The Kilt's Vogue

Perhaps it would be well to interpret not too liberally the report of a revival of the kilt in Scotland.

Lived On Salmon For Two Months

MONTREAL, Jan. 14.—Living on a daily diet of salmon and potatoes, unadorned by such vitamins as milk, fruit or green vegetables, in a colony consisting of two families, the mothers of which were sisters, teaching the children not only the three R's but also how to play with a ball, and the art of singing, also doing pioneer work in introducing applause, was the experience of Miss Jean Graham during the past summer.

Miss Graham, who addressed the Nain Corneli Chapter, I. O. D. E. described her volunteer teaching experience at the tiny spot on the Canadian Labrador coast called Rocky Bay. The Quebec Provincial Chapter makes a grant towards the travelling expenses of teachers doing volunteer educational work in Labrador.

During the two months she was at Rocky Bay, Miss Graham received mail from home only twice, for there is no mail boat service. The two families, with one of which she stayed consisted of twelve persons, six children composing her educational establishment, classes of which were held in one of the homes. None of these youngsters had ever been to school, and only one could read a little. There was, of course, no equipment. Miss Graham and pupils sat around a home made table for lessons, one little girl having the special distinction of using the family sewing machine as a desk.

Games were an entirely new idea to the children, and the ground did not lend itself to sports, being rocky and lacking level places.

Salmon fishing is the only industry at this spot, which is at the mouth of a river, although cod is the usual product of the Labrador coast.

Covered With Bolls on Arms, Back and Neck

Miss Margaret Higgins, Dymont, Ont., writes: "I was covered with bolls on my arms, face and neck. I used plasters and other remedies with no results. My attention was drawn to Burdock Blood Bitters, so I decided to get a bottle. The results were marvellous, as in no time the bolls had completely disappeared, and my skin was clearer and fresher than ever."

Political Situation a Barrier "If ever primitive human remains are to be found in Mongolia," he said, "it is in this region where they will be discovered."

EMERALD PERSONALS.—Mr. Douglas Murphy, teacher in Valley School, Iona section, has returned to again take up his duties, after spending the holidays at his home in Emerald.—Mr. Victor McPhee, after living in Boston for a number of years, and finding employment very dull, returned to the Island a month ago, and engaged with Mr. Fyfe in his potato warehouse.—The bad condition of the roads and frosty weather have prohibited farmers from bringing their potatoes to market and therefore only a few cars have went out from this centre of late.

Miss Elizabeth and Mr. Lawrence Emerson, of Dover Fox Craft, Maine, arrived in Charlottetown on Thursday night, called by the serious illness of their uncle, Mr. John J. McDonald, of Cherry Valley.

On Tuesday evening Carvell Brothers bowling teams met at the Y. M. C. A. alleys and a keen and exciting game followed. The "Red Ovals" quickly dispelled any hopes of winning, held by the "Hot Dogs" and at the end of the third game showed a very substantial lead.

In fairness to the "Weiners" it should be mentioned that Neil MacKenzie, their star bowler, was suffering from a severe cold, and did not roll his usual brilliant game.

On the other hand, all members of the "Ovals" team were rolling in top form. Howatt, however was in rare shape, and his machine gun action, and accuracy were the envy of all the bowlers present.

These same teams meet again next Tuesday evening, and it is expected that after this game the "Hot Dogs" will play under a different name. "Billy" Down says the "Hot" part of their name should at least be dropped.

At the request of Ray Cudmore the scores of the game are not given.

SURE FIRST MAN LIVED IN GOBI DESERT

Found Strata in Mongolia "Young Enough" To Bear Fossils, Explorer Reports—Faced Wolves And Bandits.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, who for nearly ten years has searched in the Gobi Desert for the Adam of the human race, reported yesterday in the members room of the American Museum of Natural History on the results of that institution's 1930 Central Asiatic Expedition.

He told of the dried up inland sea and the bones of the twenty-five shovel toothed mastodons which he had discovered. Sitting in the desert of Gobi, he had pictured that time, millions of years earlier when the desert was a lake and mastodons had wandered in search of water plants into a sort of bog or quicksand and had died.

As there are no caves in Mongolia he hopes some day to find the bones of that early man, if not in the dried-up shape, then in one of the prehistoric streams which emptied into that phantom lake.

Animal 32,000,000 Years Old

He told of finding evidence of a remarkable hyena-like animal by far the largest of the type known as the Amblypoda, of the genus Coryphodon, a mammal of great evolutionary importance. While that animal died in Europe and America about 40,000,000 years ago, he said, it lived on in Asia for some 8,000,000 years. By comparing this 32,000,000 year old animal with the 40,000,000 year old European animal he hopes to learn much of what happened to him in an evolutionary way during the extra 2,000,000 years.

Dr. Andrews also talked of wolves, windstorms and brigands. A Mongol warned MacKenzie Young and him one day as they were returning across the desert that they had better not continue on. There were thirty bandits near by. In telling of his decision to continue on, Dr. Andrews said:

"After all, there were only thirty bandits, and there were two of us." They had "the luck of the devil" and passed unharmed. He told at least twenty amazing tales of like nature.

Dr. Andrews will remain in this country for about three months Dr. George H. Sherwood, director of the museum, praised Dr. Andrews' management of the expedition.

Jackson and his wife were doing a little fly hunting about the house. How many have you caught? she asked after a while.

Six, replied her husband; three males and three females. How absurd! his wife sniffed. How could you tell if they were males or females?

Easy, my dear, he retorted. Three were on the sugar and three were on the mirror.

Visit Of Aged Turk To States Rather Expensive

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Affairs of Zaro Agha, the old Turk, are in the red. So far he's a total loss of $8,000.

He came here months ago from Constantinople to stimulate the interest of science in his longevity, improve Turko-American relations and pick a few shekels from the golden bushes.

The news films made him pose, specialists x-rayed him and the public rubbered its fill—all without admission. That for a man whose passport shows him to be 156 years old.

"I am the man who has to pay the $8,000," says Ash Redvan, his manager. "But I am charging it up to improved Turko-American relations and forgetting it."

Agha is writing his memoirs, but the book isn't coming along very fast, says Redvan, what with Agha taking time out for heavy meals and dashing off to the movies. He is crazy about pie and candy.

He will return to Turkey as soon as his writing is finished.

London Is Centre For Art Buyers

ESTIMATED ART VALUED AT 60 MILLION STERLING SENT TO U. S.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—There is no fear at present of London losing its reputation as a centre for the sale by auction of fine art treasures, according to competent authority. The sale-room turnover of New York season has been estimated to amount roughly to two million sterling. The figures for London for the same period is calculated to have been nearly three times as much, and one firm alone in London is believed to have handled almost as much as the combined total of the New York houses.

It is estimated that British works of art to the value of 60 million sterling have gone out of England into America during the last 10 years. Nevertheless it is confidently asserted that this represents only a fraction of the art treasures of this country. England is likened to the position of Italy in the 18th and 19th centuries, when Italy was ransacked of her treasures by other countries. Yet, Italy still possesses more of her own works of art than the rest of the world put together. Proof of this was furnished by the Italian Exhibition held at the Royal Academy last summer.

Early in the New Year we are to have at the Royal Academy a wonderful exhibition of the best Persian art. The exhibition will bring together the most wonderful collection of carpets ever assembled. Some of them will display a quality of weaving which is absolutely unknown in Europe.

Scouts Will Form Guard Of Honor

ST. JOHN N. B. Jan. 14.—Practice drill for the guard of honor, composed of Boy Scouts from the various Saint John troops, which will greet their Chief Scout, Lord Willingdon and Lady Willingdon, on Friday arrival at the Union Depot, Friday afternoon, was held in the local Armory last night.

Their Excellencies will leave Saint John for England, en route to India, where Lord and Lady Willingdon will assume his duties as recently appointed Viceroy of that country.

The Scouts, 50 in number, will be in charge of Eli Boyaner, District Commissioner.

Lord Willingdon has been active in scouting, Mr. Boyaner said, in an interview last evening, having taken a keen interest in the movement as Chief Scout of Canada, during his stay in the Dominion.

NEW HAVEN SCHOOL

On Monday 22nd ult. the teacher and pupils of New Haven school, held their semi annual examination, and also received a visit from their old and trusted friend Santa Claus. The day was ideal, and no time could have been more opportune. The school was beautifully decorated, and this together with a full attendance of bright, intelligent children, added to its success.

The number of rate payers present was remarkable, as almost every home in the district was represented thereby showing that the residents of New Haven understand the school to be the greatest asset of the Community. The teacher, Miss Lucy Coady, examined the classes, and it was very gratifying to the parents to see their children's standing in the respective subjects. Next in order was a nicely filled program when each child in turn, stepped to the platform with the ease of a veteran. Whilst the concluding chorus "Santa Claus is Coming" was being sung, the jingle of bells was heard in the distance, and when the dear old man entered in his usual cheerful and good natured style, excitement was prevalent. He satisfied the cravings of their young hearts, when he unloaded the tree, and each child became the recipient of a useful present, together with confectionery. The teacher was also kindly remembered by the children. Mr. Angus McPhee, M. P., occupied the chair whilst he and Mr. Robert McPhail expressed their pleasure and satisfaction in the afternoon's proceedings. After the exchange of festive greetings, all stood to pay tribute to our gracious King. Then those present retraced their steps, satisfied that they had spent a pleasant and profitable afternoon.

KELLY'S CROSS NOTES

Miss Helen and Miss Mary Nantes, who were spending the Christmas holidays with their parents Mr and Mrs. John Nantes, of Kelly's Cross, have returned to resume their work the former a teacher in Midgell School and the latter, who is in the Charlottetown Hospital training for a nurse.

Mr. Mark Higgins, of Maplewood, has returned to his home from visiting friends in Enniscorthy.

Miss Helen Trautner of Iona, is at present spending her holidays with her parents in Maplewood.

Now that the season of festivities and holidays is over and the teachers have returned to their schools, also all others, who have been visiting friends and relatives have returned to their respective homes, we once more come back to the daily routine and irksome tasks of life. But we know that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. So it is on the basis of this principle that the Parish Priest of Kelly's Cross came to the conclusion that it would be a diversion from the daily tasks to hold an Auction Forty-five Tournament in the Hall each week. Several of these Tournaments have taken place and so far have proved very successful. Valuable prizes were given to the winners on each occasion. It would be unfair not to mention and congratulate the woman of the Catholic Women's League for the sumptuous lunch they provided each night. We only hope these social gatherings continue in the future. It is here the Rev. Clarence Poiré, who has been Parish Priest at Kelly's Cross during the past five months, deserves much credit for all he has done since coming here. He is certainly a limited and loved by all with whom he comes in contact. It is hoped of it that he will be spared to remain in Kelly's Cross for the rest of his life.

In relating the happenings of the community, there is one fact which stands out prominently and has been overlooked for some time. It is not possible for anyone who attended the Chicken Supper and bingo in Kelly's Cross Hall, November, 1930, to have so soon forgotten the wonderful supper that was served by the women of Kelly's Cross. After supper was over all were welcome to play bingo for which very valuable prizes were given to the lucky ones. To further entertain all those who came to our hall, there was a new radio installed. My greatest desire is to be again present at a social function of this kind in Kelly's Cross, because I know I shall not leave hungry, nor without having enjoyed myself to the fullest extent.—Com.
