at the Manse they were welcomed by a committee of Ladies—members of the Ladies Aid.—M

The funeral of the late Mr. A. S. Crozier, Darnley, was held at his home, at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon July 23, and was attended by a large family connection and many friends and by the Masonic brethren, who were represented not only by the members of King Edward Lodge No. 16 A. F. and A. M. out also by visiting brethren from other lodges.

The service was conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Fredk., Williamson, assisted by Rev. M. A. MacMillan of Princetown United, and the Rev. J. M. Murchison, a former pastor and friend of the deceased—scripture was read by Mr. MacMillan, prayer was offered by Mr. Murchison and a comforting message centered on the thought, "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled," was given by Mr. Williamson. The solo "Face to Face" was sung by Mr. Murchison with Mrs. Wallace MacNutt as accompanist. After this service the body was conveyed to Keir Memorial Church where a very large number had already assembled and soon the church was full to its utmost capacity. After the opening exercises the solo "Will the circle be unbroken" was rendered by Mr. George Bowness of Bedouque. The address was again given by Mr. Williamson; John 1. 45. "Philip findeth Nathanael." We have found him" were the words which formed the central thought of the address. This startling discovery of the apostle, is the one important thing for all men. Paul dated all his later experiences from his discovery on the road to Damascus. For all Christians this must be the starting point, so that like Paul they can say at the end of life "What can separate us from the love of Christ?" "Finding Him" gives something to which a man can relate all his problems all his joys and his sorrows. Of the heartiness of the deceased, his pastor spoke most highly. In his life time Mr. Crozier had not paraded his virtues. The speaker was glad to be able to assure the bereaved ones, that the one who had gone had "Found Him."

The service at the grave was in charge of the Masonic brethren, Mr. Waldon Darrach performed the duties of Worshipful Master, Mr. Edward MacKay acting Chaplain; thus with Masonic honors and the respect of the community the remains of the late Mr. A. S. Crozier were laid to rest. The pall bearers were Mr. Percy Crozier, brother of the deceased and his five sons, Messrs Harry, Lyle, George, Lee and Bruce Crozier.

Miss Edith Montgomery, B. A. High School teacher, in Vancouver B. C.—one of P. E. Island's most successful teachers in Western Canada—is spending an extended holiday with her mother Mrs. John Montgomery.

Miss Ida Murray, Summerside was a motorist to Malpeque on Friday.—M

The COMMON FLY is FAR MORE DANGEROUS

You shudder at the idea of a hungry tiger at your baby's bedside. Yet with perfect composure you view nasty, germ-laden flies buzzing around the room. The fly, through the millions of germs clinging to hairy feet causes lingering, painful, unmerciful suffering. Flies are estimated to take a toll of 40,000 lives yearly; autos only 32,500. More than sufficient reason for declaring relentless warfare against the nasty fly.
