Morton Dowey Is Great In "Lucky In Love"

Apparently destined to achieve big things on the dialogue and singing screen, Morton Dowey, Broadway's golden-voiced tenor who scored so emphatically as Tommy O'Day in "Mother's Boy," is seen to excellent advantage in his second Pathe star dialogue picture, "Lucky in Love," which is now playing at the Prince Edward theatre.

Mr. Dowey was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and from his earliest infancy, he has been known as a singer with a superb voice which fit time developed into a tenor often compared to John McCormack's. He was for many years identified with Paul Whiteman's famous musical organization as soloist. He was in Europe for several years and on his return in October, 1928, he was given his first dialogue and singing role in "Syncopation." This was followed by his appearance in a stellar role in "Mother's Boy," and in "Lucky in Love" he has the part of an Irish stable boy, whose golden voice wins the love of Lady Mary Cardigan, an Irish beauty.

The story written by Gene Markey, affords Mr. Dowey numerous opportunities for the display of his mimitic and vocal talent. There is plenty of drama, comedy and fine melody. Betty Lawford plays opposite the star and the featured players, all stage artists of distinction, include Colin-Keith Johnston, Halliwell Hobbes, J. M. Kerrigan and Mackenzie Ward. In the supporting cast also are such players as Eddie O'Connor, Louis Sorin, Edward McNamara, Elizabeth Murray, Tyrrell Davis, Richard Taber and Mary Murray.

Hardy and Laurel in the uproarious talking film "Night Owls" keeps the house in roars of laughter. Taken altogether this is a well worth while week end bill. Don't miss it.

"Come Across" A Fine Film

Modern youth's thirst for adventure finds vivid expression in "Come Across," which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday. The story deals with the adventures of Lina Basquette, in the role of a Long Island society girl, when she invades the haunts of crime as a night club entertainer to satisfy her curiosity as to how the other half lives.

She is rescued from a police raid by a young gangster, with whom, of course, she promptly proceeds to fall in love. A band of criminals crush her in a confidence game, using her own home as their headquarters.

How she checkmates them with a daring counterplot and how startling circumstances enable her to win the man of her heart, furnish material for the development of an unusually entertaining and exciting picture.

"Come Across" is not to be classed with the usual run of gangster pictures. Its setting and atmosphere are only incidental to strong characterization and dramatic plot.

Too often picture makers forget that the first and last, the play is the thing, and that audiences can be kept interested only by a strong story and well developed characters. These facts have been kept foremost in mind in the making of "Come Across." As a result, it has action and living people.

As Mary Houston, the society girl, Miss Basquette gives one of the most skillful and animated interpretations of her career. She literally threw herself into her role, which, incidentally, gave her an exceptional opportunity to display her dancing ability and her appalling speaking voice.
