Terrific Confusion
 Five hundred guards hastily took up positions and the rest of the garrison turned out. There was a terrible lot of confusion and for several hours the Germans did not know what was happening. The confusion was so great that the firing but there was no sort of firing in the town. Guns on the headlands on either side of the beach were in action and they seemed to be the worst thing for the Canadians as they covered the beach.

The major said he saw several Canadian tanks moving on the western side of the Esplanade and one got to the town, half of which is behind the Casino. The major said he talked to five Canadians near the Church of St. Remy during the fight there and they gave him cigarettes. Canadian tanks also got into the streets of Dieppe further east toward the harbor. George Guibon, president of the Dieppe Historical Society, agreed with the mayor that the raid was a surprise.

"If more troops had been landed late in the morning when the raid was first made, it could have gone far further east toward the harbor of Dieppe. The Germans were ready to quit, I think," he said. I believe their losses in dead and wounded were just as high as the Canadians. If not higher. And the Germans were behind walls and in fortified houses. It took great courage to attack them."

An American woman in Dieppe whose name cannot be disclosed because she is not over 16, said that the afternoon that German reinforcements began coming up the roads from Rouen and Amiens.

After the raid the Germans marched lines of Canadian prisoners through the streets in their bare feet. Many of the Canadians were almost naked and French people threw them blankets and shoes. Any who did were either struck by the German guards or later arrested.

People Of Dieppe Say 1942 Raid Was Surprise

Wesman Talks To Civilians Who Saw Famous Attack By Canadians.

By Ross Munro
 The Germans buried their own dead, but the people of Dieppe and the Canadians in the centre of the town.
 As a result of the Dieppe raid the Germans launched an intensive program of defence along the Dieppe sector. Mr. Guibon told me.
 Guns in casements covered the approach from the sea completely. This was without doubt genuine Atlantic Wall construction and the Germans made it very difficult for any guns inland from Dieppe as well. They could not defend Dieppe if an attack was made from the south, as the 2nd Canadian Division attacked. The result was that the whole position had to be abandoned without a shot being fired.

Montague

At the close of the regular meeting on Thursday evening, August 10th, the members of Acme Rebekah Lodge, a special feature of the evening was the presentation of a wedding gift to Mr. and Mrs. Shaw by Mrs. D. MacLaren. On behalf of the members, Mrs. W. Watt, Mrs. J. Dewis, Mrs. J. Gaudet, and also a wedding gift to Mrs. John Dewis by Miss Ruth MacGregor, Mrs. H. Yickerson reading the address. Both guests of honour graciously thanked the brothers and sisters of Acme for the gifts and good wishes.

A Big Mystery
 This is one of the big mysteries of the Dieppe raid, and although information available from people here is not the final word, these people insist that the Germans were not making all defenses in anticipation of a sea-borne attack. The new mayor of Dieppe, who is a member of the Underground movement, says that he saw them near the Esplanade during the raid, shook his head emphatically when asked why he had not been in advance of the attack. He said a normal guard of 100 soldiers was maintained every night along the Esplanade. This consisted of a few score sentries who patrolled the sea front, with the rest in dugouts, pillboxes and fortified houses along the front.

The whole guard did not stay awake at night, but dressed and equipped in their own positions. There was no standing guard at Pourville, a mile west of Dieppe, where the South Saskatchewan Regiment made a successful landing, but there were guards at a mile east of Dieppe, where the Royal Canadian Regiment landed. The total garrison at Dieppe numbered about 3,000 Germans, including infantry and navy personnel. The Germans also had a local Todt Organization workers. There was no estimate of their numbers.

At the time of the attack, the town to bomb gun positions just before the pre-dawn landing and the Dieppe raid, the Germans were ready to shelter to wait for the raid to pass. Nobody had the least idea of the attack. The major said he saw several Canadian tanks moving on the western side of the Esplanade and one got to the town, half of which is behind the Casino.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

FOR THE REFUGEE
 (By A. H. Driver)

O God, the haven of the tempest-tossed,
 To which our frail boats bend the lab'ring oar,
 Our plea is for the outcast and the
 On whom Thy mercy pour.
 For all who know the bitterness of flight,
 For all who feel the winter at the door,
 O'er midnight and the darkness of the night,
 Thy comfort we implore.

For them who taste the sadness of their fare,
 And plumb the depths of human need,
 Who tread the steepness of a stranger's stair,
 For them we intercede.
 And for ourselves, to whom rise acute appeals,
 For hearts responsive to our brethren's need,
 For doors that open and for love that heals,
 Grant us there, we humbly plead.

INVASION PRAYER

"Almighty and most merciful God, Father of all mankind, lover of every life, be with us, be with the cry of Thy children in this dark hour of conflict and danger.
 Thou hast been the refuge and strength in all generations of those who put their trust in Thee.
 May it please Thee this day to draw to Thyself the hearts of those who struggle and endure to the uttermost. Have mercy on them and suffer not their faith in Thee to fail. Guide and protect them by Thy light and strength that they may be kept from evil."
 "May Thy comfort be sufficient for all who suffer pain or who wait in the agony of uncertainty.

"O righteous and omnipotent God, who, in their tragedies and conflicts, judiciously ascribes unto men and the purpose of nations, enter into this struggle with Thy storming power, that out of its anguish there may come a victory of righteousness. May there arise a new order which shall endure because in it Thy will shall be done in earth as it is in heaven. Forgive us and cleanse us, as well as those who strive against us, that we may be fit instruments of Thy purpose."
 "Unto Thy most gracious keeping we commend our loved ones and ourselves, ascribing unto Thee all praise and glory, through Jesus Christ, our Lord, Amen."
 Bishop Tucker, President,
 Federal Council of Churches.

To be alive in this year of our Lord, 1944, which Dr. John Haynes Holmes refers to as the very crossroads of human destiny, permits each of us to be an active member of a generation which is going to determine the destiny of humanity for a thousand years to come.
 The world is one! We cannot live apart.

To the earth's remotest races we are kin.
 God made the generations of one blood, Man's separation is a sign of sin.

What though we read the secret of the stars,
 Or from the vibrant ether pluck a song,
 Can this for all man's tyranny avail
 While we weep, and wait,
 And suffer long?

Are we still of the opinion that there are some areas in which Christian principles will not work?
 Can we still believe that Jesus Christ was perfectly sincere and believed implicitly "whatsoever a man saith that shall be also repleted." This is the crisis in the history of mankinding. The new skills we wmankinding. The new skills we have acquired, the new insights into world affairs, the added responsibilities we have assumed in the world's industrial and political structure should provide the power, for us, to free the world from building of the brave new world, which Lady Beveridge says must provide freedom from war, from pride, ignorance, and and squander. Our problem is to find the means to bring about these freedoms and no small gain in that direction will be made when the nations bow their heads in common acknowledgment that the "earth is the Lord's, including the coal, oil, gold, rubber, diamonds, wheat, fruit and vegetables. Miss Charlotte Whitton expressed this thought well in her "Dawn of Ampler Life" in these words—"The hope of continuous, gainful occupation at a decent level of security for Canadian people seems predicated upon the integration of our life in an international pattern and in a part-

Control movement of legs and hands is partially put to sleep by the alcohol affecting the brain. The stagger is first in the grain which is slow to command the legs.

1. Why does a drunken man stagger?
 Because he does not hear sounds clearly, not even his own voice. The brain is not translating clearly the impressions received from the senses.

2. If the sense of hearing is dulled, is the sense of sight also affected by beverage alcohol?
 Yes. The optic nerves are numbed, and the power to judge distance ahead, or behind is lessened. The field of vision is also diminished, and some drivers, suffer from color blindness. Other see double. Thus a couple of beers may rob a capable driver of his normal vision.

3. Why does a drunk man stagger?
 Because the middle brain which controls movement of legs and hands is partially put to sleep by the alcohol affecting the brain. The stagger is first in the grain which is slow to command the legs.
