

Special Notice

Having purchased from Mr. F. J. Hornsby the stock and good will of his books and Stationery Business in the Morris Block, we will continue the business in its various branches, selling at lowest prices for cash only, Miss B. M. Hornsby, who has managed the business in the past, will be in charge of the store, and will be pleased to attend to all old customers and many new ones.

A choice new stock of Wall Papers will be at once put on sale, and all departments of the business will be kept well stocked. A well supplied news stand will be a special feature of the business. The store will be known as "The Bazaar Bookstore."

An exchange says: The Standard Oil monopoly will soon be among Japan's modern innovations. The recent discovery of new oil fields in the Province of Echigo has given a great stimulus to the industry. The daily production of petroleum in Japan is divided among the different oil fields as follows:—Nagamine and Kazada (new fields), 2,400 bbls.; Nagaoka and Mitsui (the eastern field), 1,000 bbls., and minor fields in other provinces, 600 bbls., making a total of 4,000 bbls. Japan consumes annually about 60,000,000 gallons of refined oils, while the domestic refineries produce about 20,000,000 gallons, or one-third of the total demand. This proportion however, shows a great advance of the industry if compared with that of a year ago, which was then 1 to 10 for domestic and imported oils. Soon after the discovery of the new oil fields more than 70 producing and 30 refining companies were started in Kashiwazaki, the city nearest to the field. Several drilling companies were also organized, which put down oil wells by contract for the oil well-owners, which is the first time such an organization has appeared in Japan. The materials and machinery necessary for carrying on the industry have been purchased from the United States this year for several hundred wells. New refineries have been built, and the refining capacity is now fully up to the production.

The latest issue of the Chicago Tribune says that E. M. Hopkins of New York is in London to sell coal. He says millions of tons of American coal are lying ready for the European consumer, and he has sent a circular to London dealers to the effect that he is ready to deliver 2,000,000 tons a month next year, placed on board boats at Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Newport News, for $2.50 a ton. Hopkins claims that English coal operators are buying in connection with a syndicate thousands of acres of coal land in the United States. He also asserts that representatives of two foreign Governments called on him recently and agreed to take a million tons of American coal if the boats to transport it can be secured. In the meantime the English coal ring continues to raise prices. Yesterday's advance was 25 cents for forge coal and 36 cents for household use. Any decrease in the price of coal will be learned with interest by the citizens of this Province who are buying and paying for coal during coming winter.

The competition in gun manufacture still goes on. It has been officially announced that the largest torpedo gun ever built has been successfully tested at the Bethlehem Steel Company's proving grounds. It is intended for American coast defences. The inventor claims that it will throw an aerial torpedo shell 15 miles if necessary, and that will be effective whether it strikes an object at that or a shorter distance, which will demolish the strongest battleship afloat. Gun cotton will be used in the charges. The gun is built up 44 feet long, weighs 59 tons and has a fine rifling for 36 feet of the barrel.

Citizens who will have to pay a high price for food supply during the coming winter will be pleased to learn that according to the National Apple Shippers' Association the crop of apples this year in the United States, Canada, and Nova Scotia will be the largest of any crop in the history of the country. It is estimated it will be from 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 barrels. The largest crop heretofore known was that of 1896 amounting to 70,000,000 barrels.

BY THE JACQUES CARTIER.

For a pleasant sail on a fine afternoon we commend the trip by the Jacques Cartier to Victoria. Down the harbor you go, passing little sail-craft on the way, and as you turn to look on the receding city you are compelled to think that this is about the best view you ever had of it. And how broad, expansive and sheltered is our beautiful harbor. Here a navy might ride at anchor. To east and west and north and south are gleaming silver lanes amid the green of fertile fields and full-foliated trees, three of these lines being tributary rivers, and the fourth our passage to the world-embracing ocean. These natural features of use and beauty, these channels for commerce and this broad and sheltered haven are old compared with all the work of man beside them. They were made in nature's morning. The city is but of yesterday. Nay more. There would, purchase have been no city here but for this harbor.

So we see that before the first English pioneer, before the first French settler, before the first Indian canoe had clift these waters, now shimmering in the afternoon sunlight, the Great Architect had upheaved these sloping hills, hollowed this basin, shaped the harbor's entrance and the river channels east and west and north. All was made ready for thousands of years before, knowing that in the fulness of time of our race would come and build the city. There was a design behind it all. It is fitting therefore that among the puny works of men in the town the spires of temples erected in praise of the Creator should rise highest toward the sky as they do. The harbor was before the city, and may long survive it. Cities built by men are perishable Ninevah and Babylon have become heaps, but the still Enphrates rolls on to the sea as it did in the days of Nebuchadnezzar, and for thousands of years before his day.

Already we are turning to pass out of the harbor. We have only time for a brief glance eastward to where our million dollar bridge will presently span the East River. It will form a new and striking feature of this fair scene in the years to come. It will be useful too, another channel for the trade and travel of the future, and for the pleasure and conven-

J. H. Bell NOTICE

ROCKY POINT FERRY.

On and after Monday, Sept. 17th, the Steamer Elfin will make her last trip from Charlottetown at 6 p. m. and 6:30 from Rocky Point, a 150 cent discount 3 o'clock trip Sunday afternoon. Sept 13 and 20 and 27 15th lence of men that are and of generations to come. We must have roads and bridges, railways and railway bridges. These are among the things that distinguish the white man from the Indian. There are some who tell us that we do not need this costly structure, but such persons are a small and diminishing number. It will not do to shape the destinies of Charlottetown after the manner and methods of the copper-colored basket-makers of Rocky Point. Nature when she shaped our harbor looked beyond the days of canoes.

Past the Block House and Keppock, rounding St. Peter's Island, and out into the rolling billows of the Straits. Just a few of our passengers are sea-sick for a time and the sea-sick individual thinks himself of all men most miserable. But the many are not so, and enjoy the tossing motion of the sparkling waves. So we glide along, in full view of the fair shores of Argyle and DeSable the eye refreshed with the view of smiling homesteads, the brown of shorn harvest fields, and deep green of the aftermath, the luxuriant turnips on the tree-clad hills. As the sun sinks toward the horizon we glide into the calm waters of Victoria, and thence speed on to our rest in the hospitable shelter of Pleasant View—now closed for the season to the tourist, by special grace still open to the writer of this hasty sketch. Of which more hereafter.

It might be reasonable to enquire when the city will be enough off to refuse citizens the use of its squares for pasturing purposes.

The Halifax Exhibition opens to-day. The Charlottetown Exhibition will open next Tuesday week, the 25th inst. Our people should encourage home industry and attend their own Exhibition in large numbers. Four such days as the 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th inst., are expected to be rarely seen here. Tuesday, opening day; Wednesday and Thursday Exhibition in full blast and horse races on the Race grounds.
