ALSO THE HILL

by Frances Parkinson Keyes

For generations, the Farmans and their friends had drowned their sorrows on New Year's Eve in the first Jerome's potent punch. This year, Jenness said she thought it might even make them forget the war. She also thought it would be a good idea for Dexter to prepare the punch. As her mother had remarked it would give him a chance to get his hand in.

Neither of them foresaw the contingency which put a complete stranger in charge of their ancestral brew. The preparations for the party were practically completed and Jenness was upstairs changing her clothes, when someone pounded lustily on the front door with the knocker.

"Good evening," the stranger said civilly, removing his slouch hat. His face was almost blue with cold but he was grinning and his grin was likable. "Is this Mr. Daniel Farmans' house?"

"Yes," admitted Daniel.

"Are you Mr. Farmans?" inquired the persistent stranger, whose chattering teeth, Daniel now noticed, were a very fine feature.

"Yes," Daniel said again.

"Good evening, Sir. I'm Peter MacDonald," he said, waving his hand. "Perhaps you've heard your daughter, Jenness speak of me?"

"I don't know," Daniel repeated still warily. "I don't know but I have."

night to their guests and Jenness slipped one bare arm lightly through his thus bringing him still more intimately into the family circle. When the last guest had gone down the steps, Peter turned to my typewriter won't disturb you, will it, Mrs. Farmans, if I take it into the parlor and shut the door?

F. D. R. Inauguration To Be Quiet Affair

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (CP)—With the exception of a favored few, Washingtonians will take a dim view of the inauguration of President Roosevelt for a fourth term next Saturday noon.

For the first time in American history it will be what the Washington Post's Bob Albritton calls "a low-keyed inauguration."

Instead of the traditional parade down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol steps, the inauguration stands for distinguished visitors and the "rain or shine" public ceremony on the back veranda of the White House.

The president made this decision weeks ago and said it would not save him the ride up to the Capitol but would save the taxpayers about $40,000.

His way, the President said, would cost a little more than $2,000,000 less than the usual thing runs to $48,000.

At the President's first inauguration 12 years ago 300,000 people enthusiastically welcomed him and the parade was led by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Something Phoney?

"Oh, shut up!" she said quickly "If you have pulled off any assignment, either there's something phoney about it or else it's your big mixture of graft and brass yet. I don't wonder my father couldn't remember hearing me speak about you. I've hardly ever done it. Why should I?"

"Because you were too busy talking about Vaught I suppose. Can't imagine any other reason."

"Shut up, I said! Look, we're right on the point of having a party."

"I'm sure Mr. MacDonald's more than welcome to our New Year's party," Daniel said slowly.

"And don't let Jenness give you a wrong impression. There's plenty of room in this house and if you're a newspaperman I guess you've slept in worse shakedown than you'll get here, plenty the time."

"You're always plenty to eat in the house, such as it is. I hope now you've found your way to Farmans Hill, you'll stay with us a while."

"Some reportorial instinct had told Peter MacDonald that Farmans Hill would make good copy, though he had never known how much or how little of what Jenness had said in Washington about her background was true. He had always thought she was probably exaggerating in extreme rusticity of her family in order to make the state of sophistication she herself had achieved seem more remarkable, he also thought she might have given an imaginative touch to her attributes."

"You've already known that she had underestimated the quality of her father, but that it would be impossible for anyone to overestimate either the excellence of the charm of her setting."

Peter felt so much at home that it even seemed natural for him to stand at the side of the door with the Farmans as they said good

Labor Unrest Increased As Victory Nears

LONDON, Jan. 16 (CP)—Increased labor unrest as victory nears is reported by the Labor Ministry, with more time and production loss by strikes in Britain during the first 11 months of 1944 than at any time for the last 12 years.

Significantly the greatest time-loss has been when war news was most cheering. Despite the confidence expressed in most official quarters that the category of critical labor disturbances there is a wide belief in Britain that the time will bring an avalanche of strikes.

Up to Nov. 30 last year manufacturing days lost were double those of the full year before—5,648,000 compared with 1,810,000. Almost all the increase was caused by disputes in coal mining which cost 2,466,000 days' work in 11 months last year.

One Trade Union leader suggested that during the summer and autumn many workers believed the war might end by Christmas and were more than usually sensitive over anything they considered infringements of existing working practices, which might be carried into the peace years.

A survey of Labor Ministry strike statistics shows that, besides disputes over wages, one frequent cause of strikes has been differences between workers and management over the category of workers to carry out new production processes. One recent example was a shipyard strike when workers contended a new welding machine should be run by highly-skilled workers instead of cheaper labor.

During 1944 labor disputes increased when war news was good. It was bad. Strikes were few up to the break-up from the Normandy beachhead but numerous during the sweep of Allied armies across France and Belgium. There was a sharp drop when the Arnhem airborne operation failed. Most 1944 strikes lasted only a few days. Almost half November's 183 work stoppages, for instance, lasted not more than one day and a quarter not more than two.

C B C Opposes Boost In Rates Paid For Copyright Music

OTTAWA, Jan. 16 (CP)—Because of war conditions the time is inopportune to put into effect fees sought by the Canadian Performing Rights Society this year from Canadian radio stations for the use of copyright music.

J. L. O'Brien, representing the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said today before the Copyright Appeal Board.

None of the other Dominions has any change been made in the amounts collected by performing rights societies, and in view of Canada's expressed public policy the board should not approve the higher rates asked by C.P.R.S., which this year accounts for an increase of six cents a set over the 1944 tariff, said Mr. O'Brien.

Last year C.P.R.S. received $136,310 in fees, and this year it is asking $247,923.

Gordon Henderson, for Broadcast Music Incorporated (Canada), said that if the existing C.P.R.S. agreement was kept in effect B.B.I. was willing to accept one cent a licensed set for the use of its repertoire.

O. M. Biggar, for C.P.R.S., said that regardless of the outcome of a case which had been taken before the Privy Council dealing with the music boxes in public places, the organization would press for approval of its application to impose a quarterly $2.50 license fee on coin-operated music machines.

Earlier, A. H. Eider, representing B.C.A. Victor, said the C.P.R.S. tariff item covering the performance of copyright works through loud speaker systems in industrial establishments had a

More Goods Promised To Liberated People

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The United States today pledged part of its economic resources and a few thousand tons of its war-surplus shipping facilities to the maintenance of political order in liberated Europe.

President Roosevelt promised the new Prime Minister of Greece, Nikolaos Plastiras, that the United States would assist wherever practicable in the rehabilitation of your long-suffering nation.

The State Department announced that despite the extremely tight shipping situation, a little more shipping had been made available for increasing exports of American civilian goods to France in the first three months of 1945.

Meantime, plans are being made to obtain more than $1,000,000,000 worth of critical goods for Allied armies from French and Belgian industry in 1945. The arrangement, which at present is apart from lend-lease, calls for Britain and the United States to supply the bulk of the raw materials for the goods, which include uniforms and the like. The aim is two-fold: to obtain needed supplies and provide employment in France and Belgium.

These developments result from a basic policy of seeking to prevent political unrest by remedying economic ills.

"potentially discriminatory character," Mr. Justice J.T. Thorson, board chairman, said the board would give consideration to representations.

Itching, Burning, Stinging Eczema or Salt Rheum

Eczema, or salt rheum as it is commonly called, is one of the most painful of all skin troubles. The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to heat, or the hands placed in hot water are most unbearable, and relief is gladly welcomed.

The relief offered by Burdock Blood Bitters is based on the knowledge that such ailments as eczema, and other skin troubles, are caused by an impure blood condition.

LADIES' WEAR

Dorothy Dix Says—

And, being a wise woman, this wife revised her tactics. She threw away her hammer and got out the saw-saw. And her husband gladly came back home. For after a man has been married, he is a housebroken animal and prefers his own fire-side if his wife will stroke his fur the right way.

And what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Many a divorce would be saved if, before a man broke up his unhappy marriage and deprived his little children of a father's love and guidance, he faced his own conscience and asked himself how far he was accessory before the crime of wrecking his home.

Maybe his wife is a nagger because he hasn't the wit to tell her that she looks just like Mona Lisa when she smiles. Maybe she is a poor housekeeper because she asks herself what's the use in trying her self to a crisp over the kitchen stove for a man who never compliments her cooking. Maybe she is extravagant because she is trying to cover up a hurt heart with a mink coat. All that many a poor wife needs to turn her into a good one are just a few signs of love and appreciation from her husband.

In one of George Cable's fine stories, a little priest always says: "God forgive you and me for that man's sin," when he hears of someone committing a crime. Husbands and wives may well say that to each other upon an unhappy marriage.

Vice-President, Mrs. James Campbell. Secretary, Miss Betty Myers.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, after which a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess.

BOOKS NEEDED NOW

Over a million books have been given to the Forces by the I. O. D. E. already—more than 234,000 last year alone. But thousands more are urgently needed now, and still more will be required for use in military hospitals after Victory is won. You can help this important work by making a cash donation to the I. O. D. E. campaign next week for money to buy books. You can help throughout the coming months, too, by donating any books that you finish reading.

A Canadian airman writes the I. O. D. E. from India: "Entertainment of any kind is at a premium in this area, and reading material is almost fantastically revered. Canteens are few and far between. At least six out of seven nights a week are spent in our own mess. From this you can gather how much we appreciate the books you send us."

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has been asked by the Government to collect in Canada $300,000, with which to buy books for the Services. All the work is done voluntarily. All the money goes for books.

Charlottetown's Campaign for money to buy books for the Fighting Forces will be conducted by the members of the local chapters of the Daughters of the Empire next week.

This advertisement is sponsored by PROWSE BROS. LTD. DRY GOODS, CLOTHING and CARPETS, Charlottetown, to assist the Daughters of the Empire in their nation wide campaign for money to Buy More Books for Our Fighting Forces.
