

Business Men's Backs.

Too much rush and bustle, work and worry fall to the lot of the average business man. Kidneys can't stand it; they fail to filter the poisons from the blood properly. Urinary trouble, general languor and pain in the back are the natural results. A man can't stand to business properly if his back aches—no one trying.

THE REV. FATHER O'LEARY.

Sketch of The Popular Priest's Life.

The Rev. P. M. O'Leary, now known to an appreciative world as Father O'Leary, the heroic and devoted Roman Catholic chaplain of the Royal Canadian Regiment in South Africa, is a product of the Ancient Capital. Needless to say, he is of Irish descent. From both the paternal and maternal sides, the purest Celtic blood flows in his veins. He is one of the three surviving sons of one of Quebec's most respected former citizens, the late Mr. Marsse O'Leary, in his lifetime one of the city assessors, and one of the founders of St. Patrick's Church Quebec, of which he was for many years treasurer, as well as one of the trustees of St. Bridget's Asylum, one of Father O'Leary's brothers, Mr. J. M. O'Leary, resides in Ottawa, where he holds an important position in the general post-office department. The other Mr. Thomas O'Leary, is the well known custodian of the Chateau de Ramazay, Montreal.

Father O'Leary was born in Quebec, June 28, 1853, so that he is now in the fifty first year of his age. He was educated at the Laval Model School, the College of St. Ann le Poutiere, and at the Quebec Seminary, where on the completion of his collegiate course he studied theology, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1879, by the then Archbishop of Quebec, the late Cardinal Taschereau. Shortly afterwards he was named as vicar or assistant to the late Father Drolet, parish priest of Sillery, and made himself exceedingly popular among the mixed population of that parish by his thorough identification with all their needs spiritual and temporal, so that when he left them to take charge of a parish of his own, at Laval, in the county of Montmorency, his departure was viewed with the deepest regret by all, and made the occasion of a very remarkable farewell demonstration in his honor, in which every element, Protestant and Catholic, Irish and French, took part. After some years service at Laval, as parish priest, he was promoted, in the same capacity, to the more important parish of St. Catherine, in the County of Portneuf, where he did a great deal to promote the cause of education, and where the hospitable doors of his presbytery were always open to the needy wayfarer.

From St. Catharine he was finally called by his ecclesiastical superiors to act as chaplain of the Belmont Asylum, at St. Foy, near Quebec, and also to assume an important position in connection with the teaching staffs of the Quebec Seminary and Laval University, and it was while filling the duties of these positions that the Boer war broke out and he was called to the post of Roman Catholic chaplain to the first Canadian Contingent, which left here last Autumn for South Africa. With the subsequent history of the revered gentleman, the whole world is conversant. It may be said that Father O'Leary is one of the most scholarly members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy of the province, a perfect master of both languages, English and French; a recognized authority on Canadian history, and the happy possessor of an almost inexhaustible fund of Irish wit, humor and good nature. Though poor in this world's goods his big Irish heart beats responsive to every appeal of human want or suffering while his jovial sympathetic nature renders him one of the most delightful of friends and companions. With his broad, tolerant, Christian spirit, the whole world is acquainted.

A LOUD NOTE OF ALARM.

Paris Correspondent of London Times Believe the Peace of the World in Danger.

New York, Sept. 19.—A London despatch to the Sun says that while from various sources there come assertions that the harmony of the powers regarding China is not disturbed, the Paris correspondent of the London Times strike a loud note of alarm. He writes:

"Not since the Franco-Prussian war has the peace of the world been in such danger as it appears to-day. Never, it would seem, has it been so easy for a rupture to occur. The characteristic note of the situation, and a note which make it dangerous, is the reciprocal distrust of the powers engaged in making their action felt in China. All protest disinterestedness, and all declare that they have but one object namely, to defend and maintain the rights of civilization. All assert that they have no thought of any personal interests, but there is, nevertheless, general distrust and it is this fact which constitutes the gravest danger to the peace of each. "All are convinced that these protests of disinterestedness are merely a sort of transparent screen, behind which individual ends are aimed at. If the universal suspicion is not speedily allayed things will rapidly go from bad to worse, and China, whose aim is to increase the general distrust, will easily succeed in transforming latent suspicion into overt hostilities, which will bring forth a general conflagration."

After much more matter of the same sort, which does not appear to be supported by any special information, the correspondent contends that the danger can only be removed by the powers signing a solemn engagement not to claim separate advantages, direct or indirect.

PARTICULARS OF DEATH

Of Rev. John MacLeod Vankleek Hill. Described by One Who Saw Accident.

The following additional particulars are contained in the Ottawa Citizen in reference to the death of Rev. John MacLeod, Vankleek Hill: Rev. John MacLeod, pastor of the church, who was watching the workmen, was killed instantly. An eye-witness to the awful calamity thus describes it: "There were some five or six men on the scaffolding, 75 feet high. Among the number was Rev. John MacLeod, pastor of the church. The workmen were putting on the capstones of the gable end of the building. I heard a fearful creaking sound, and then a voice cried out, 'Men, we are all dead. God have mercy on our souls.' I then saw the massive wall swaying outward and slowly crumbling to the ground. I saw some of the men leap back into the building and cling to the scaffolding, but several were unable to do this and were hurled to the ground with fearful force. For a few seconds after the wall fell I could hear no sound, but shortly I heard piteous cries for help. Citizens all over the town heard the crash and hurried to the scene. Drs. MacIntosh, McKinnon, McDonald and McDermaid were among the first to arrive, and they directed the work of relief. Rev. J. MacLeod was the first taken out. He was not badly mangled. He was on the very top of the debris, but in the fall he had received a violent blow on the temple. He was unconscious when picked up. The cause of the accident is not known. The contractors, Messrs. Sutherland and McAskill, of Lachute, can give no cause whatever. The foreman is not in a fit condition to talk. An investigation will be held. The death of Rev. John MacLeod is a very serious shock to the community. He was loved by all denominations, and particularly by his own. It was through his instrumentality that the erection of this magnificent new church was undertaken. He often spoke to his friends of the pleasure it would give him to preach his first sermon in it. He had just left the breakfast table, and had gone out, as was his practice, to see the men at work. His wife and family watched him ascend the scaffold. Mr. MacLeod endeavored to persuade Mr. J. S. McIntosh, merchant, and one of the building committee, to come up with him, but Mr. McIntosh refused, saying he was safer on the ground. When Mr. MacLeod reached the top he called down, 'You look small there. I am not like you I always like to go up a little higher.' Just at that moment the crack was heard and the wall fell. Mrs. MacLeod and some of the members of her family witnessed the scene, and saw Mr. MacLeod hurled to certain death. He was unconscious and recognized none of his family. The grief of the wife and three children cannot be described as their father was carried in practically lifeless. Mrs. MacLeod is a sister of Mr. C. Ross, of the C. Ross Co., Ottawa.

Telegrams of condolence with the bereaved families are arriving to-night from all parts of Canada, as Mr. MacLeod was well known and universally loved. About five years ago he became the minister of the Presbyterian congregation at Vankleek Hill. During his pastorate, the increase in membership was so large that it was decided last January to erect a large stone church.

Mr. MacLeod was one of the most popular ministers in this district. He had preached in Ottawa and Montreal, and received calls to city pulpits. These he had declined. He was a very forcible preacher and in his evangelical work he was successful. By his geniality of manner and his sterling character he made hosts of friends.

The town never felt a blow so keenly as that caused by the death of Mr. MacLeod. The sight of weeping people on the streets is not uncommon. Business has been practically suspended and on the corners groups of citizens converse in whispers about the catastrophe. Every train brings in friends of the deceased. Many are here from Montreal, Three Rivers and Richmond.

Mr. MacLeod had written to friends in Ottawa stating that he intended to visit that city on Thursday.

He had been married about eight years and leaves three small children. The funeral will take place on Friday by special train to Gould, Carleton county, to the burial ground at the Ross' homestead.

SUNDAY SHAVING.

After Oct. 1st it Will Not Be Permitted in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Sept. 21.—The Police Committee, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, determined that, after October 1st, all barber shops in the city must be closed on Sunday. As was to be anticipated, all the larger hotels, numbering in the aggregate forty-eight, were against any such restriction, while the owners of private shops, to the number of 483, were favorable to the move. Thirty-three barbers alone were neutral. After some discussion, it was decided that by-law No. 74 provided ample authority to close all the shops. Exception, it was pointed out, should be made in the case of travellers at hotels. Ald. Roy finally moved to have the whole question referred to a sub-committee, but Ald. Ames, in amendment, moved that the by-law be enforced and that a sub-committee be appointed to see whether it could not be improved. The enforcement of the by-law will commence on October 1st.
