—FINE EASTER STEER—One of the finest steers prepared for Easter, may be seen at Montrose, this animal was reared and fattened by Mr. R. H. Gordon. Much credit is due its owner, in demonstrating what can be done by care and proper feeding of animals on the farm. This steer is three years and six months old and will dress over one thousand pounds. Mr. M. Evans, Trench has purchased this animal for Easter beef.

—SIGNS OF SPRING.—Kensington is already assuming an attitude that presages Easter. The managers of the various business establishments are contemplating a bigger trade than has been, which is indeed, a gigantic concept. The columns of the Guardian will, no doubt, be sought to disseminate the spring qualities of the business offered, and no better investment could be anticipated. Produce is coming in with increasing volume and enhancing quality, and when any question arises about markets, the market reports of the Guardian are often quoted to prove. The different churches are anticipating the specific services and are taking due cognizance by preparing musical contributions duly appropriate to the sublime feast. The teaching of the High School are prospecting in view of what they will enjoy in actuality when the brief holiday respite is in the passing. But there is one class of faithful officials that see no respite—the postal and railway officials. They must measure up to the terms of contract or office and content to see other officials enjoy a holiday. Signs of spring are nevertheless in sight. Supplies for lobster factories are moving, work in the garage is evidence of return of transit by wheel, inquiries about seed show hope of reasonably early planting, and engagement of farm help is also anticipated. A careful survey of prospective markets will determine farmers what crops to farm in limited quantity, what to husband in abundance. The feeders of Easter meat are expected to prove by the genuine article what superior quality of viands the Kensington field can produce, and the buyers mistake not when they look to the ever progressive area for the qualities that complement the fastidious. If people would commend the excellencies of the area as some critics magnify the little faults, all would be able to form a true concept and show to the world the true progress consists in burying evil by means of good, and thereon erecting an edifice of unselfish endurance.—Y.

—PRESBYTERIAN SERVICE—The Presbyterians of Montague will hold service in the Montague Baptist Church, March 28th at 7 p. m. Rev. D. McVicar, preacher. Everybody welcome.

—THE SEVEN CAPES.—Instead of practising the dance of the seven veils the modern woman is floating along under the light burden of seven capes. The newer evening wraps may not contribute much warmth, but they do their bit for appearance's sake none the less. They are composed of seven capes of tulle, one over the other and their chic and beauty depends on the way the colors of the different layers are blended.

—MINARD'S LINIMENT for colds.

—PERSONALS—Mrs. C. J. Cook, Kensington, returned on Tuesday evening from an extended trip to Charlottetown, K.

—Mr. and Mrs. James O'Connor, Clinton, are at present spending a well earned vacation from the arduous duties of farm life, in Charlottetown. They are guests at the Revere Hotel, K.

—Mr. Norman Ramsay, Hamilton, spent the past few weeks in the city, visiting his daughter, Mrs. T. R. Beer. Mr. Ramsay has reached his 85th year and still maintains a constitution and vitality that must make younger men step. His animated vigor expresses a substantial principle that must yet, for years, defy the wasting influence of time.—Y.

LONDON, March 25.—Word from Athens announces the first arrest under the new law prohibiting women from wearing skirts higher than 15 inches from the ground. A young girl was yesterday arrested in a public thoroughfare and hauled off to the police tribunal to be sentenced to 24 hours' imprisonment "mid the hisses" of men and women on-lookers.

NO SIGHT UNSEEN.
"Sir, will you give me your daughter for my wife?"
"I can't say, son, I never saw your wife."

Fashion Jewels

The spirit of Spring is embodied in this smart three-quarter length coat, with its modish saddle shoulders. The material selected is beige velvet with a floral design in black, rust and orange. It is worn over a dress of beige crepe, very slim in cut, featuring the side pleats for fullness. The smart touch of the ascot tie is an additional feature. The hat is a beige felt with roll brim, the sole trimming being a buckle fashioned of silk to match the colors of the coat.
