Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

A VITAL DIFFERENCE

Most players do not seem to realize that after a one-notrump opening, responses do not carry the same meanings or messages as in the case of an opening suit bid.

North had not trouble in making his three-club contract, but this was no cause for satisfaction, inasmuch as exactly the same tricks could have been cashed at notrump.

QUICKIES

"Did you get yours with a Guardian Want Ad, too?"

South was not conventionally or even logically forcing; second, South's holding had constituted an absolute minimum one notrump, and therefore he could not be blamed for feeling that a rebid might entail great risk.

The best way to prove that the three-club bid cannot well be used as a true force is to ask what North would have done over two spades if he had held six clubs headed by Q-1 with the heart or diamond king, or even with both of those cards.

Before John Masefield became poet laureate of England, he worked in a New York bakery, a livery stable and a carpet factory.
