

PAINS IN BACK AND SIDES

Ended by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fuslier, Sask.—"For two or three days every so often I would have such pains in my back and sides that I could not do anything—could not even lie quietly in bed, and my head ached, too. I was this way about three years, but was worse after I was married. I was on a farm with not a house nearer than five miles and there was not a person to advise me, as my folks live in Manitoba. My sister-in-law told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it told me to try it. I took her advice and have been thankful for it ever since. After taking the medicine for three months I can say it has helped me a lot and I am doing fine. I am glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound to others and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. HELEN BALANOFF, Fuslier, Saskatchewan.

Often some slight trouble will cause a general ailment of the system. Such symptoms as nervousness, painful twinges, irregular menstruation, and headache indicate some form of female weakness. Women so bothered should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. This dependable medicine has helped thousands of women and it is reasonable to expect that it will help you. Try it today. Your druggist sells this medicine.

The Scarlet Cloak

"Then maybe she'll change her mind and live with us in her own Victorian suite, rather than do as she threatens now and go out into the wide, wide world, far away from York lovingly!" So Pandora Haste had threatened to leave her adored Ken and his wife!

And Rawdon Wells had been Italian and "primitive," and his eyes had been "terrible" when Eve had broken the news to him of her engagement to his friend, Kennedy Haste!

But Ely was the letter concerning the unnamed "idiot" which interested Dagon most.

"Are you willing to tell me who is this man Miss Carroll referred to?" he asked, pointing out the passage to Haste.

Ken read the words and flushed up to the roots of his brown hair. "Ask me something else," he said. "I can't tell you that."

"Do you mean you can't—or you won't?"

"I'm afraid I've forgotten that particular one. There were—so many chaps who fell in love with Miss Carroll," Ken stammered.

Dagon knew that he had not forgotten; and Haste probably knew that he knew. But the detective let the subject drop. Instead, he said, "Just now you gave me permission to ask you something else. Will I take you at your word. We're Miss Haste's own thing room. You tell me that in the wardrobe there are souvenirs of the time when she first came to you. Will you let me see those things?"

Haste stared. "But what possible connection can they have with this case?"

"They may have more than you think," said Dagon.

Haste took back the letters hurriedly, as if he feared more questions, and the—glad of the change of subject—found the key of the cupboard in a drawer of the secretary above, where no doubt he had seen Pan place it. This new affair had little interest for him. He could not conceive it possible that the souvenirs of Pandora's babyhood should have the remotest connection with the disappearance of Eve Carroll. His glowing opinion of Dagon's talent paled slightly because of the detective's request. But there was no reason for refusing, so Ken rather indifferently unlocked and threw open the cupboard doors.

"I suppose you've heard the whole story," he said, "about the box being left at our door, and all that. The box—I remember it quite distinctly—was like a boy's school bag, rather small. It was thrown away by our servants. I suppose; but everything in it was kept; and there's the lot in that doll's trunk which was one of the great treasures of Pan's childhood."

"Allow me!" exclaimed the detective and stooping took from the one shelf in the cupboard a miniature trunk of the type that resemble the fashionable traveling boxes of a Paris maker. It was not heavy, though it was of a good size, two feet long by one in height perhaps, and Dagon placed it on a table. It was unlocked, but thinking of the girl he hesitated to lift the lid, and Haste impatiently did so.

A delicious perfume of peppermint rose to the nostrils of the two young men. And though Haste had moods of fiercely doubting his adopted sister, his heart melted as he looked at her precious guarded treasures of the past. The trunk had a tray, in which reposed a doll which had been a present from him on one of Pan's birthdays. It had eyes which opened and shut, real eyelashes and curly hair which could be brushed. Pan had named the doll after him and herself: "Pandora Kennedy." It lay on a neat pile of its wardrobe, made by the child's own hands, with here and there a ribbon bag of peppermint. Ken removed the tray, and Dagon's eager eyes saw first a silky blanket striped with red, white and green.

"There! the poor little kid was wrapped in those when we found her!" Haste said. "I suppose the rest of the things are underneath. Examine them as much as you like."

The dark face of the Canadian had flushed at the sight of the silk blanket; but he did not notice its change of color. He was thinking of Eve, and wondering why the detective had said so little about the letters which, after all, he had

Germers In the Nose
Cause that Cold

Head colds are caused by germs in the membranes. Combat those germs locally. Don't wait the slow results of internal remedies.

Apply Ely's Cream Balm in the nostrils and breathe it. Force the antiseptic fumes through the air passages. The head is cleared at once, the misery is ended. The cold soon departs.

Don't suffer another hour from that stuffiness. Ask your druggist for a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Your head will be as clear as a bell.

Colds

In the chest—Apply Red Pepper at once

Not a plaster, not mustard, Not an old-time method. The modern way is Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing else applies such concentrated, such penetrating heat. And heat that doesn't hurt. The old ways can't compare.

Rub it on the chest where congestion exists. A cold is congestion, you know. At once you feel the tingling, penetrating heat. Circulation starts, congestion is relieved. And soon you will feel the cold loosen.

This is just the age-old method of dealing with a cold, perfected by modern science. Red pepper, applied in this way, does what old ways could not do. Use it once and you will use it always. The difference will quickly show.

But have it ready—get it now. Every hour saved at the start of a cold may save many hours of trouble. Be ready to loosen it at once.

LETTER OF SYMPATHY

To Mr. Otis Power, Len Valley, P. E. I.
Dear Brother,

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from your home by death your dearly beloved father, we the officers and members of Revere Division, No. 201 Sons of Temperance desire to extend to you our deepest sympathy in your sad bereavement. Words cannot comfort or we would pour them forth, but we must earnestly pray that you and the remaining members of the family may be comforted and the memory of him who is gone, may be a source of blessing to you who mourn. Those who have passed away are now in the better land and let us hope we shall meet them in the morning. These few words are a poor consolation, but we commend you to the Great Physician who can comfort you in such a way as will enable you to say, He doeth all things well. Submitted in L. P. and F.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. ROBERT CHARLES ACORN

It is with deep regret we have to announce the death of Robert Charles Acorn whose sad and sudden death took place at his home in Surrey on Jan. 29th. Deceased was only sick a few days and much sympathy is felt for his mother and sisters as this is the second bereavement in the family within four months. Last Fall the husband and father was called away.

He leaves to mourn his sorrowing mother also four sisters, namely: Mrs Nicholson, Mt. Vernon; Mrs Leman Morrow, Belle River; Mrs Willie Ross, Elm Road and Lizzie at home, and a host of relatives besides.

MRS. M. J. MCPHERSON

Mrs. Malcolm J. McPherson of Kinross died after a lingering illness on Wednesday afternoon the 11th instant. A beloved friend, a faithful Christian and a warm supporter of the Church of which she had long been a member she will be very much missed in the Orwell congregation. She is survived by her husband and one son, Alexander at home; and by a daughter, Mrs. Alexander Barrett and a son John, who are both in Ottawa and who could not return for the funeral. Mrs. John McLeod of Orwell Cove is her only surviving sister and here is one brother, John McPherson, now in the United States. A large number of friends attended the services at the house and at the Orwell Head Church on Friday afternoon, the service being conducted by the minister, Mr. Grant and the choir of the congregation.

But Can Tell of Genuine Relief by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Quebec man tells how quickly they built him up and brought him back to perfect health.

(Special)—That there is not a village or postoffice in Canada that cannot provide a case of genuine relief by Dodd's Kidney Pills has been shown again and again. In this little village many people bear grateful testimony to the wonderful healing powers of this simple remedy. Mr. Philippe Gagnon is one of these.

"Your pills are very good," Mr. Gagnon states, "I have suffered a long time with kidney trouble. Six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me so much good that I intend continuing the treatment until I am completely relieved of my trouble. I tell all my friends who suffer with kidney trouble to take them. Dodd's Kidney Pills simply strengthen and heal the kidneys. The work of the kidneys is to strain all the waste matter out of the blood. If the kidneys are out of order they fail to do their work, and the waste matter remains in the blood, causing serious diseases.

The young princess had never seen a spinning wheel before. She looked at it curiously. Since she had never heard the story of the terrible fate that would overtake her if she touched a spinning wheel, she wasn't afraid of it at all. And she never dreamed that the old woman was the wicked fairy in disguise.

"Show me how that queer thing works, please," begged the princess. The old woman showed her, and then the princess asked to be allowed to try to run it herself.

The old woman agreed to let her. As soon as she touched the spindle she jumped up crying: "Ouch! I've pricked my finger!" Then she fell to the floor as though she were dead.

(Color the spinning wheel below. Now watch for more of the story of the Sleeping Beauty tomorrow. Find out the queer thing that happens to the rest of the people in the castle.)
