WOODEN SKULL WITH HUMAN SKELETON

QUÉBEC, Nov. 14.—A most remarkable discovery was made here by workmen employed in excavating for the new wing of the Rock City Tobacco Factory on Gignac street.

It is probably not generally known but the site of the new wing which is opposite the old Marine Hospital was more than half a century ago during the cholera plague in this city, utilized as a cemetery.

Since the excavations began last week, coffins piled four and five deep have been dug up and in all were traces of human remains, which have been collected in a large casket and will be duly interred in consecrated ground.

The men had become accustomed to unearthing and handling those skeletons, but on Saturday they had to deal with something entirely unusual. One of the men was digging away when his spade struck a coffin which crumbled away, leaving the human bones exposed. There was a skull also, but it was not an ordinary one. It was of a brownish color and did not altogether seem natural. On closer examination it was found to be not a human skull at all, at least it was not a bone. It was wood, and human skulls are not usually composed of wood, although experience teaches that there are a good many block-heads in the world.

This imitation of nature is a block of wood, carved into the shape of a skull, and the mysterious part of the discovery is that the coffin was intact until broken by the workman's spade, and that there was no other skull in the coffin except the wooden imitation.

How this artificial head was placed in the coffin and why it was placed there is open to conjecture.

One theory is that the original skull presented some abnormal or freakish conformation, or else the deceased died from some disease of the head and that a doctor or medical student procured the natural head for the block of wood which he had previously carved into the shape of a human skull.

CHARLOTTETOWN AND ELSEWHERE

It pays to buy in this Province.

One drunk arrested yesterday, will appear before Stipendiary Martin at the Charlottetown police court this morning.

The despatch in yesterday morning's daily, dated Toronto and referring to the mobilization of British army reservists should have been credited to the Canadian Press.

The People's Theatre, Charlottetown, was taxed to its utmost capacity last evening by amusement lovers of the city and they showed a thorough appreciation of the splendid pictures presented. The headliner on the program was entitled "The Miracle," a story of ancient Bagdad teeming so with the far eastern magic and atmosphere that one would almost think they were in that wondrous country. The splendid Bison reel, "A Bugle Call," stirred the pulse of the patriotic. It was a fine military story, one that could be enjoyed by the warrior or veteran. The other picture, equally as good as the preceding ones, and as much enjoyed was "Treasure Trove." The illustrated song was excellent.

Scarcely had the sensation of Davidson's outbreak become fully known, when another case was brought to the attention of the police. This time it was an old fellow from P. B. Island, named White, whose age is something like 80 years, who is charged as being the offender. The evidence of his youthful alleged victims as told the court, left the latter no other alternative but to commit White to the Supreme Court. The prisoner does not feel a bit worried over the matter, and in no way attempts to contradict the accusations of his baby victims. The third sensation was the arrest of J. J. McLeod, retired merchant tailor, of Sydney Mines, who was taken into custody Saturday morning. He is charged with a serious criminal offence, or offences, the complainants being "little girls" of tender years, whose confessions to the police led to his arrest. He was admitted to bail Saturday night in the sum of $2,000. Councillor Alex. Boyd and Inspector of Mines Nell Nicholson are securities in $500 each, and the prisoner in $1,000. This latter case is now going on before Stipendiary Butts this morning. All of the cases have caused a feeling of contempt and in one instance Judge Lynch was was spoken of.—Sydney Exc.

BOSTON MAY GET BIGGEST OCEAN LINERS

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—Boston may be the American port of the two greatest liners in the world—the mighty $50,000 ton Imperator now building for the Hamburg-American Line and the Olympic of the White Star Line—next spring, as a first step in the succession of Boston to supremacy over New York as a transatlantic port, according to information from New York last night.

Secretary of War Stimson denied the application of the Hamburg-American Line for a temporary extension to dock is granted it will be impracticable to dock the mighty Imperator in New York when she arrives on her maiden trip next May.

Boston is the logical port for the Hamburg-American Company to choose as a docking point in the Imperator, if New York is thus removed. The Commonwealth pier is 1,200 feet long. The port directors are now rushing work to get ready for the Hamburg-American to start a passenger line here about April. The dock can easily accommodate the Imperator.

T. M. Fullerton, Charlottetown, P. E. I., is in the city, spending a few days with friends.—Moncton Exc.

Rev. M. J. McPherson left this morning for P. E. Island in answer to a despatch informing him of his mother's sudden death.—St. John Exc.

While Edward Richard of the P. E. Island schooner L. B. Heskel, at Loggieville on Tuesday, was heaving up the anchor with a gasoline winch his arm was caught in the chain and broken in two places, and he was cut on the head and face. He was taken to the Marine Hospital at Douglastown.—Moncton Exc.

Four sleek looking silver foxes arrived here by the steamer Bruce last Friday consigned to parties in Charlottetown. They were owned by a Mr. Shears, of Robinson's Head, Nfld, who accompanied them. At Port aux Basques the foxes were held up by the Customs people, but a telegram to the Department soon caused their release, and the animals were taken through, making quick connection for the outward express. During their short stay here they attracted the eye of more than one ardent fox fancier, and Mr. Shears was compelled to refuse many attempting offers for the batch. One gentleman offered as high as $5,500 for the four, but their owner-only smiled, and said he would do much better on the island. By the way is this not another slant in the face of the law recently placed regarding the exportation of foxes? Men who are in the habit of going to the Ancient Colony solely on fox business, say that there are no ranches there and no foxes in capacity long enough to come under the law allowing their exportation. As a matter of fact there have been more foxes pass through here from Newfoundland and since the above law came into force than ever before. It really does seem as if favors, and big favors at that, are shown some to the exclusion of others, and, as usual, it is not the rich man that suffers.—Sydney Exc.

operator, and the facilities are such that Boston stands far ahead of any other port as a second choice to New York.

PERSEVERANCE.

Let no man admit to himself that he has been baffled in anything while he has health and strength for another attempt. "Up and at it again" is the motto of true courage. The feeble have achieved what the strong pronounce impossible. Sustained by an unbending will and aided by an intelligent brain, the man who can do anything should do it. KING WILL BREAK UP HIS STABLE.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—King George has ordered the breaking up of his racing stable. Never again, after November, will the famous royal colts of gold and purple that the British have cheered so loyally, especially in King Edward's day, be seen on the turf.

It is believed that the King's decision came partly about through the disfavor which racing has fallen in America and elsewhere, and partly because of his known slight interest in the sport. It is also rumored that Queen Mary had a hand in it on account of the fact that the gambling feature has become just as prominent in connection with British racing as when the sport got itself into trouble on that account in America.

The withdrawal of the King's horses is bound to be a severe blow to the British turf. Strong pressure has been brought to bear to have him reconsider, but the mandate went forth when the King visited York Cottage, last week, and his instructions to his manager, Marcus Beresford, were most definite. It is likely the King will only attend the track in the future on Derby Day, the Oaks Ascot meeting and possibly Goodwood. It is the royal intention that such horses as have worthily won the King's colors—Minto who won the Derby for King Edward; Dorando and Pindaren, who was in the last Derby—shall not be sold, but end their days in the paddocks at Sandringham.

ARRAIGN GIRL AS POISONER.

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—Gladous O. St. Denis, fifteen years old, of Lowell, was arraigned in the Superior Court at East Cambridge today on two counts of attempting to murder her uncle and aunt, Fred M. and Mrs. Jordan, of Lowell, on September 19, by putting poison into their coffee. She at first pleaded not guilty. After Judge Chase had begun to impanel a jury and five members had taken their seats, the girl nodded to Deputy Sheriff Courtney, telling him that she wanted to change her plea to guilty. This fact was communicated to Judge Chase by Assistant District Attorney Weir.

Judge Chase asked the girl if she realized what she was charged with, and she seemed in doubt. Judge Chase read the long indictment to her, and then appointed Dr. Butler of the McLean asylum to examine the girl as to her sanity and report to the court as soon as possible. The girl was remanded to the East Cambridge jail.

Her uncle and aunt were in court at the time, but their niece paid but little attention to them.

After the girl had changed her plea to guilty, Mrs. Jordan was called to the stand to tell the story of the poisoning.

"This girl was in my family for two years," said Mrs. Jordan. "She had always called me aunt. Her mother is in New York cooking in a hotel. The girl would work part of the time and then wouldn't seem to want to work. I could hardly make out what to think of her although she was very pleasant around the house. She seemed to want to go out at night a good deal and that was what caused the trouble."
