OFFICES RE-ARRANGED

Considerable change is being made in the office arrangement in the City Building. The Mayor's office is being moved into the space adjoining the Council Chamber formerly occupied by the City Clerk. The City Clerk will now occupy the old Mayor's office together with the old wa-has been cut between these, thus providing more space for the City Clerk and City Collector. Considerable repairs are also being made to the offices.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mr. Neil E.
Matthews, who departed this life February 16th, 1929.

In few spheres of endeavor had private enterprise committed more blunders, or abused its opportunities to a greater extent than, in railway building in Canada, he said.
The present management of the C. N. R. "should not be expected to bear burdens representing the legacies of corruption and graft in the past," Mr. Mosher declared.

The brotherhood spokesman went on to review the condition of the Canadian Railways during the "boom period." He emphasized that "in technical development, the rate of advance by the railways since the war has not been surpassed except by a few infant prodigies, such as the automobile industry.
The efficiency of the railway per employee in 1928 was more than double what it was in 1913."

The brotherhood deplored the laying off of so many workers recently. In October 1931, Mr. Mosher, said the two big railways employed 54,800 fewer employees than in October 1928, a staff reduction in three years of nearly 30 per cent.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up for you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Orlex will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

cautionary measure and that no organized attempt to influence voting was anticipated.

When President William T. Cosgrave heard of the death of Mr.
Reynolds, he said:

"May the Lord have mercy on his soul and bring the person responsible to justice. The people are determined that this sort of work shall be stopped and every right thinking man and woman in the country wishes in God's name that it may be stopped."

The campaign had been one of remarkable quietness until last night when the outbreak of violence changed its entire aspect. Two major parties and several minor groups have named candidates for seats in the Dail. The leader of one of these, the Cumann Na Ngael, is President Cosgrave, who has headed the Free State for ten years and seeks to return to power.
The chief of the other principal party, the Fianna Fail, is the stormy Eamonn De Valera, who opposed President Cosgrave.

In the fortnight's election campaign the government parties have waged their fight for retention of power on a platform of economic cooperation with Great Britain with a view to tariff preferences which would mean money in the Irish farmer's pocket, and the contention that to give power to the Fianna Fail would be to foster communism, lawlessness, and favoritism to the "gun bullies."

The Fianna Fail have conducted the most moderate campaign in their history. The party objects of making Ireland self-contained, further severance from Great Britain, and such details as abolition of oath to the King and the land annuities to Great Britain have been renounced. The retort to the charge of favoring the gunmen has been that most of these would make good citizens if given a government which they could support. Repeal of the Public Safety Act of 1921, establishing military tribunals for offenses against public order, is promised if Fianna Fail is returned to power.

Politicians believe that had the election been held a few months ago Mr. De Valera would almost certainly have won a majority in the Dail. Dissatisfaction was growing, unemployment had increased to about 70,000 and there was a de-spread feeling that the Fianna Fail should be given a chance at power if for no other reason than to make real the two-party system in Ireland. But during the past few weeks it appeared that sentiment turned back toward the Cosgrave party. The Cosgrave adherents claimed that a Cumann Na Ngael government would be able to negotiate a trade preference agreement with Great Britain from which Ireland would profit. The higher clergy, some claim, definitely favor the Cosgrave cause. The younger clergy, in common with much of the younger Irish lay element, are said to be inclined toward the Fianna Fail and Mr. De Valera.

In the last Dail, which was dissolved Jan. 29, the Cumann Na Ngael and its allies mustered 85 out of 152 seats. A majority of eight or nine usually could be dependent upon in close battles. With every prospect of a close race tomorrow many fear that which ever side wins will have too small a majority to push through any legislative programme.

ECONOMY

Saint John require $250,000; Toronto harbor improvements, $168,000; Upper St. Lawrence River channel improvements, $45,000; Burlington channel improvements, $50,000; and Fort William and Port Arthur harbors, $21,600.

One of the government services which has been cut most heavily in the main estimates tabled by Hon.
E. N. Rhodes, Finance Minister, today, is that administering aviation.
Total appropriations made last session for aviation were $5,442,000.
Today's estimates contain a sum of $1,750,000 to cover a similar field.

This sum is spread over training, civil air operations and air mail routes. Under training are included all expenses in connection with the general maintenance of the Air Force. Civil air operations provide for flying in connection with aerial photographic surveys, forestry patrols, etc. Under the heading of air mail routes come the expenses in connection with establishment of maintenance of these routes, preparation and lighting of intermediate landing fields, etc.

LABOR DEPARTMENT

Labor department estimates show a material reduction. The total appropriation for this department, contained in the main estimates tabled today is $317,000. Of this sum only $167,000 is voted, the remaining $150,000 being authorized by statute for organization and co-ordination of employment offices.

Last session total appropriations for the Labor department were $397,000, of which $247,000 was voted, the remainder being authorized by statute.

MINES AND SURVEY WORK

Approximately $200,000 has been lopped off total estimates of last session for the Department of Mines and Geological Survey, when main estimates tabled today were compared with the total for last session.
Parliament will be asked to vote $225,000, in the main estimates tabled today. Last session total appropriations were $724,600.

For the mines branch the amount placed in today's main estimates is $238,500, as against total appropriations of $300,000 last session. The geological survey appropriation for explorations, surveys, etc., is $152,- 500, as compared with total appropriations of $190,000 last session.

INDIAN AFFAIRS

A decrease in the financial problem for the Department of Indian Affairs is shown in the main estimates tabled today. The total appropriation to be voted is $3,873,- 000. Last session total appropriations amounted to $4,726,609. The sum placed in the estimates today is to provide for expenses connected with administration of Indian affairs, including salaries, supplies, relief, medical attendance, hospitalization and various other activities.
In addition to this an amount of $234,000 for Indian annuities is authorized by statute.

NO POWER TO INTRODUCE NEW WORKING HOURS

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 15. (By the Canadian Press)—The Dominion does not possess the legislative power to force Canadian industry to introduce the six-hour day or the five day week. W. A. Gordon, newly appointed Minister of Labor, told the House of Commons today. He opposed a resolution sponsored by
A. A. Heaps, Labor, Winnipeg north, which would place the House on record as favoring that, "hours of labor be reduced materially and the purchasing power of the masses increased," as one permanent cure for unemployment. Although the Heaps resolution did not specify the six hour day and the five day week, succeeding speakers drew this inference from its phraseology.

"There is something in the case that in times of depression or prosperity, a section of those who labor does not receive adequate remuneration," said Mr. Gordon. It was his first important speech in the House since assuming the Labor portfolio after the resignation of Senator Gideon Robertson. But, he continued, in proposing sweeping legislative restrictions, provincial legal rights must be considered. "This House has not the power to do what is suggested in the resolution," and he doubted if any committee or body could sit around a council table and could devise a scheme of hours and remuneration applicable to every industry.

"You cannot put the farmer on a five-hour day. That is impossible," said Mr. Gordon. He was at a loss to know what legislation could be introduced in the House
"to bring into fruition the idea behind the resolution."

Labor sometimes had its case argued by men who were more sincere in their utterances than in actions, continued the Labor Minister.
"One proponent of labor" in the House had applied in one year for 345 permits for men to enter the country, ostensibly to work on farms. Not one, he said, had entered agriculture but instead had entered industry, complicating further general labor conditions.

A. A. Heaps, Labor, Winnipeg north,
ference from its phraseology.

since assuming the Labor portfolio
after the resignation of Senator
Gideon Robertson. But, he continued, in proposing sweeping legis-
to every industry.

sible," said Mr. Gordon. He was at
could be introduced in the House

Labor sometimes had its case ar-
tions, continued the Labor Minister.
House had applied in one year for
ther general labor conditions.

REMEMBERED BY S' SIDE FRIENDS

(Special to the Guardian)

A farewell banquet was tendered to Mr. J. J. Morris, newly appointed manager of the Provincial Bank of Canada at Charlottetown, last night at the Clifton Hotel by the Summerside Board of Trade, of which Mr. Morris was president in 1925-26. About sixty members were present. Mr. B. W. Robinson, President presided.

After the excellent menu provided by Mr. Titus had been heartily enjoyed, a short business session was called to order. Mr. H. T. Holman read the following resolution on behalf of the board: "Whereas Mr. J. J.
Morris was president of the Board of Trade in 1925-26. About sixty members were present. Mr. B. W. Robinson, President presided.
