the organization. Delegates at large—representing each Province as a whole rather than individual ridings—were chosen by the provincial executives or by committees named by the executives.

It is around the selection of the delegates at large from some provinces—namely Ontario and Quebec—that there have been suggestions of rigging.

To Back Fleming QUEBEC, Sept. 24 (CP)—A Quebec political group is making a bid to promote Donald Fleming, 48-year-old member of Parliament from Toronto, for Progressive Conservative Party leadership on the ground of his "Canadian" approach to national questions.

The new group, active in Quebec provincial elections last July and headed here by A. E. Gobelli, Union Nationale organizer in Quebec-west division, contend that Fleming's selection as leader at next week's Progressive Conservative convention will do away with the possibility of a Quebec "third party" in the next Federal election.

Thinks Drew Will Win MONTREAL, Sept. 24 (CP)—Evan Sabourin, Quebec leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, announced tonight he will not be a candidate for the national leadership of the party at the forthcoming convention in Ottawa.

In announcing his intention not to enter the leadership race, Mr. Sabourin said that Premier Drew of Ontario, "will enjoy strong support from Quebec and should easily carry the convention."

In a press release, Mr. Sabourin explained, however, that this was only his personal opinion and was not in any way representative of the attitude of the Quebec delegation as a whole.

UNITED CHURCH (Continued from Page 1) international affairs program. A standing committee will study the question during the next two years.

Linked with a resolution referred to the standing committee was a section asking that the scientific object of the view be accepted as the official view of the Church.

In debate, G. W. Mason, K.C., of Toronto, said "it would be terrible for the Church to state that Christians should bear arms under any consideration."

Rev. J. R. Mutchmor of Toronto urged in presenting the report on international affairs that "it does not set out general principles."

"It is an attempt to assess Canada's position in the world today and the relationship of our Church. We are calling for the Church to work for peace on a functional as well as political level."

In dealing with atomic control, the report said "further development cannot proceed without the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes rather than military control."

"Constructive use of atomic discoveries can do more to prevent war and preserve security than possession of the atomic bomb."

The report urged atomic development and control be vested in the United Nations rather than among individual nations.

A report of the "Church and culture" was adopted, and it declared: "The Protestant believes that the finite mind of man is never released from the duty of expanding... that any construction of autonomous humanism which attempts to substitute itself for the word of God is wrong."

It is important to realize that freedom of opportunity annihilates the freedom to exploit, and the freedom of living in society annihilates the freedom to be intolerant.

"No man lives to himself. True freedom for the individual can only exist in a free community."

The report was presented by Dr. K.F.R. Neville, College Dean, Western University, London, Ont. "The Church and its ministers must help to mould public opinion," he said.

"The Government must aid in this... support the United Nations' bill of rights, and approve a Canadian declaration on rights."

Members complained the report in its language was meaningless.

"If the report is discussing theology and intended for the clergy, they don't need it," said Ellis Buchanan of Edmonton, "If it is for the laity, it is not in their language."

He sat up two hours last night reading such terms as "demonic culture," and "source of axioms" and "church delam."

It was suggested that a popular report be issued in terms "readily understood by persons of ordinary intelligence and moderate education."

HATFIELD STRESSES (Continued from Page 1) Large numbers of Ottawa men and women were present at both meetings.

Western Delegates Beat Down Reds

At U. N. Assembly

By Alan Harvey PARIS, Sept. 24 (CP)—Russia's repeated efforts to throw the veto light and six other explosive issues out of the United Nations today were smothered by western-led majorities.

Informed delegates predicted that the rebuffs would provoke an unusually bitter attack on the majority by the 58 member countries when Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, makes his country's policy statement tomorrow in the Palais de Chaillot.

The first direct threat to withdrawal from the world agency was made in the General Assembly today by South Africa. Some delegates here already feared that Russia would walk out if the Berlin dispute is added to the 70-item agenda.

E. H. Louw, South African Minister of Economic Affairs representing Prime Minister Daniel Malan, urged the Nationalist Government recently succeeded that of Field Marshall Smuts, charged that the great powers broke faith with the small countries.

The United Minister expressed "serious misgivings over the congress which have, and are still being made, both in the councils of the organization and in the assembly, to interfere in the domestic affairs of member states—attempts which are based on strained and wholly unwarranted interpretations of certain provisions of the charter."

He apparently was referring to two U.N. resolutions which have urged the union to compose her differences with India over the treatment of Indian nationals in the Union and to turn over mandated Southwest Africa to U.N. trusteeship. South Africa has flouted both resolutions.

Louw said: "If the organization of the United Nations continues on the road it followed during the past two years, the question will have to be faced whether consideration in our own national interests is compatible with continued membership in the organization."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King was absent from the meeting. He was reported feeling "rather miserable" with a slight cold, but tonight the leader of the 21-man Canadian delegation attended with Mal-Gen. G. P. Vanier, Canada's Ambassador to France, the dinner at the Palais d'Orleans given for the chiefs of the U.N. delegations by President Auriol of France.

VALUED HEALTH In ancient Greece, health was considered one of the highest goods, and disease a great evil that made man inferior.

arises from my admiration and respect for him as a colleague in the House of Commons over the past few years. Both in the Commons and in the country at large, he has been a champion of fair play for agriculture, fair play for the man in the street, and fair play for individual enterprise. Sitting with him in the Commons, fellow-members realize more than the average supporter of our party, how much he has contributed to our cause during every session of Parliament.

Mr. Hatfield conceded that until recently, a considerable number of Progressive Conservative delegates to the national convention from New Brunswick had been favorable to Ontario Premier George Drew for the party leadership. The Victoria-Carleton member emphasized that he had no quarrel whatever with Premier Drew, whom he considered to be an excellent administrator who had given good government to the province of Ontario.

He felt however, that Mr. Diefenbaker, who is Progressive Conservative member for Lake Centre-Saskatchewan, had a truer national outlook than Mr. Drew. For this reason, he has taken a prominent part in the Diefenbaker-for-leadership movement in the Maritimes.

"I believe," Mr. Hatfield said, "that Mr. Diefenbaker's recent address to Saint John has increased the support he already had in New Brunswick. I have also most encouraging reports of the swing to Diefenbaker in Nova Scotia and I have hopes that he will win additional support from the delegates from Prince Edward Island."

Mr. Stewart said that turnips and all other root crops have "done more than usually well" and are of much better quality than last year.

Cucumbers, which as yet do not play a significant part in the Island's agricultural economy, did not yield so heavily as last year but were of better quality. Mr. Stewart ascribed the smaller yield to the prolonged cool spring and "dry-summer weather which, while ideal for hay, is not good growing weather for such sub-tropical vegetables as cucumbers. Paradoxically enough, Mr. Stewart said, feed corn, which is also known to thrive better under warm weather conditions, is a "bumper crop."

The quality of Island live stock is now well known throughout Canada and the United States. In fact, some Island breeders, including Premier Jones, have sent cattle for breeding purposes into South America. Mexico, too, has imported many of the Island's high quality cows. Pure bred swine have been shipped not only to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, and the Western Provinces, but had gone in large numbers to the Central States as well.

Dairy Farmers Prosperous Mr. Stewart said the Island dairy farmer was never in a more prosperous condition than now. No dairy farmer could fail to make money when he can get 95 cents per pound butter fat. This year's unusually heavy cuts of clover hay, together with the heavy yields of well-filled grain, could not but reduce substantially the dairy farmer's dependence on imported feeds with a resultant lessening of operating expense.

The dairy industry was the backbone of the Island's agriculture. Mr. Stewart said it is true that potato growing, especially in recent years has been a great source of agricultural revenue, but "here was always a grave danger when too many farmers departed too widely from dairy farming. Only manure could maintain the humus in the soil and only the maintenance of cattle and other livestock upon the farm could provide that humus without which fertilizer-farming could be carried on for but a brief time."

Mr. Stewart said that no one single thing indicates so graphically the prosperity of the Island's agriculture as the local exhibitions and fairs. Those held this year at Alberton, Egmont Bay, and Souris broke all previous records both in attendance and in the quality of the livestock and farm products shown.

The success of the local exhibitions was encouraging to those who make farming their occupation and was a splendid inducement for the young generation to remain on the land.

Mr. Stewart said the agricultural prosperity of a people could not alone be determined by their net financial gain, for profit made at the cost of impoverishing the soil did not represent true agricultural well-being. Only when the farmer and his family have made a good living from his acres, while at the same time maintaining or improving the fertility of his land, can his farming operations be said to have brought prosperity to him and his. Because this condition of true agricultural welfare prevails generally throughout the Province this year, Mr. Stewart said the Island people had more reason than ever before to observe the coming Thanksgiving season with thankfulness for the abundance of their harvests.
