THE MORNING GUARDIAN.

SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1898.

THAT SLAP IN THE FACE.

The probabilities are that Sylvester Scovel, war correspondent for the New York World, who slapped General Shafter in the face, will be dealt with severely for his offence. The case is considered not as a simple attack upon an American citizen but upon the head of an American army, and as such was an affront to every American citizen. Scovel has been removed under guard to Siboney, and it is likely that he will be taken as a prisoner to the United States. It is the opinion of many authorities who have looked into the matter that Scovel may be even sentenced to death should a court martial so decide, but the general opinion is that there will be no immediate consideration of the case by a military court. The particular sections of the Articles of War that were pointed out as apparently governing the case, seem to cover the matter fully. They read thus:

"Act 63. All retainers to the camp, and all persons serving with the armies of the United States in the field, though not enlisted soldiers, are to be subject to orders, according to the rules and discipline of war.

"Act 21. Any officer or soldier who, on any pretence whatever, strikes his superior officer, or draws or lifts any weapon, or offers any violence against him, being in the execution of his office, or disobeys any lawful command of his superior officer, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as a court martial shall direct.

"Art 63. All crimes not capital, and all disorders and neglects which officers and soldiers may be guilty of to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, though not mentioned in the foregoing articles of war, are to be taken cognizance of by a general, or a regimental, garrison or field officer court martial, according to the nature and degree of the offence, and punished at the discretion of such court."

The three sections quoted would seem, it is pointed out, to cover every phase of the case presented by the extraordinary Scovel.

The New York Post humorously remarks in the case of Scovel that "this outrageous interference with the freedom of the press is likely to be sternly resented when the facts reach the editor-in-chief. No man can read the war messages of these correspondents, and the great editors' comment upon them, and escape the conviction that this is a newspaper war, got up by journalists and conducted by journalists. This is why Gen. Shafter's interference with the efforts of the correspondent to personally conduct the formal capitulation of Santiago, excited such natural resentment. What had Gen. Shafter to do with it anyhow?"

Among those who are taking a decided stand for an Anglo-American Alliance are many of England's titled nobility, including the Earl of Jersey, Lord Farras, Lord Thring, K C B, H Rider Haggard, the eminent novelist, Duke of Sutherland, Earl Grey, and the Earl of Crowe. The committee of the newly formed Anglo-American society in London include eight members of the House of Commons and a dozen representatives of the learned professions, the universities and literature included. The adherents of the movement include such men as Algernon Swinburne, Herbert Spencer, Lord Tenyson, Leslie Stephens, Sir Edwin Arnold, Sir W B Richmond. Mr Watts and Briton Rivier are among its warmest supporters. And the list includes thirteen bishops, beginning with the archbishop of Canterbury representing Protestantism, and Cardinal Vaughan, representing the Roman Catholic Church. The president of the Wesleyan conference and the Chairman of the Baptist Union and Congregational Union are among the members, together with the ablest and most influential nonconformist minister in London, Dr Joseph Parker. Professor Dicey shows by his co-operation the interest literature takes in the movement. Fifty lord mayors and mayors and the heads of Oxford and Cambridge, together with all the great public schools, have indicated their practical sympathy in an attempt to secure a cordial and constant co-operation between the peoples of the British Empire and the United States. The leaders of the movement are looking anxiously for a response from beyond the seas.

The New England Chemical and Supply Company of Boston have tendered for the contract of transporting the Spanish soldiers from Santiago to Spain. The government contract calls for the transportation of 24,000 soldiers and 1,000 officials, with rations similar to those provided by the war department. The firm carefully considered the requirements of the contract, and have figured everything so accurately that the price named by them, $890,000, does not seem unreasonable for feeding and transporting 24,000 men and officers across the Atlantic. In estimating the cost the company has reckoned on food, ships and the usual conveniences of steerage passage for the soldiers, including the plate and cup and mattress for each man.

A writer in yesterday's GUARDIAN drew attention to the present routes of travel between this province and the New England States, and the change which may be effected by the Hants Central Railway as a link between the D. A. R. at Windsor and the I. C. R. at Truro. This accomplished, the tourists could enjoy the combined pleasures of land and sea travel. The route from Boston to Pictou would be in almost a straight line and would include a delightful sail of from thirteen to fifteen hours from Boston to Yarmouth, followed by a trip through the far-famed Annapolis valley, and thence to Pictou, arriving there, with close connections, about ten hours from Yarmouth. Proceeding at once to Charlottetown the through trip should be made in 26 hours at most. It is more than probable that in the near future this route will be the popular one between Charlottetown and the Hub.

T. J. HARRIS,
LONDON HOUSE.

That the fire in Mr. F. L. Haszard's residence yesterday was caused by the electric wires should be a warning to citizens to give the present condition of our fire system greater attention than heretofore. About a year ago there was considerable discussion over this matter but no definite arrangement was agreed upon. It is a well understood fact that very few houses in Charlottetown are wired, according to "Underwriters' rules" Hence the need of an electrical inspector. The argument has been advanced that there is not a man in Charlottetown capable of inspecting the wiring of houses. But this only gives to the case a still graver aspect, being tantamount to the admission that none of those men now engaged in wiring houses have a thorough practical knowledge of their business. Thus the urgent need of a duly qualified inspector is all the more apparent. Such a man should have the supervision of the fire alarm system and should be held responsible to the city for the condition of the same. The Fire Board have agreed to pay half the salary of such an officer, and it is to be hoped that the City Council will weigh the circumstances carefully and not delay longer in relieving a large proportion of our buildings from imminent danger.
