ROCKEFELLER OF CHINA

One of the most interesting recent visitors to America was Chang Cheng Shun, known as the Rockefeller of China, who, beginning life as a poor boy, has now amassed, in his seventieth year, a fortune of something like £12,000,000.

As a clerk he worked in a small shop in Shanghai, and was paid £4 a month with a bonus. After a few years he was able to save £400, with which he started business for himself as a rice, tea, and coffee merchant. For a time he only sold his goods locally, but after a few years developed his business to such an extent that he sold in England, Germany, and the United States, and did business to the extent of £2,000 a year. A keen, far-seeing business man, Chang Cheng Shun increased his activities and organized companies to develop waste lands for the cultivation of rice, tea, coffee, rubber, and cocoa.

In Sumatra he cultivated 35,000 acres, in Batavia 14,000, in Penang 20,000 acres, and so on. Then he opened and managed tin mines and became interested in so many ventures that he was ultimately employing 10,000 persons all the year round. "Hard work, honesty, square dealing, and my ability to gain confidence of my people is the secret of my success," he said, recently, and to man in the East he is more highly trusted and honored than this Chinese clerk who can now boast of his millions.

TALES TOLD BY MEN IN THE FIGHTING LINES ON LAND AND SEA

An Edmonton officer in the 9th Battalion, who is a prisoner of war at Bischofswerde, Saxony, writes on June 25:—

"I was very pleased to receive your cards, for which I thank you very much. Things go on here one day as much as another.

"I have never received a letter from Edmonton yet, or from anyone of the 9th Battalion. . . . If you see anyone that knows me tell them I am all right and kindly treated. It is very lonesome here, and the more letters the better.

"Well, we had a great fight, anyhow. We were told to hold a certain advanced position at any cost. We did. When the order came to retire we were surrounded, and what few were left had to surrender. That was on April 24, and it was my birthday. Quite a celebration, wasn't it? I never had such a noise made on my birthday before. . . . Write soon again.

CHURCH SPIRE A TARGET.

A Montrealer serving with the Canadian Engineers writes under date of July 17: "Haven't been up to the trenches for a day or two; there is talk of moving further along the line for new work. I hope you are more expert at sandbags than some of the obviously amateur ones we get. Looking forward to the cake, which should arrive today. Weather beastly, rain and wind. Allemands, after trying for a week, at last succeeded in hitting the village church on the hill two miles away. Carried away the spire and set the church on fire. I went up to look, but did not linger, as it is an unhealthy spot; and sure enough I had just left when six shrapnel whizzed over. The Germans roared in their wild way on getting the crowd watching the fun. But it wasn't there, except two girls and a policeman."

FROM A BOMB THROWER.

A member of the London staff of the Royal Bank of Canada writes: "Am writing this in my dug-out in the trenches, where we have been for the last twelve days. I am now one of 'Pukkers Artillery', or, in plain language, a bomb-thrower, and walk about with a cast-iron factory round my chest. We don't have a very easy time in the trenches, as we are stationed in saps in front of our firing line. We were watching last night the bombardment of Arras, which we can see from our trenches, although we are a good distance away from it. There is some talk about us coming home on leave in a few days' time. I hope it is right, as I should like to see some old faces again and go to a museum which is very nice. . . . The trenches all day, because all you do is just sit down and wait for the next shell to come along, and get up and give a sigh of relief when you find you have not been hit. The trenches are all chalk here, we are, and we get ourselves and our equipment in an awful mess. Have just finished breakfast, and think I will write a little more. . . . Half a minute while I get a pot at a German's rifle. I can see but all chalk here, we are, and we answer back and received my cap on top of my bayonet—the signal for a 'washout.' Here comes a shell. Whoo! up go clouds of stinking smoke, and pieces of shell begin to fly about. Am sitting in my dug-out, which is two feet under ground and contains a table, three chairs, and a bed, but I don't use the bed, as it is a bit

BOTHA AND KITCHENER.

From the Westminster Gazette. It is a striking coincidence that on the day which brought with it news of General Botha's triumph Lord Kitchener should have been speaking at the Guildhall, and making what is, we think, his first platform appeal for recruits. At Vereening these two armies which had for nearly three years been fighting each other; they are now comrades in a common cause, each doing their duty in the different tasks which the great war imposes on them.

"BUD" ROBISON MAY BE A GERMAN PRISONER

Corporal Ernest E. Weeks of Charlottetown writing to Mrs. Harvey Toombs of this city from Headquarters Canadian Infantry Brigade, reports that Private Stephen Robison, brother of Mrs. Toombs, who in a previous despatch was reported dead, may after all be alive.

The letter follows:

Dear Mrs. Toombs:

I suppose you will wonder from whom this letter is written, and explain as quickly as possible. I had a letter from Jim Robinson, your brother, from Bermuda and he said that you had received word that your brother with the Canadian Engineers had been killed, and requested me to try and find out particulars. This I have done and the following is the story his chums tell:

It was in the engagement near Givenchy that he was sent up behind the bomb throwers in a party to back up the German trenches when our men had advanced as far as they could. Well, the fight commenced and our chaps took the German front line trench and while they were advancing to the second line, your brother was wounded. He was bandaged and taken back to the German front line and left in the trench for our medical corps to attend to. He was with quite a few men in a German dugout, but they say his wound was not serious.

Well the Germans drove our fellows back and of course your brother was taken prisoner, so that the report that he is dead is not true. He is undoubtedly wounded and in a German hospital and that is why, I suppose, you do not hear from him.

I hope that you may hear from him in the near future, and can sympathise with you in the awful strain it must be waiting for some news.

It gives me such pleasure in being able to give you this information and should you wish to find out anything more I would be only too glad to give you all the information possible.

Sincerely,
ERNEST WEEKS.

P.S.—There is a chap at the base who is wounded, but when he returns he will be able to give fuller details, and on his return I shall write you.
