Marriage Scales

THE INEVITABLE DENOUEMENT

It was a subdued and chastened Mariana who answered Charles's ring the following morning.

She had scarcely slept at all. Hour after hour had crawled by in darkness and loneliness. She had watched the dawn break with wide, sleepless eyes and, remembering other dawns when she had sighed romantically over the thought of Craig Cullam, shuddered with distaste.

Wild thoughts of rising early and leaving the hotel before Charles was astir came to tempt her in the silent watches. She would go to Honolulu, perhaps to China, lose herself in the kindly oblivion of the Orient! At other times, doing a right-about-face mentally, she would resolve to go back to Reno and join forces with the young prospective divorcee of the train. In six months, she would fling Charles's freedom in his face!

But that very idea made her desperate and forlorn. She thought of Doris and longed to confide in her.

At nine, her telephone rang.

She answered it listlessly and her heart leaped at Charles's cheery "good morning."

"Hope you slept well?" he added solicitiously.

"Very—thank you," she prevaricated politely.

"Feel like a day on the beach? he queried. "My business is about completed. I can afford a holiday."

She was on the point of declining. She couldn't stand the torture of a whole day of Charles's companionship, knowing that such holidays were numbered.

"We'll go to Santa Monica, if you say so," Charles was saying. "It's great out there. There's a girl I want you to meet."

Jealousy flamed in Mariana.

"I think that would be very nice," she accepted hastily.

"Fine. I'll call for you at eleven. Be ready by that time?"

She laughed with an effort.

"Do you think I have to make an elaborate two-hour toilet for a day on the beach?"

"I know you women! Fly to it, and I'll ring you on the hour sharp."

As a matter of fact, it took Mariana every bit of two hours to prepare for the day's outing. She had never, even on the occasion of a great ball, made so careful and perfect a toilet.

Her face, with the ravages of sleeplessness stamped upon it, almost made her despair when she first looked in the mirror. But she went to work doggedly to repair damages. Steaming towels, long-continued application of ice, a brisk massage and her lovely skin bloomed radiantly once more. She pencilled her eyes delicately and viewed with satisfaction the wistful expression her art gave to them.

When she joined Charles at five minutes past eleven, she was a vision of modish and perfect grooming in the latest silken sport suit which the couturiers of Paris had put out.

Charles was almost speechless with admiration, but he wisely made no comment. She was disappointed, not for a moment guessing that he was near to bursting with pride over the beautiful wife he was soon to exhibit to the McPhersons.

Mariana's manner was perfect when she was presented to Charles's California manager and his present wife. But she kept looking apprehensively toward the door, wondering when the girl Charles had spoken of would make her appearance.

Finally, when the McPhersons had gone to prepare for the afternoon on the beach, she asked with an assumption of carlessness:

Where is the girl you said you wanted me to meet?"

Charles laughed heartily.

"You've already met her—Sally McPherson!"

Relief almost made Marianna dizzy.

"But she's not a girl," she objected. "She must be frightfully old."

Charles mentioned Mrs. McPherson's age. It was the same as Mariana's. The news made the latter thoughtful.

"Of course Sally looks heaps older," Charles remarked. "She works pretty hard, I dare say,—housekeeping and kids and all that. She doesn't have much time to keep fixed up the way Eastern women do. An afternoon at the golf club, or a picnic on the beach is a wild orgy to her."

Mariana shuddered. She looked at Charles with new, admiring eyes. He was about McPherson's age, in fact, they had gone through college together. Yet he was able to give her a luxurious town house, a country place, a camp in Canada if she wanted it, cars, servants, Paris gowns—

She caught her breath in dismay. How little she had appreciated him!

The day dragged endlessly, she thought. The McPhersons were nice, but everything they said and did revealed Charles in a newer and more desirable light to Mariana. She began to see him as a personal exponent of a lost paradise.

After supper, Mrs. McPherson went back to the house to put the children to bed. Her husband, at her warning glance, wandered off somewhere with his pipe.

Charles and Mariana were alone on the beach. A benign moon shown down upon lazily rolling waves and silvery sand.

Charles discovered suddenly that Mariana was crying.

PERHAPS IT ALL DEPENDS

Time after time we hear exclaimed
That old familiar phrase,
"How is this old world of ours
A-treating you these days?"
And if things run along quite smooth
We smile and answer, "Great!"
But, oh, when everything goes wrong,
'Tis then we it berate.
Then is the time to stop and think
Perhaps it all depends
Upon the way you treat this world,
'Tis true also of friends.

—Jean McMichael.

Alcohol Gun The Latest in Bootlegging

WINNIPEG, Aug 14—Near beer can be changed into the real article by the use of a new invention which recently made its appearance in Winnipeg. It is a contrivance brought into this country from the United States and is known to the bootlegging fraternity as an "alcohol" gun. One shot with this miracle gun and simple two per cent. beer is turned into intoxicating beverage possessing a kick of an Indiana mule.

The instrument operates on the principle of an ordinary hypodermic syringe, with the alcohol always under the control of the operator.

Use of the gun will render more difficult enforcement of temperance legislation, as the "kick" is not put in until the beer is about to be sold and only a bottle at a time is livened up for the drinker.

The stock of beer purchased by the bootlegger is non-intoxicating, so that if a seizure is made by the police, the analysis would prove the contents within the limits of alcohol allowed by law.

"The 'hootch gun' presents a serious problem to the law-enforcing officers," said one offical of the Manitoba provincial police department add,ng that it showed that the inventive mind was not wholly dead among those engaged in devising new schemes of violating the law.

Checkers and Chess Now Outdoor Sports

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug 14—Out-of-door chequers and chess may be the next form of recreation provided by the local parks board. The question of constructing chequer boards sixteen feet square, with four square feet for each piece has been mooted by the authorities.

Vancouver has chequer squares in Stanley Park and Port Arthur has also provided this form of recreation for its citizens. Detroit and other cities in the United States have regular open-air chequer tournaments in their parks.

Recently there were 500 entries for a Detroit tournament, and 200 applications had to be refused because no provision had been made for the fair sex. The entrants ranged in game from seven to seventy.

DIES AS WIRE IN BODY 20 YEARS IS REMOVED

GREENWICH, Conn., August 14.—Mrs. Mabel Irene Woodruff Duff, of 14 East Elm Street, died in the Greenwich Hospital yesterday after an operation in which surgeons removed a piece of steel wire an inch long from her right side near the appendix.

The wire is believed to have been swallowed with food twenty years or more ago, but it did not cause trouble until recently.

DIET HAS INFLUENCE ON LENGTH OF LIFE

TORONTO, August 14.—A certain amount of vitamin, known as Fat-Soluble A., is essential for human existence, and in speaking on the manner in which such fats are obtained, Professor H. C. Sherman, of Columbia University, pointed yesterday to the importance of a proper diet.

For ten years it has been known that this constituent of butter and cream is essential to growth and the prevention of eye diseases, but its importance for other functions has, hitherto, not been recognized. The vitamin has been named Fat-Soluble A because it is dissolved by the solutions which dissolve fats.

Diets, in which it is present in relatively small amounts, fail utterly to support successful reproduction and lactation, though the individual may be enjoying apparent good health. It is believed, also, that susceptibility to lung disease is due, in part at least, to the absence from the diet of sufficient quantities of FatSoluble A.

Professor Sherman pointed out that sufficiency of this vitamin in what are considered normal dietaries cannot be taken for granted. Enormous variations may occur in the plant tissues, from which the cows, and, in turn, the human beings, obtain their store of this important substance. Measures must be taken to ensure its presence in amounts which provide an adequate sufficiency.

Odd Fellows Of Maritimes Meet At Wolfville

WOLFVILLE, Aug. 12.—The attendance at the Grand Encampment, I.O.O.F., Maritime Provinces, which opened today, was not so large as usual, but all the officers were present, and there were 27 candidates for the Grand Encampment degree. Grand Patriarch McKay, of Stellarton, extended a welcome to the visitors. Responses were made by Past Grand Patriarch Miller, Grand Master McKay, Grand Warden Barnaby and Dr. Peabody, Past Grand Master of the State of Maine.

Several resolutions were passed at this meeting. The first was in regard to deceased members. A committee consisting of Patriarchs Bezanson, of Sydney, and Mills, of Truro, was appointed to incorporate in the "Annual."

A resolution dealing with a juvenile branch, endorsing the actions of the representatives at last year's Grand Lodge, was passed.

The committee on the proposed hospital provision in connection with the Odd Fellows' Home in Pictou, recommended necessary equipment in the Home and the installation of 100 radio sets for the inmates.

The latter proposal was favorably received and the former was referred back, at the suggestion of Dr. F. L. Walder, of Halifax, who recommended an arrangement with Pictou County Hospital, the cost to be borne by the Grand Encompment.

Afternoon Session.

The afternoon session of the Grand Encampment, I.O.O.F., opened with a report of the standing committees. These were received and adopted. A special committee reported the death of ten members during the year.

The special committee on hospital accommodation recommended deferring action. A clause recommending the purchase of the radio sets for the Home at Pictou, to cost $250 was adopted.

The election of officers followed. C. W. Boyce, of Halifax, was elected Grand Patriarch, the other officers are Grand High Priest, J. W. Warner, Goldboro, N.S.; Grand Senior Warden, Amos H. Conway, Stellarton; Grand Scribe, Melville McKean, P.G.R., Pictou; Grand Treasurer, Charles A. Sampson, Fredericton, N.B.; Grand Junior Warden, G. H. Love, Lunenburg; Grand Marshall, John Boutilier, Stellarton; Grand Sentinel, C. C. McLean, Glace Bay; Deputy Grand Sentinel, Eber Ingraham, Plaster Rock, N.B.; Grand Representative, 1924, J. McLaughlin, Charlottetown; Past Grand Patriarch, Aubrey E. McKay, Stellarton.

The installation of these officers was immediately proceeded with. At the close of the installation, addresses were made by High Priest Warner, and other elected officers, also by several Past Grand Patriarchs.

Rebekah Assembly.

At the Rebekah Assembly held in the morning, all the officers of the Assembly were present. Besides these there were Past Presidents Mrs. Minna B. Robinson, of St. Stephen, N.B.; Mrs. Mary Harrington, Bridgewater; Mrs. Grace Hebb, Lunenburg; Mrs. Margaret Peters, St. Stephen; Mrs. Mary Matheson, Springhill; Mrs. Phoebe Ellsworth, St. John; Mrs. Olive Lindow, Boston; Mrs. Mary Bayne, Moncton, N.B.; Mrs. Lilla Kirkpatrick, Windsor; Mrs. Anna McBean, Inverness, and Miss Barbara McKenzie, of Westville. The president introduced Mrs. Margaret B. Peabody, president of the Rebekah Assembly of the State of Maine, who gave a pleasing address.

Two presentations were made, the first being a Bible, donated in memory of a Past President, Sister Pollard, of Yarmouth, by the Past Presidents present at the meeting. The other presentation was a silk flag, by Past President Mary Harrington, of Bridgewater. This completed the morning session.

It is expected that about 125 local businessmen will make the trip, while invitations have been extended to the Chambers of commerce of the border states. CRIED FOR THE QUEEN

The Queen paid a surprise visit to the newly opened Liverpool babies' hospital and spent forty minutes fondling the little patients in their white cots, and inquiring about their treatment.

A tiny child with golden curly locks handed her a bouquet. It was explained that this child was taken from a poor home three years ago and had undergone a remarkable cure. She now appeared a radiant picture of health, and the Queen ran her fingers through the child's locks, and was photographed with her.

A boy cried lustily from his cot for the Queen, who at once went to him with a smile.

The Queen took flowers from her bouquet for the children, and also went on to the lawns and visited some lying in cots with spinal trouble.

Salvation Army Corps In Penal Institution

WINNIPEG, Aug. 14.—Twenty prisoners of the Stony Mountain penitentiary here signed the articles of war of the Salvation Army this week at a ceremony conducted by Commissioner H. C. Hodder and Chief Secretary Charles Knott. This is the first occasion that a Salvation Army corps has been formed in a Canadian penal institution. The number to be received as soldiers of the Army at a single service, constitutes a world's record.

In the United States there are several army corps in penitentiaries, but in none was there ever so large a class received at one time. It is customary for corps of the Army to have brass bands to lead their meetings and a number of the new corps at the Manitoba penitentiary are anxious to form a band there.

Chaplin Stewart of the penitentiary staff held the flag over the new soldiers as they were solemnly enrolled. A sergeant major and sergents for the new corps will be named at a later date and fifteen other prisoners will be enrolled this fall.

Several of the prisoners had been living in the penitentiary under assumed names and when they made public profession of their faith, they disclosed their true identity and so signed the articles. All men received have been in Bible classes for some months receiving instructions in the Christian faith. When these converts leave the prison, they will have full standing as Salvationists and will receive all necessary assistance from the Army to reestablish themselves in civil life.

Quite a number of prisoners have been recently released on parole. This has been done on the condition that the Salvation Army provides employment for the prisoners and also exercised some general supervision over those released.

QUEEN OF SPAIN'S CHAIR

The landward face of the Rock of Gibraltar stands directly opposite to a conspicuous height, called the Queen of Spain's Chair.

This name has its origin in a legend of the Great Siege. It is said that the Queen of Spain took up a position on this height, vowing she would not leave it till she saw the Spanish flag flying over the Rock of Gibraltar. A report of the Royal lady's situation ultimately reached the Governor, General Elliott, who at once most gallantly caused the Spanish flag to be waved on the summit of the Rock.

Whether the legend is true or not, it is certain that there are no more striking aspects of the Rock than those obtained by the pedestrians who make the rough ascent up to the Queen of Spain's Chair. In traversing the Spanish town of Linea, separated from the Rock by the tongue of neutral ground some half-mile in length, pictures of primitive Spain present themselves at every turn.

In making the tower the objective, one emerges from the town by narrow footpaths and donkey-tracks. The rough slopes of the hill afford pasture for numerous herds of goats, every herd tended by a shepherd with a long staff.

A pile of naked rock crowns the summit of the hill. On the topmost of these stands an ancient watch-tower. From here the whole circle of the horizon is a magnificient panorama of sea and mountain, a picture in which the situation of the Rock presents its full significance, thrust out into the blue Mediterranean towards the mountains of Morocco.

CITIZENS OF REGINA SEE DAYLIGHT STAR

REGINA, Sask., August 14.—For several days now a daylight star has appeared in the sky. It was first observed by a farmer living a few miles out of the city, but Reginans who scanned the heavens were unable to locate it. Today, however, scores of people discovered the shining orb and came out on the streets to gaze at the phenomenon.

BRITAIN'S ANIMAL ALIENS.

The brown rat has always been called in Great Britain the Hanoverian rat, and it is probably true that the first one of these ugly pests arrived in the British isle in a ship from Hamburg about the year 1688. But its real name is "Mus Norvegicus," or Norwegian mouse.

It is extraordinary how this brute has spread. It was not until 1889 that the first of them reached the island of Ailsa Craig. In 1900 nearly a thousand were killed on this tiny spot of land.

The brown rat is supposed to have exterminated the black rat, but the latter still lives in the Channel Islands and a few places in the South of England. It is quite wrong to call the black rat the old English rat, for he, too, came over from the continent of Europe.

Quite lately another foreign rat has turned up in England. This is the Alexandrine rat, which came from one of the Black Sea ports. The first was seen in London in 1900, and in 1904 two fine specimens were killed in a big brewery. Today there are numbers of them in the southern ports.

The mole, strange to say, is not one of Britain's original British mammals, but came from Europe. The mole is still rare over the greater part of Ireland, and is unknown in Norway.

The little roedeer is still another alien which really belongs to the continent of Europe. This graceful little animal has lived in British isles for a matter of a thousand years or more.

Two of Britain's fresh-water mussels are purely German, while the beavers, which have been acclimatized in Scotland, are Austrian.

Alberta Has Decrease In Coal Output

EDMONTON, Aug. 14—The coal output of Alberta for the month of June amounted to 102,376 tons. Of this total 80,155 tons was of the domestic variety, 123,332 tons of sub-bituminous, and 9,889 tons of bituminous coal.

Last year the total output for the corresponding month was 393,846 tons, the chief reason for the decrease being ascribed by officials to the miners' strike.

CROSS-PURPOSES

A well-dressed man stood for several minutes watching a brawny expressman tugging at a heavily laden box almost as wide as the doorway through which he was trying to move it. Presently the onlooker approached and said: "Like to have a life?" "Thanks, I would," the other replied, and for the next five minutes the two men, on opposite sides of the box, worked lifted, tugged and wheezed, but the object of their intentions did not move an inch. Finally the well dressed gentleman straightened up and said between puffs: "I don't believe we can get it out." "Get is out," the drayman roared. "Why you idiot, I'm trying to get it in."
