HARDY PINE KNOTS
 Knots in pine logs are almost imperishable, decaying much less rapidly than the log itself.

EARLY MEASUREMENT
 A one-foot measurement was at lessons time actually estimated by the length of a man's foot.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
 One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

IF VALERIE STONE IS DISCONTENTED IN THE SCHOOL, WHERE SHE WAS SO HAPPY LAST YEAR, COULD SOME OF THE NEW TEACHERS?

HOW CAN YOU BLAME YOURSELF MY DEAR? ALL THE OTHER CHILDREN LIKE YOU!

I HOPE THAT'S TRUE... BUT FOR THAT VERY REASON, YOU SEE, I'VE SINGLED OUT VALERIE FOR SPECIAL ATTENTION... SHE CALLS IT SNOOPING ON HER!

AND I'M SO INDEBTED TO YOU! YOU KNOW, YOU'RE MY FIRST AND I'M NOT SORRY, POST SINCE GRADUATION. WHY DID YOU EVER HIRE ME?

I TOOK A CHANCE, YOU KNOW, YOU'RE MY FIRST AND I'M NOT SORRY, POST SINCE GRADUATION. WHY DID YOU EVER HIRE ME?

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

(By Thornton W. Burgess)

To even the smallest leak attend or it may in disaster end.
 —Paddy the Beaver.

It was long since any rain had fallen. Day after day the sky had been cloudless, or if there were any clouds they were not rain clouds and had soon sailed away over the edge of the world. The grass of the Green Meadows was no longer green. The Old Pasture and the Green Forest were so dry that leaves on the ground rustled even under the smallest feet. There was hardly enough water in the Smiling Pool to call it a pool and Laughing Brook had long since stopped laughing. There wasn't enough water coming down from the Great Mountain where Laughing Brook begins to more than wet the feet of those who stepped in it.

But there was one place deep in the Green Forest where there was water. That was the pond of Paddy the Beaver. Paddy and Mrs. Paddy had made that pond by building a dam across Laughing Brook, holding the water back. When the pond was big enough and deep enough to suit them, the water had been allowed to run around one end and over the top in places. Building that dam had been hard work and a long job. A lot of their neighbors had thought the Beavers foolish to

Contract Bridge

(By Josephine Culbertson)

A "SMALL" DETAIL

Expertness at bridge consists in large part of simply being careful with "small" details. Here is a typical illustration:

South dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

7 4 3
 A K Q 8
 A 8 4
 K Q J 7 3
 A 8 4
 K Q J 7 3

North East

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1 A 1 A 2 Pass
 2 NT 3 NT 3 NT Pass
 Pass Pass

If North had passed the three-heart bid around, South probably would have been delighted to double, and any reasonable defense would have given North-South a good profit, but, not unnaturally, North felt that he had enough to contract for game and that there was no point in giving South too great a burden of decision.

West, after some indecision, led the spade king, feeling that he had a better chance to establish his spades than his hearts. South won the trick and promptly laid down ten of diamonds. West then cashed the spade queen, and then knocked out South's second stopper in that suit.

Declarer now led the diamond deuce toward dummy, and he was severely shocked when West showed out. This, of course, meant that East had the suit stopped, and that only three diamond tricks were available to South. Declarer turned to the club suit for success, but East had that stopped also, and now South was helpless.

In view of the two-suit bidding done by West, vulnerable, declarer should have considered the possibility that West had the blank diamond ace. In any case, there was no point in selecting the diamond ten for the first lead of that suit; South should have led the diamond deuce—and his troubles would have been over before they really began! Now he would have four sure diamond tricks, and the contract would be unassailable.

HELLO, JIGGS—GAY-THING I WANTED TO TELL YOU—BUT I'VE FORGOTTEN WHAT IT WAS.

YOU ALWAYS HAD A TERRIBLE MEMORY ANYWAY.

IT PROBABLY WASN'T ANYTHING IMPORTANT.

IF YOU RECALL IT, YOU CAN TELL ME TONIGHT AT DINTY'S. I GO THERE EVERY NIGHT WHILE MAGGIE'S IN THE COUNTRY.

NOW I REMEMBER—JIGGS—I SAW YOUR WIFE COMING HOME FROM THE COUNTRY. I MOVED OUT—MESELF.
