Mount Allison Ladies' College

Owen's Art Institution and Conservatory of Music.
The Fall Term of the 49th Year, Begins Sept 11, 1902.

Courses of study are provided, extending from the primary branches through the whole University curriculum to the degree of B. A. The staff consists of 18 teachers in addition to the University Professors. The Owens Art Institution, with its magnificent gallery, is in charge of Professor Hammond, R. C. A., an exhibitor in the Paris Salon, the Royal Academy, London, etc. The Conservatory of Music employs an able staff of instructors, all of whom have received their musical education abroad. Every care is taken to make the school a refined Christian home, where lady-like manners and nobility of character shall be cultivated. For Calendar apply to

CH'TOWN, P. E. I.

This College will re-open for the fall and winter course on Thursday, August 14, Prox.

Intending students will consult their own interests by entering as soon as possible after the date of opening. Last year we were most successful in placing our students in positions. To enable us to do the same this year they MUST enter early in the session. There are lots of splendid positions waiting for competent persons to fill.

Business men are acquainted with our course and method of instruction and apply to us for competent young men and women. Come and get a live education; one with some backbone in it. If, perchance, you have made a mistake in the past, try an education in which you will be rewarded as you exert yourself. The past is gone, the future is yours. A special course in Shorthand and Typewriting will be given as soon as the term begins. "Phonography, What it is and What it Does," by Ben Pitman; also full particulars relative to the College will be cheerfully furnished on application to and then rather abruptly ceasing to be keenness. It has long been known that age, sex, occupation, state of health and other influences affect the period during which this suspension of consciousness lasts, and also the soundness of one's sleep. There is reason to think, too, that the latter is variable through the night with every individual, even though his slumber may remain practically unbroken. This phase of the subject, however, has not been studied until recently. Hence few people realize how greatly the depth of sleep fluctuates.

In order to get some light on the question, two investigators in the University of Rome, Dr. Sante de Sanctis and D. U. Neyroz, conducted a series of experiments which extended through six months. Nine different persons, four of whom were thoroughly healthy and five of whom had diseased nervous systems, were the subjects of these tests. The general plan of procedure was to wait until after they had fallen asleep and then employ uniform means to awaken them. For this purpose an instrument was used called an esthesiometer. It was made up of a blunt point that might be pressed against the skin, a spiral spring and a carefully graduated scale which showed the degrees of pressure used. The point was applied gently to the sleeper's left temple, and pressed until he awoke, then the scale was examined and notes were made of the hour and minute and of the scale reading. The same person was not awakened more than once or twice a night, but the experiments were so timed that in the course of a few months they covered the whole eight-hour period during which sleep lasted, at intervals of ten or fifteen minutes, several times over.

These data, having been tabulated, show that the soundest sleep in the four healthy subjects occurred between an hour and a quarter and an hour and a half after dropping off. Unconsciousness rapidly and almost steadily increased during that period, and then in the next quarter or half hour diminished greatly. Thereafter surprising oscillations were detected. On the average, though, the stages of lightest sleep occurred about four and a half and again five and a half hours after the beginning. A short, low, secondary maximum of intensity followed in the next hour and a half or two hours. From this point the decline was rapid to the final awakening. In epileptics and paralytics very much the same state of things was observed, except that they slept more profoundly than the healthy subjects, and in one person the unconsciousness at the end of fifteen minutes was almost as marked as at an hour and a half.

London's Pot-Boilers.

There are men in London to-day, says an English paper, who, in preference to starving, are glad enough to turn out oil paintings at the ridiculous remuneration of fourpence each, for which work they find a steady demand. The work of course, has to be executed with extreme dexterity, or the artist would realize but a poor living, but some smart men, aided by one or two deft assistants, can complete from 200 to 300 of these "pictures" in a week, though they have to toil early and late to accomplish their arduous task. When a big order comes in for a gross of oil paintings, to be finished within a specified period for a wholesale firm, the method of work is usually as follows: Along the walls of the apartment where the artists work are stretched so many lengths, according to the size of the pictures ordered. Then the work is equally divided among the artist and his colleagues, each man being responsible for one part of every picture. One will paint the trees, another the sky, a third will put in a bit of sea or lake, and a fourth will add a few figures to impart animation to the scene. Each man selects the particular line in which he can do his best and quickest work, and all labor with a strict eye to time and business. In one studio devoted to the fourpenny oil paintings, there are half a dozen girls who work eighty hours a week, and these earn only from twelve to fifteen shillings each. They work for a big wholesale house on the Continent, and their specialty is the showy little landscape or marine paintings so familiar to those who patronize the itinerant auctioneer or the cheap house furnisher. Incredible though it may seem, there are some sweating firms who expect the artist to find his or her own canvas and colors, and then to turn out oil paintings at a fourpence apiece! But the better class dealers provide the materials or make an allowance for the extra cost.

THIS WILL REMIND YOU that the pain of strains, bruises and sprain, common incidents of active out-door life is drawn from aching bodies by Perry Davis' Painkiller, as a magnet draws bits of iron from sand.

CONVINCED AND RESTORED.

A Story that illustrates the Advantage of Reading and Being Guided by Newspaper Advertisements.

LOWER WINDSOR, N. B. August 15.—(Special.) "I want to say that I believe that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the right medicine for Kidney Trouble." This is the declaration of Mr. T. H. Belyea, postmaster of this place, who for a long time was the victim of a very severe case of this painful disease. Mr. Belyea reads the newspapers and after he has tried plasters, oils and liniments and all kinds of external remedies as well as doctors' treatments, with no good results, as he began reading the testimonials of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He says:—

"This remedy was so highly recommended for Kidney Trouble that after reading some testimonials I concluded to try them for a short time, but I must admit that having tried so many things and failed to obtain a cure, I had but little faith that Dodd's Kidney Pills or anything else could or would help me.

"However, I did not use them long before I found out that they were all and more than was claimed for them. "I used to have very bad spells which of late years become so frequent and so severe that I was almost laid up. "I received more benefit from Dodd's Kidney Pills than from any other medicine I have ever used and they certainly made a complete cure of my case. "I feel as well as ever I did and have not the slightest trace of the Kidney Trouble that bothered me for so many years."

Mr. Belyea is not the first skeptical man that has been convinced by experience of the medicine value of Dodd's Kidney Pills.
