PHONE MANNERS ARE REVEALING

Over the telephone you are a voice which speaks well, indifferently or badly for you. When at its best, a voice shows its smile, talks directly into the mouthpiece, refrains from playing practical jokes, reflects its owner's nicest manners and keeps the conversation within reasonable time limits.

What the time limits are nobody has a right to say, writes a commentator. But the man of the house or the boss of the business which employs you will always say a woman's telephone conversation could be cut in half. Maybe the men have something there. If so that something is for you to think over. Any girl who works in an office should think twice before she let herself "go" over the phone with personal chit-chat. Any wife whose telephone talks irritate her husband should time-clock herself. Any woman who uses a public telephone will do her whole sex a good turn if she'll get through in a hurry and will let the gent who's hissing her from the outside of the booth have his turn.

Observe Amenities

Gracious manners? They are magnified over the phone, so make the most of a good impression by observing the amenities. Answer promptly. Excuse wrong numbers graciously. If you have to leave the phone to rescue a boiling kettle or answer the door bell, tell the caller you'll call back. That's more gracious than keeping some one dangling. It may take longer to tame the kettle or dismiss the insistent salesman than you thought.

Don't play practical jokes over the phone. Too many people are annoyed by funsters who pretend that they're police headquarters or the income tax bureau calling.

If the caller asks for some one else, don't ask "Who's calling? unless you absolutely must. It makes you sound like Miss Fry. You won't want to sound like that to somebody whose opinion is important.

RAW CANNED RHUBARB

Select tender stalks of rhubarb and use rhubarb with as good color as possible. Wash the rhubarb with a stiff brush after removing the leaves and roof ends. Then cut the rhubarb into short lengths.

First Method

Now the first method of trestling it as follows: Pack prepared rhubarb into sterilized jars until the jars are filled to the tops. Then take more rhubarb and put it through the food chopper, using a fine blade. Squeeze juice out of the ground rhubarb and then use this juice to fill up the jars already packed with cut rhubarb. Adjust rubbers, glass tops and screw tops and seal the jars completely at once. Store rhubarb in a cool, dry dark place.

Second Method

The second method is this: Prepare the rhubarb as above, then place it in a chopping bowl or on a wooden board. If placed in a chopping bowl, crush the rhubarb with vegetable masher until the juice begins to flow. If done on a wooden board, it may be crushed with a rolling pin. Whichever method is used for crushing the rhubarb, pack it, after it is crushed, into sterilized jars, filling the jars to the tops. Seal tightly immediately. Store this in a cool, dry, dark place, also.

When stored in a dark place when canned by any of these methods, the rhubarb will retain its color better.

RHUBARB IN WATER

Clean the rhubarb and trim it, then cut into desired lengths. Pack into sterilized jars and fill to overflowing with water that has been boiled and cooled. Adjust the tops and seal the jars tightly immediately. Store in a cool dry place.

Some people merely use cold water from the tap for canning rhubarb by this method, but when water is first boiled and cooled, greater success is insured.

A second method of canning rhubarb raw, is to pack the jars only with the rhubarb and its juice This is obviously better than the first one we mentioned, of packing the rhubarb in water, because when packed in its own juice, the flavor of the canned product is better, and the food value is greater.

There are two different ways in which this may be accomplished.

Site Is Selected For New Prince County Hospital

At a special meeting of the board of trustees of the Prince County Hospital, held last evening with Mr. W. E. Darby, the recently elected president, in the chair, a site was chosen on which the proposed new Prince County Hospital will be erected. The location is on the east side of the Summer Street extention and to the north of the High School. This is not yet laid off in streets but when that has been done the hospital site will be one block from the school.

A number of other properties were also considered before the selection was made. The property is owned by M.F. Schurman Co. Ltd. and will be given to the hospital as part of a very generous donation made by that firm to the Prince County Hospital campaign for funds. At this meeting a building committee was appointed and charged with the responsibility of gathering all necessary information regarding the construction of a new hospital and submitting it to the board. The committee members are, Messrs Donald Baker, J. E. Dalton, J. F. Arnett, E. S. Burleigh, M. L. Bradshaw, Dr. J. C. Simpson, E. F. Gaudet, P. G. Clarke, J. H. Gaudet.—S.

Baptist Ass'n Meeting Opens At Tryon

With a word of hearty welcome from the entertaining church at Tryon, the Baptist Association settled down yesterday morning to the devotional and business activities of its 79th annual session.

The retiring moderator, Rev. C. O. Howlett occupied the chair and called upon Rev. A. E. Todd to report on the work of the Grand Linge Mission. The mission, although somewhat affected during the war years, gives promise of renewed activity and growing vitality in evangelism.

The devotional addresses of the sessions are being given by Rev. I. J. Levy. The general theme of the devotions is "faith." Mr. Levy said in part: "No man knows the meaning of faith apart from the background of doubt. Christianity is a faith-producing religion. If we are to produce a vital Christian missionary activity we must have a vital Christian faith."

At the afternoon session various reports on the year's work included: Western Missions by Rev. C. A. Hicks; social service, Rev. E. J. Barrass, in which Mr. Barrass stressed that during the past six months intemperance in the Town of Summerside seemed to be decidedly on the increase. The matter of juvenile delinquency in urban centres is reaching alarming proportions. Mr. Barrass outlined the activity of the newly formed Christian Social Service Council of P. E. I. He commended the Province on the enactment for the prevention of venereal diseases and the law which becomes effective on July 1, 1946, requiring medical examination for those intending to marry.

Rev. R. E. Whitney, superintendent of Home Missions, reported most encouragingly on behalf of the Home Mission Churches of the Maritime Provinces.

A full and encouraging report on the church's Young People's Societies and Sunday Schools was given by the Association Clerk, Rev. C. A. Hicks.

Mr. Levy in his devotional address of the afternoon said, "in the matter of faith Paul did not start out to prove something. Paul said, 'One thing I know.' He proceeded upon what he knew rather than upon what he did not know. It was enough for him that he knew certain things. He built his faith upon what he knew, rather than upon his doubts. So long as a man feels certain of working out his own salvation he gets nowhere. The cross has done for man what he can never do for himself."

S'side High School Graduation Exercises

The graduation exercises of the Summerside High School and Academy were held in the auditorium last night with Dr. E. T. Tanton acting as chairman.

Mr. Davis Lidstone, principal of the High School gave an interesting review of the year's activities and stated that in grades one to ten there were 756 pupils enrolled, the highest in the history of the school. The report of the year's work in the Academy was presented by the principal, Mr. Elmer Pineau.

The chairman, Dr. Tanton, in his remarks expressed his belief that pupils entering the school should produce a certificate of vaccination due to the fact if they were vaccinated after entering the natural result was a considerable loss of time from their studies. Mr. Lidstone, the principal, verified that this was the rule of the school.

The following is an outline of the evening's program:
