MARKET REVIEW FOR JULY 30, 1931

NATIONAL STEEL CAR:

While the annual report of National Steel Car Corporation, Limited, for the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1931, showed dividend requirements of $2 per share covered by a margin of over 25 p.c., earnings being equivalent to $2.62 per share on 120,000 shares outstanding, the results fell below the average for the preceding five fiscal periods in respect of nearly every important comparison, including value of output, operating profit, amount available for dividends, per share earnings, and the ratio of operating profits to value of output.

It is interesting to note, however, that during the past six fiscal years the company produced and shipped products with an aggregate value of $44,574,878. During the six years, also, the operating profits were $3,821,331 out of which 39.1 p.c., or $1,494,961, was set aside as depreciation reserve. The amount available for dividends in the six year period was $2,084,723, and the amount distributed to shareholders was $650,000, or 31.2 p.c. of the total available.

In respect of the ratio of operating profits to book value of fixed assets, less depreciation, the results for the 1930-31 fiscal year were the lowest since 1926. The operating profit of $440,595 was 11.3 p.c. of net fixed assets of $3,907,663. In the previous year operating profits of $1,803,791 were equivalent to 46.4 p.c. of net fixed assets of $3,881,108.

It should be noted that during the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1929, there was a very sharp increase in fixed assets, but the company had not the full benefit of the increased facilities during that year, and it was not until the following year that the larger plant resulted in very sharply increased profits.

The balance sheet, as revealed in the latest annual report, indicates an improvement in net working capital as at June 30, 1931, as compared with the previous year. Excess of current assets over liabilities was $1,693,510 as against $1,555,629, establishing a new high record. Current assets were lower at $2,571,930 as against $2,936,737, reflecting the reduced rate of operations, but there was an even greater reduction in current liabilities, which amounted to $878,420 as against $1,381,108.

The family tree some people brag about is knotty, scaly, and needs the attention of a tree surgeon.

Morning Stock Letter

Wall Street Mirror Says:—
Special to Johnston & Ward

(Special to Johnston & Ward)

WALL STREET MIRROR SAYS:

The selling brought on by the radical cut in the dividend on Steel common has not been completed but the action of the market has shown that there was not nearly as much stock overhanging the market as was generally supposed. Furthermore, and this is the really bgi factor in the present situation, many people, including bankers, brokers, speculators investors and outsiders, known to the Street as the "public" are firmly of the belief that the stock market now offers many buying opportunities and that these should be taken advantage of on days of weakness.

With the cutting in half of the Bethlehem Steel dividend at today's meeting of the directors, much of the bad news can be said to be out of the way.

The stock market from this time on will be subject to what can be termed erratic movements because some issues will be moving to lower levels while others will be moving steadily ahead. Steel will sell down into new low ground but the movement will be gradual rather than precipitate. Another important dividend meeting scheduled for today is that of the nickel plate. The price of the stock suggests a drastic cut, probably the passing entirely. Such action would bring severe repercussion in the other Van Sweringen issues.

Further advance will be seen in Safeway Stores.

There is no reason yet to discard the belief that the market will stage a fall rally discounting a seasonal pickup in business. Buying opportunities will be present in the next ten days and these should be taken advantage of by speculator and investor. While there is lots of gloom left in the financal situation it is best to ignore the short side for the time being.

HOLLYWOOD, July 30. (U.P.)—Erin O'Brien Moore received excellent notices in New York, London and Chicago for her work in "Street Scene." Then the play came to Los Angeles for a long run and all of the movie moguls went to see it.

Samuel Goldwyn finally won the screen rights for production under the United Artists banner, while M. G. M. Goldwyn's one-time organization, captured Miss O'Brien Moore's signature on a contract.

It took 160 tests to finally decide upon John Hamilton as the portrayer of the leading role, that of the Inspector in the series of S. S. Van Dine mystery stories to be produced as short, subjects, each one a complete story, the role is of more importance than most feature picture leads inasmuch as the Inspector, together with only one other character, the Doctor, appears throughout the entire series of 12 pictures.

John Hamitlon is well-knwon upon the legitimate stage, having appeared with the original cast of "Lightnin" with Frank Bacon for four years, more recently with Ann Harding and Helen Menken and last season in Geo. M. Cohan's "Rhapsody' 'and "Heads Up." He is presently appearing at the 48th Street Theater in "Unexpected Husband."

"The Clyde Mystery" the first picture of the Van Dine series, will go into production the early part of August.
