Daily Lenten Meditations The Hour Apart By A Journalist There can be few among us who during these last few weeks have not in our separate ways sought perhaps for a day, perhaps for an hour or two, prayerfully or defiantly resisting the fierce, relentless pressure of the world made by man. Respite may be brief, these crowded days; it may be haunted by the knowledge of waiting for the next edition of the paper, or of carrying on with simple, familiar little jobs at home. But how lovely it has been, that break—that shutting out of the harsher realities, and the realization of a Spiritual Comforter, a Consoler, a Healer who refreshes us and revives our palsied feelings. Interesting and significant it is to compare the superficial ways of "escape" among the people we meet every day, who lack the spiritual resources, their ways in the sad, the "country" said one, "and closed my thoughts to everything I did not see. It is very beautiful now out-of-doors with earth's white blanket and heaven's blue canopy. Oh, it's so tranquil and sure, somehow. Not for everybody, alas, is solace to be found in the quiet places of beauty, "the ageless, indelible frame to the living picture" and someone else translated a poet's challenge to the universe. There are some who find its message too unbearably poignant when the mind is charged with the sadness of the world, the penalty of forgetfulness. For them, maybe, the smile of a friend in the crowd; the strange, transmuted message of the lights and shadows and movement of a city street. Another said: "I have a book waiting at home. And I shall read till I fall asleep with tiredness." Said someone else: "I am going to look at the garden. There is a lot to be done, planning for the spring."

Yes, I am going to plan." "There are many people who prefer to live themselves in a desperate clinging to normalcy. "We will not talk of crises and wars. We will be our ordinary selves," is their attitude. So they talk of the movies, the regional plays, the art shows and the community concert. Music! Blessedly fortunate are those who can surrender to that. They talk of family affairs, of social activities, of comforting and pleasant things. Until the moment comes when someone looks hesitantly at the clock and says, "Isn't it time for the news?" And then the spell is broken, and they and we are all people together again, swayed by conflicting hopes and fears outside and beyond, and here with us, pressing and unescapable. But those moments have been. Looking back we find them good, and we dare to look forward, not merely for the reason of that which we know, but because of the undefeatable hope, because of the fact and spirit that keeps us from losing faith in the ultimate triumph—somewhere, somehow—of that life and struggle and unconquerable vision spoken in the walk in the notes of a symphony, in the books and pictures we love best and in the "ordinariness" of everyday human courage and endeavor. We need it, that passing vision, however swiftly it comes and how to leave us again just simply bewildered and anxious men and women. Out of these days something must grow, something must be made to give us a purpose, a desire in every sane person that man shall cease to live under the shadow of fear and futility, that something is the knowledge and conviction that there is an overruling Providence and Director of the universe whose frail subjects we are.

T. W. L. Prowse, a Past District Governor Walter S. Grant, general chairman of the Conference. The following chairmen were heard from: R. L. Cotton, publicity-at-large; Gordon Ives, transportation; P. W. Turner, reception; C. N. Bissett, hotel and accommodation; J. M. Murley, registration; Walter Scarborough, dining; banquet, luncheons and meeting places; Roy Quigley, entertainment; A. R. Cooper. It is expected that 320 Rotarians and Rotary Annes from the ten clubs representing a total Rotary membership of 1200 will be present. The conference will be the largest of this kind yet held in Charlottetown. The two morning sessions will be held at the Prince Edward Theatre and the other meetings to be held in the Canadian National Hotel if possible. The general program committee will be appointed by the District Governor and the resolutions and credentials committee later. Brigadier General of Halifax, Commander of Military District No. 6, was a guest yesterday.

CANADA WOULD (Continued from page 1) Canada should join with other peace-loving nations in presenting a united, solid front against world aggression," Dr. Manion declared yesterday on the expiry of the National Conservative Party I offer now to join loyally and wholeheartedly with the Government in making it clear to the world that a united Canadian people—with one mind and one heart—is determined, come what may, to preserve its liberties and its nationhood. Any other material "to Germany or any other aggressor nation and I include Japan," and place a supercharge on the "Germany and other aggressors." While he might be inclined to oppose additional immigrants coming to Canada at this time, Mr. Woodsworth said, "I think that the least Canadians can do is to be willing to share some of the responsibilities that will be borne by the other nations in their care of refugees." John Blackmore, Social Credit Leader, said: "It is a pity that the Government did not make it made to remove causes of disunity and friction within Canada, in the Empire and in the world."

Personal Mr. Louis A. McInnis of St. Avards is a patient in the Charlottetown Hospital undergoing treatment. The many friends of Mrs. Edwin Williams, Spring Park Road, will regret to learn of her continued indisposition. Rev. W. S. Mabon, B. D., was among those attending the opening of the Legislature yesterday. Mr. W. C. West, general merchant, York, leaves for Halifax this morning on a ten days' visit. Mrs. Harold Laird has returned to her home in Kelvin after spending the past three months with her sister Mrs. F. L. Orr, Victoria, B. C.

Crowded House The Prime Minister's statement was made to a crowded House with many of the foreign diplomats in the galleries, but his presentation was marred by a mishap when he dropped a paper. An important page had been dropped from his manuscript. By leave of the House the Prime Minister spent some time to locate the missing sheet while the Chamber went on to other business pending his return 45 minutes later when he again read the complete statement. The missing page covered that section of the Prime Minister's statement dealing with the responsibility of Parliament and his confidence as to what decision Parliament and the people would reach if Britain were attacked. Echoing the words of Prime Minister Chamberlain, Mr. MacKenzie King declared: "There is scarcely anything I would not sacrifice for peace but there is one thing I must except, and that is the liberty we enjoy and which we will never surrender."

"I believe that is the feeling of every Canadian who loves his country and cherishes its liberties." Totalitarian countries could not hope for "passive acquiescence in acts of international lawlessness," nor could they hope for victory over the "unlimited moral and material resources that would be arrayed against them." Mr. MacKenzie King referred to words of caution he had uttered some weeks ago in the House of Commons as to the possibility of serious events in Europe, but assured that he had no exclusive sources of information or any ability to forecast the future.

Surprise To Many The form and place of the latest disturbance was a surprise to me and a surprise to many governments more nearly concerned and more minutely informed," the Prime Minister said. "We witnessed this past week the wanton and forcible occupation by Germany of the greater part of what remained of the Czechoslovak republic."

Addresses Meeting Of Nurses Ass'n At Cundall Home Dr. J. D. M. Griffin, of the Canadian Council of Mental Hygiene addressed a large meeting of the Registered Nurses' Association at the Cundall Home last night. The local doctors were invited. Speaking in a pleasing, convincing manner, Dr. Griffin held the interest of the audience as he outlined some of the important points in the modern mental hygiene program including preventive and remedial work; of the need of personality training; and of the advantages of opportunity classes; of an understanding of the physical and psychological nature of man, and of the benefits of early treatment in mental illness which is as truly a disease as is cancer or tuberculosis. By special request Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan moved a vote of thanks on behalf of the nurses and expressed his own appreciation of Dr. Griffin's informative lecture. Miss Mona Wilson seconded the vote of thanks which was presented by the president of the Association, Rev. Sister M. Stanislaus. Dr. Griffin leaves for Halifax this morning where he will address the Nova Scotia Nurses' Association.

Czecho-Slovak republic other countries that do not regret the fate which has now overtaken that vigorous and gallant small nation. "They regret still more the evidence to great country does not consider itself bound by pledges freely exchanged a few short months ago. The United Kingdom will force as the sole basis of relations with its neighbors and apparently with the world. The occurrences of the week cannot find any defence, as may have appeared to be the case with some of the earlier manoeuvres, as the treaty of Versailles or of the principles of self-determination and racial unity. "The Chamberlain's statement today that questions arising from German actions would be considered in consultation with the Dominions, Mr. MacKenzie King said: "The Government is ready at any time to join in consultation with the United Kingdom and with such other countries as would be appropriate." Rumor From Fact First necessity for Canada, as well as Great Britain, was "aift rumor from fact," to learn if there was a possibility of "further drives" and their possible direction. "It is important to know what count of countries may be concerned, whether it is a case of agitation and propaganda, or of economic or of military force. "It is equally important to know exactly what policies are being suggested to meet the situation and what measures of support and feasibility those policies are likely to receive. "With this knowledge the Canadian Government will have little difficulty in proposing to this Parliament any action which it believes should be taken in the contingency anticipated. "Canada was always ready to consult with other countries. Forms of co-operation were suggested by the Government in 1937. It will report its findings and any proposals that may result to this Parliament which has the sole and responsible authority to speak for Canada in such grave issues. "No statement of United Kingdom policy had been received from London. "In spite of the shock to the world's confidence there is no reason to despair of peace for the future. The Prime Minister said. "The world has come to be able to withstand shocks which a few years ago would have made open civil war inevitable. "No government of any democratic country had any thought of making war "but no government of any type could create a hope for passive acquiescence in acts of international lawlessness nor can they anticipate victory over the limited resources that would be arrayed against them. "I consider this whole question too serious for political manoeuvre. "Conservative leader Manion said: "It is above and beyond anything in the way of modern politics. I am ready to help in any way that may be possible to modify the waters or confuse the issue. "Hitler's action, Dr. Manion said, was unprovoked, unlawful and a brutal violation of his word." Referring to treatment of Jews in Germany, he said it was shocking to Canadians to see peaceful people being treated like wild animals. "What could be expected next, Dr. Manion asked, from "this man, very close to a madman—mad with the lust for conquest and world domination?"

In Memoriam MRS. CATHERINE LEDWELL Friends and citizens in general learned with regret of the passing at an early hour Sunday morning at her home in this city of Mrs. Catherine J. Ledwell, aged 88 years, widow of the late Capt. J. H. Ledwell who predeceased her a number of years ago. The late Mrs. Ledwell was a lady possessing many fine qualities of a gentle and pleasing disposition. She enjoyed a large circle of friends and although confined to her home for some time always showed a great interest in current events. She was doubly bereaved within a short time, her son Dr. R. J. Ledwell passing away about a year ago and her sister, Hannah, only about two weeks ago. The late Mrs. Ledwell gave freely of her services to all worthy causes. About twenty-five years ago she organized the Altar Society of St. Dunstan's Basilica and together with her sister gave considerable time to the work. During the world war she was a member of the committee organized to look after the interests of soldiers' wives, giving considerable of her time to the work. About two weeks ago Mrs. Ledwell was taken seriously ill and despite the best medical attention and tender nursing she passed away Sunday morning. There are left to mourn their loss one sister, Mrs. S. R. Jenkins, and one brother, Thomas, Dr. J. S. Ledwell is a grandson. The funeral is being held this morning from her late residence 173 Sydney Street at 8.50.

Canadain Trio (Continued from page 1) In pitch. As an encore she played the popular Kreisler Liebesleid. For their first composition the trio played the Trio in F Sharp Minor of "Papa" Haydn. This is music that belongs to all time. From the buoyant Allegro through the meditative Adagio to the rhythmic Finale that was all sheer joy. Nothing else could have rounded out this enjoyable evening with more satisfaction. We wish these young ladies well as they continue their series of recitals throughout Canada. The Women's Music Club is again to be congratulated for bringing such fine artists to Charlottetown.

In Memoriam MR. FRANK BEALES The death occurred at his residence 22 West Street, Charlottetown, of Mr. Frank Beales who had been an invalid for the past 18 years. Mr. Beales was in his 70th year having been born in Charlottetown on March 23rd, 1869. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Beales. His mother's maiden name was Mary J. Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and a sister of Henry Smith of this city. For a time Mr. Beales was engaged in the farm implement and seed business retiring a number of years ago. He was an ardent sportsman, fond of horse racing and owned a number of fast trotters including "George Crescut" with which he won a number of prizes. He found enjoyable recreation in hunting and fishing being an enthusiastic angler. He was an excellent citizen and although never active in public life always took a deep interest in the welfare of the community. While his health permitted he was a regular attendant of the Central Christian Church. There are left to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father, widow, Alice MacKay daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel MacKay of Charlottetown, one son, vania, who is now on his way home, and five daughters, Mrs. H. CONSTIPATION DRAGS YOU DOWN Don't let common constipation rob you of life and vigor! When bowels don't work right, the trouble often lies in what you eat. You don't get "bulk." Such common foods as meat, bread, potatoes are consumed in the body. They fail to supply the bulky mass that helps a bowel movement. Crisp, crunchy ALL-BRAN helps in two ways: it contributes to the "bulk" you need; and it also is a rich source of Nature's intestinal tonic, Vitamin B. Eat ALL-BRAN every day; drink plenty of water, and see what a difference "regular" habits can make in your life.
