DOROTHY DIX SAYS.— I wish that every woman who has had an unfaithful husband had the courage to meet the situation with as much good, common sense as you have, Mrs. M. B.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband believes in one church and there is nothing that you can do about it that will change his mind. I believe in a different church and no one could change my mind. So as we are not to go to any church. But we have two children and we know we ought to take them to church. Please tell us what to do. TOMMY

My family loves that Boston flavor. AYLMER BEANS with PORK and Tomato Sauce. Tender beans cooked to nutritional perfection in a spicy tomato sauce. Just the right amount of pork for that "Boston Brown" flavor. That's Aylmer. Your family, too, deserves Aylmer quality.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER—On Wednesday evening, July 28, a host of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic McDonald, Emyvale, to tender a shower in honour of their daughter, Jean, prior to her marriage. The bride-to-be was escorted to her seat of honor by the Misses Minerva McDonald and Dorothy McGinn. The Bridal March was played by Mrs. Maurice McDonald, accompanied by Miss Blanche Murray. The beautiful and numerous gifts were opened and presented by the Misses Patricia Clark and Minerva McDonald. The accompanying verses were read by Miss Dorothy McGinn. Jean, in her usual friendly manner thanked everyone for their gifts, after which everyone joined in singing "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow." The latter part of the evening was pleasantly spent with music and dancing, the music being furnished by Mr. James McDonald and Miss Blanche Murray, also Mrs. Maurice McDonald and Miss Mary McDonald. A beautiful lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by several ladies. At a late hour all departed to their homes, wishing Jean every happiness in the future.

"Y" COMPLETION CAMPAIGN—Increased construction costs have necessitated a completion campaign to raise funds for the completion of the new Y. M. C. A. building. Every effort was made to procure a building permit from the Dominion Controller of Construction early in 1948. A delegation of Charlottetown men went to Ottawa in this connection, but under wartime restrictions the permit could not be obtained. If a permit had been granted, the new Y. M. C. A. building could have been completed without a further appeal for funds. The present work on the new building began in May of 1947. This work began in response to the demand of contributors that the work be started at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Samuel Nock of the International Y. M. C. A. Building Bureau inspected the building several weeks ago and reported most favourably upon the high quality of construction and materials which he found. While an outlet of the new building scheme a modern swimming pool was included in the equipment, this feature had to be abandoned for the present due to excessive costs of swimming pool construction and equipment. The new building has been designed with a view to adding a swimming pool in the future. A projection of the building has been made to permit future entrances to the swimming pool from the shower room.

YATES-STEWART—On Thursday, August 12th at 7:30 p.m., upwards of sixty friends and relatives gathered on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yates, Kingsboro, to witness the marriage of their eldest daughter, Margaret Vivian, to Peter William Stewart, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stewart. The bride was escorted to the arch by her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus played by Mrs. Clinton Stewart. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. H. R. Bell. The bride was becomingly attired in a floor length gown of white satin, a floor length veil, and carried a bouquet of summer flowers. She was attended by her pen-pal Miss Margaret Macdonald, Chatham, N. B., who was dressed in floor length white lace over gold taffeta, a white coat with shoulder length veil, and carried a bouquet of Sweet Peas. The groom was capably supported by Mr. Arthur Robertson, Kingsboro. Following the ceremony, a delightful supper was served to the guests in the tastefully decorated dining room of the bride's home. A jolly crowd of serenaders gathered to extend their best wishes to the happy bride and groom. The remainder of the evening was spent in music furnished by the Duncphy brothers, New Harmony. The following morning the bride party left on a short honeymoon to different points of interest on the Island. For travelling the bride wore a grey suit with matching accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will reside in Kingsboro, where the groom is a prosperous fisherman.

A large crowd of children and grown-ups gathered Friday on each of the three City playgrounds to witness the pet shows and doll carriage parade, one of the major annual attractions. The supervisors on Connaught, Miss Eileen Landry, and Paul Jardine were aided in the successful venture by Mr. Wendell Beaton, Mr. J. A. Jardine, Mr. J. T. Robison, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Smith. Ellen's Diary By an Island Farmer's Wife (Continued from Page 2) wondrous question, which he must look to Jeanie after all to answer. Time was when I was familiar with all the faces, but now names appear in puzzling rapidity. But James is inclined to pin one down to details. "Was it the one with the star on his forehead or the one with the white hind-foot, that you gave it to?" an extremely lucky question, and one to stump

BANKS - HENRY WEDDING—On the beautiful evening of Aug. 11th the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Henry was the scene of a happy event, when their only daughter, Gladys Isabel, became the bride of John William, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Banks of Annandale. Rev. George Gough performed the candle-light wedding service. The living room was beautifully decorated in yellow and white, and to the soft strains of the Wedding March played by Mrs. Ed Graham, aunt of the bride, the bridal party took their places under an arch of flowers and fern. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of Ivory satin, with lace insets, sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves; her finger-tip veil was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. Her only ornament was a two-strand pearl necklace, the gift of the groom. She was attended by Miss Vaunda Ferguson, who was gowned in a floor-length dress of pale yellow taffeta, embroidered in gold, and wore a matching shoulder-length veil, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair fern. Mr. Keith Henry, brother of the bride served as best man. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Graham MacLeod sang very sweetly "Love You Truly". Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served; the dining room was artistically decorated, the colour scheme being mauve and yellow, and the bride's table centered with a lovely wedding cake flanked by mauve and yellow tapers, in silver holders. Mrs. Ed Graham poured and Miss Josie Paton replenished. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Alvin Cole and Mrs. Grant MacLeod. The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. Mr. Gough and fittingly replied to by the groom. The happy couple received many lovely gifts, including silver, linen, blankets, and several substantial cheques. In the course of the evening a band of serenaders called to extend best wishes to the bride and groom. The bride travelled in a suit of dove grey wool, with grey satin hat and black accessories. They will reside in Annandale, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

even me until an imp of a helpful elf reminds me quick as a flash: "Now don't you open your mouth, you get the drift of it. A smile's mighty comfortin' and can settle a heap o' questions lighty!" These days beginning now to mellow with the August sun, old friends come to call again and new ones, those who have returned to revisit old and well remembered scenes of their childhood or those that come for the first time to fall in love with our Island in the Gulf.

In yesterday's Sabbath, with some of James' ain folk we enjoyed a drive to Belfast. The name brings to mind a first visit there in the long ago. We had certainly gotten astray on the road. There was no doubt of it. "Well, well, well," we said. Presently a man appeared, a hoe on his shoulder, for it was June-time. "Are ye on the right road to Belfast?" he repeated our chatter's question. Then chuckled, "Sure an' if it's Belfast on the Island ye're wantin' to go to, ye'll have to turn around. Go back an' felly a-ling the way ye were goin' before ye turned down this way. But if it's Belfast in the ould land, ye're wantin' to find ye'll have to make fer the boat!"

Once arrived in the community, comfortable farmsteads are forgotten, as well as the mill on the stream and dwelling nearby which after many years still figure in James' brilliant recollections since since no visit to the vicinity is ever complete without including in it a brief or preferably longer call at the Church now well past one century in age. Again and again one may come there to find always the exquisite peace and reverence and blessing of a place—to marvel at it's beauty of design and the spirit and faith of those pioneers who built enduringly and well, and to the descendants and friends who continue to keep it a beautiful memorial to those who have gone before. It is indeed a lovely and hallowed spot. Above the door one reads: "Whoever thou art that enterest this Church, leave it not without one prayer to God, for thyself, for those who minister, and for those who worship here." "For those who minister here," I repeated.

We visited as well in a home where cousins of James' name dwell, where we found the true cleanliness of Island families. Time has touched this house lightly. Here one still can find the quiet of the Sabbath as of old and in this house one may feast eyes on many delights of bygone days—rare old furnishings that would bring joy to a collector's heart. We drank tea out of quaint old cups and walked in a garden where the spirits of dainty ladies gowned in rustling taffetas and shining satins and bewiskered gentlemen in broadcloth once strolled. Doubtless not taken up with the interests that intrigue present generations but discussing the morning sermon or some fine point of doctrine, it had brought to mind. Romances too has walked there, shy and tender. We met parents and children of the life whom we had not known, a winsome lass with long fair curls and Sandy a braw lad of a boy who could—and did—turn a somersault to amuse a wee fellow in our party, on the Sabbath, right there in that garden, to prove that after all time had marched on! Until tomorrow — Diary—Good-night.

In Memoriam In loving memory of Pte. Leslie C. Cameron, Killed in Action in France, August 21st, 1944. He did not know when leaving home He would no more return That he in death so soon would sleep And leave us here to mourn. Today as we look at your picture So loving and tender and kind, No wonder our hearts are broken Thinking dear Leslie of you. We miss you from your place A shadow o'er our life is cast, We miss the sunshine of your face, We miss your kind and willing hands. Your fond and tender care Our home is dark without you Oh! Leslie we miss you everywhere Sadly missed and Ever Remembered by Mother, Dad and Brothers.

In Memoriam In sad and loving memory of our dear husband and father, Bruce Somers, Bradabane, who passed away August 23rd, 1946. Two years ago we had to part, With one we loved with all our hearts. We miss his face, and kindly ways, With him we spent our happy days. Many a day his name is spoken, And many an hour he is in our thoughts. A link in our family chain is broken, He has gone from our home, but not from our hearts. Yet he has not lived and died in vain. For proudly we can say, He has left a name without a stain. For our tears to wash away. He was worth the name of father, He fought life's battles square, No matter when we needed him, We always found him there. He never failed to do his best, His heart was true and tender, He worked so hard for those he loved, And left us to remember. There wasn't a thing to big or too small, That he wouldn't try to do for us all. For all of us he did his best, So God gave him eternal rest. Sadly Missed and Fondly Remembered by Wife and Family.
