Abominable Trafficking in Liquor. Inspector Duncan, at another stage of his report, refers again to alleged shipment of liquor to government officials. He says: At this point I would like to make an observation with regard to liquor which found its way from the King's warehouse into the possession of many of these government officials. In this abominable trafficking in liquor by high officials of the government, let me say this grave suspicion points to their receiving liquor stolen from the King's warehouse, but if they did not receive that, then they certainly received regulation and legal samples which to one's mind is about as serious; knowing very well that it was against the law to receive samples of any kind. I would ask you sir, what excuse or defence can the high officials offer in the face of their own regulations. The report includes a complaint from H. Provencher to the Deputy Minister of Customs that R. P. Clerk, Inspector of Customs, of the port of Montreal was "shipping out of the province of Quebec a large quantity of liquor through W. F. Wilson, chief preventive officer, to Hon. Jacques Bureau, former Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, and M. J. Larochelle, a member of the Civil Service Commission. "I would particularly draw your attention to page 278 of Inspector Clerk's sworn testimony," says the report, "After a great deal of hedging he finally had to admit that the liquor was for these gentlemen."

Twenty-five years ago today Mr. J. A. S. Bayer came from Halifax to Charlottetown to take over the Westlake Bros. Studio which was then situated in the Prowse Block.

For three years it was carried on under the name of Gauvin & Gentzel & Co., with Mr. Bayer as Manager and then Mr. Bayer bought out the other interests, the name being changed to The Bayer Photo Studio. In 1923 a new grand floor studio was built at 163 Great George Street, one of the most artistic and attractive buildings in the City. Through perseverance and strict attention to business, Mr. Bayer has now one of the largest and best equipped Studios in Eastern Canada. He has also the distinct honor of having won one gold, three silver and seven bronze medals for his work in Dominion wide exhibits.

Abominable Trafficking in Liquor. Inspector Duncan, at another stage of his report, refers again to alleged shipment of liquor to government officials. He says: At this point I would like to make an observation with regard to liquor which found its way from the King's warehouse into the possession of many of these government officials. In this abominable trafficking in liquor by high officials of the government, let me say this grave suspicion points to their receiving liquor stolen from the King's warehouse, but if they did not receive that, then they certainly received regulation and legal samples which to one's mind is about as serious; knowing very well that it was against the law to receive samples of any kind. I would ask you sir, what excuse or defence can the high officials offer in the face of their own regulations. The report includes a complaint from H. Provencher to the Deputy Minister of Customs that R. P. Clerk, Inspector of Customs, of the port of Montreal was "shipping out of the province of Quebec a large quantity of liquor through W. F. Wilson, chief preventive officer, to Hon. Jacques Bureau, former Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, and M. J. Larochelle, a member of the Civil Service Commission.
