GOOD TO BE BACK

Pity those who can't arrange. Now and then to have a change. —Old Mr. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad hopped under the fence into Farmer Brown's garden. He didn't have to creep under as Peter Rabbit did. Being such a lowly person he didn't even have to duck to avoid bumping his head. Old Mr. Toad has lovely golden eyes. They always are lovely, the only beautiful thing about him, but just now they were lovelier than ever. Happiness made them so. Old Mr. Toad was back home and it was good to be there. He said so, talking to himself. "If it is so good to be here, why did you go away?" asked Peter Rabbit. He happened to be sitting just inside the fence, close to the place where Old Mr. Toad had entered. The latter hadn't seen Peter sitting there in the dusk. "Hello, Longears! What are you over here for?" said Old Mr. Toad. "Just to look around," replied Peter.

"Hello, Longears! What are you over here for?" said Old Mr. Toad. "But I'm here just the same," chuckled Peter. "But not to stay," retorted Old Mr. Toad, and chuckled in his turn. A loud sniff sounded not far away. Flip the Terrier was coming down the garden path. Peter slipped back under the fence as was off, hipped, happy lip. "My, but it is good to be back," sighed Old Mr. Toad as he began pulling his old suit off and swallowing it. "Sometimes I think the best part of going visiting is getting back home. I had a lovely visit with Mrs. Toad and all the relatives at the Smiling Pool, but even though I was born there this is really my home after all. It certainly is good to be back."

The next story: "Old Mr. Toad Makes the Round."

Contract Bridge By Josephine Culbertson

THE SUPREME FOLLY
In today's deal North committed the supreme folly of bidding a s'am in the wrong suit.

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
North-South 60 on score.

♠ 6 5	♥ J 9	♦ A K 10 6 5	♣ 5 3
♠ 5 3	♥ A K 10 6 5	♦ 8	♣ 5 3
♠ 2	♥ A K 10 6 5	♦ 8	♣ 5 3

The bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
4♠ 4♠ 5♦ Dble.
Pass Pass 6♠ (Final bid)
North's bidding, aside from his correct jump to three hearts, was not good. His five-diamond bid, particularly, was lacking in tactical and strategic merit, giving East the opportunity to double and thereby indicate an excellent lead to his partner. As it happened, this diamond lead would have been extremely welcome to South at a six-heart contract, giving him time to draw trumps and discard the spade king on his own fifth club, but from North's point of view, there was no reason to suppose that a diamond lead would be favorable no matter what contract was reached. The five-diamond bid virtually begged for a double, so why make the bid?

The strangest part of North's bidding, however, was in his final preference for clubs. Later, North explained that it had seemed quite possible that South had five hearts and four clubs. He was referring to the well-known principle that hands very often play better with a 4-4 trump suit than in a longer suit, but this is true only when the longer suit will afford discards. If South had five hearts he would have to follow suit to all of North's five hearts, and where would be the discards?

In this case, as in so many, North was just a little too good, but not quite good enough! A notice on an average player would select six hearts if he bid any slam, and to repeat, South could easily make that contract if West opened a diamond, as he did against six clubs. The six-club contract, however, had no chance.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. — (CP) — Tourists in the vicinity of Port Arthur's tourist pagoda were treated to a rare sight recently when a wild, full-grown doe galloped down a main street here.
