ISLANDERS CAR STOLEN.—One of the boldest thefts in the history of Florida occurred early Sunday afternoon when the Chevrolet Coupe belonging to Dr. J. A. MacDonald, was stolen from his parking place in front of the Bank of Florida, Alabama. Having driven the car from a local garage, a fifteen or twenty minutes stop was made in order for the doctor to go up to his office, the thief evidently watching, for when Dr. MacDonald returned for his car it was nowhere to be found. Immediately the theft of the car was reported to the local police, who went right to work and with the telegraph and telephone wires to nearby towns kept busy and the excellent cooperation of the city's police force, as well as interested friends, the doctor had the car located during Sunday night, parked in a dark secluded spot with the license tag inside the car instead of in its accustomed place on back of the car.—(Dr. MacDonald is an Island boy and was born at Vernon, a made cheese at Cardigan and Lake Verde before going to College and has many friends here.)

Prior to meeting with operators, he conferred with Philip Murray, international vice-president of the Union and local Union officials.

Early Signs Of Spring

"Carter's Seeds Grow" is the title of an attractive seed catalogue just issued by Messrs Carter & Co. Ltd., whose firm name is a household word in this Province, for where Carter's seed goes, good crops result.

This catalogue is teeming with information for the farmer or gardener, is well illustrated and seeds are listed with names and prices for easy selection, and most suitable to this climate. It is the work of experienced seedsmen and should be promptly secured.

A helpful table is printed as to the quantity of seed required for a given length of drill, estimate of seeds needed for an acre, postal rate table, hints on fertilizers, food etc. This is the season to plan your garden, arrange for your lawn and farm work and Carter's catalogue will help you in many ways.

Island Man's Unique Achievement

BELMONT, MARCH 1.—"Needles and pins" applies to the latest achievement of Albert Henry, head fitter and "trouble shooter" for the Belmont Electric Light Company, who has just completed the making of an exact model of Hendrick Hudson's famous ship the "Half Moon."

In Henry's case, however, the needles are stitching needles and the pins are large "bank" pins used in contriving some of the intricate parts necessary for a ship's model. A yard stick, several of his wife's paint brushes and a large spool of heavy thread were among the domestic articles confiscated and converted into the finished product.

Perfect in every detail, the model is 26 inches long, 24 inches high and 8 inches wide, the longest "yard." The sails are tacked wide in drydock, but everything is in readiness for further adventures on the Hudson.

Henry began work on this, his first ship model, last October. Working two hours an evening, steadily, with a week's layoff for Christmas, he brought everything up to ship-shape condition last week, including the final touches opened about 7 o'clock when Percy D. Williams was rendered chair. The music was furnished by the Casino Orchestra and vocal trio by Messrs Quigley, Sterns and Dingwell, a reading by Miss Edna Gordon solo by Mr. Henry.

It is in the rigging of the ship that the knitting needle plays an important part. There are 77 "deadeyes" or pulleys in the make up of the ship, used in tightening the ropes and ladders. These were cut from a single piece and three holes drilled in each, when the rigging was completely installed these "deadeyes" served their purpose in the actual tightening of the ropes and ladder.

Every bit of the rigging, blocks and tackle, hoists, and stays can be worked, the sails can be lowered into position and furl ed again with little effort.

The rope ladders ascending the two large masts are other examples of exactness. Instead of making them from pieces of wire and using a drop of solder to save work and time Henry tied every crosspiece—500 tiny, difficult knots in all, some of them an eighth of an inch apart.

The artistick contributed the tiny, workable pulleys, while the paint brushes were pressed into service as flagstuffs.

Henry has not exactly figured the cost of the model, but declares that $5 will cover everything. The biggest item, he says, was $1.50 for special wood for the hull. The hull is made of several layers of half inch board glued together and then carved by hand.

The only tools employed in making the model were a pocket knife, a spoke shaver, some files and a drill. The only part of the model not made by him is the "artillery," consisting of two miniature cannons peering from the deck, which were made by John Holden, Westham watchmaker and Henry's brother-in-law.

The bank pins were used in making the railing, while radio bus wire was employed to make the crew's nest on the mainmast. Heavy unbleached muslin stiffened and painted serves as flags copied from those on the original "Half Moon."

Elated with the success of his first attempt, Henry is now all for ship models and he will soon be working on a small open boat. His handiwork in wood heretofore has been confined to cabinet making especially for domestic articles of furniture and radio cabinets.

The Mr. Henry referred to above is the youngest son of the late Mr. William Henry of Dunstaffnage, P. E. I.

Tendency Toward Protective Tariff Is Developing

OTTAWA, Mar. 1.—A tendency towards the protective tariff was developing in all parts of the world, Prof. J. Goforth, of McGill University, today told the University Institute class. "The world," said Dr. Goforth, "is drifting away from international cosmopolitanism. Even Great Britain is breaking away from her free trade principles. It has been found that stability and security in trade are more important than labor economy," and protection made as well for the efficiency, the stability and the security of labor itself.

"A tariff," said the speaker, "created a wall through which breaches can be made and by means of which trade can be made to flow in desired channels. It gives a country something with which to bargain."

"Not by Meat Alone"

Leading fox ranchers have demonstrated that, in addition to meat, it is absolutely necessary to feed a liberal supply of IMPERIAL BISCUITS daily during the winter season, in order to keep the bowels regular and also to ensure the females having an adequate supply of milk during the lactation period.

IMPERIAL COD OIL BISCUITS are made from a formula which has been prepared with these results in view and which reliable tests, extending over a considerable term of years, have proved to be signally successful.

Ranches, which have continued the feeding of IMPERIALS regularly in winter have had the best litters of young foxes and also the highest average of pups raised to maturity; in addition, they have practically eliminated the destroying of young by the females.

For assured results feed IMPERIALS throughout all the winter season.

IMPERIAL are sold by leading distributors or direct from the factory.
