

BLACK FLAG POWDER

POSITIVELY EFFECTIVE

say Successful Fur Ranchers

FOX, mink or any other fur-bearing animal cannot thrive if infested with blood-sucking parasites, such as fleas and lice. Scratched and bitten fur, weakened physical condition and fur of poor texture are the results of this infestation.

You can prevent this condition with Black Flag Powder—the deadliest, yet most economical insecticide known—enthusiastically endorsed by successful fur ranchers. Black Flag instantly destroys all fleas, lice and other parasites on fur-bearing animals. Absolutely non-poisonous.

Don't waste time on powders that merely stun or stupefy. Use Black Flag—proved by hundreds of tests to be the most effective.

VERDICT RESERVED—An Amherst dispatch of April 28th, says The trial of Helen Farrow and Ernest Wilson, charged with criminal neglect in the death here of an infant on April 14, began here this morning before Judge George Patterson, at the opening session of the Cumberland County Court. A. C. Milner conducted the prosecution, with James A. Hanway, K. C., appearing for the defense. Edna Auld, of Charlottetown, who had traveled with the Farrow girl and Wilson and the child, said they had come to Amherst from Charlottetown and had spent some time in Moncton en route. The Farrow girl said she had tried to take care of the child the best she could with the limited means at her disposal. Dr. J. Robertson, who presided at the inquest on April 15, claimed pneumonia had been the cause of death. He remarked that the exposure in the barn, where the party found shelter on the night of April 14, might have been a contributory cause. After hearing the evidence, Judge Patterson reserved decision until tomorrow morning.

ISLANDER INJURED—The Moncton Transcript of Wednesday says: Lewis Drake, claiming Morell P. E. I., as his home, is in the City Hospital here suffering from a lacerated and badly bruised right leg sustained the day before yesterday at the C. N. R. depot where he struck some express boxes as he swung off the Ocean Limited from Montreal. He claimed protection at the police station on Monday night and remained there all day yesterday and complained this morning of his injuries. A doctor was called and upon examination ordered the young man to hospital. Drake, according to his story, was making his way home from the west and was riding the "front end" of the Limited when the train pulled into Moncton. There were ten men on the tender of the engine at the time, he says, and when he tried to alight while the train was in motion, his foot slipped and he went under the car, but still clung to the hand-hold. "I could see my legs across the rails and to save myself from being run over I swung out and as I did, my leg struck some boxes of express" the young man said to a Transcript reporter this morning. Drake made light of his injuries at first but the pain grew steadily worse until this morning he was suffering considerably. An examination of the injured member showed it to be cut just below the knee, with considerable swelling below.

BRITISH LAUD U. S. BAN ON SANDWEDGE NIBBLICK

LONDON, April 29.—(U.P.)—A majority of British golf critics laud the action of the United States Golfers' Association in declaring the sandwedge niblick to be an illegal implement.

George Greenwood of the Daily Telegraph says: "How the club was ever permitted in the first place I could never understand, because there never was a clearer instance of a player being able to 'buy a shot in a shop.'"

"Moreover, the club has a concave face, which imparts back spin to the ball without the player having to learn the art."

Anthony Spalding writing in the Evening Star says, "Included in the outfit brought over last year by Bobby Jones was a new form of niblick, shaped like a wedge, with concave ace, and it weighed 25 oz. Horton Smith and other American professionals also carried a 'wedge.'"

"With this brutal and crude club Bobby Jones and his like could get the ball out of almost any position in sand. The result was to set a fashion in niblicks, both in the States and in Britain. At present the 'sand wedge' is permitted in this country. How long it may be before the Royal and Ancient prescribe its use is not certain, but I would suggest that all professionals should clear out their stock at bargain prices."

Henry Cotton argues in favor of the sand wedge. He says it requires skill and is a great aid to beginning players.

GENEVA, April 28.—League of Nations efforts to simplify motoring in Europe for American and other tourists is producing some odd results. A special committee has just completed a model fiscal permit that will permit tourists to use their own auto in a country for 90 days without paying taxes or duty. The permit, however, consists of nothing less than 48 pages of printed matter in the language of the country that issues it, but with the mitigating fact that it must be printed in Latin characters.

France Draws "Magna Charta" For Colonies

BY RALPH HEINZEN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 30.—The French Government has drawn up a 1931 "Magna Charta" for its great overseas empire intended to give the colonial possessions a greater voice in matters of the empire government filled with promises for the energetic development of the rich territories scattered around the seven seas. France promises to spend hundreds of millions of francs to make the colonies better places for the natives to live in and asks in return only continued loyalty to the Tricolor. Political observers in Paris see in the move another masterpiece of French diplomacy in avoiding future troubles of the kind which have rocked the British Empire since the start of the century.

France's Promises
In its "bill of promises," France makes among others the following offers.

Develop inter-colonial communications by airplane, wireless and trans-Saharan railway.

Prospect the colonies scientifically and methodically for minerals and oil. Provide a new regime creating Colonial Banks of Issue, to provide credits for agriculture and industry. Legislate for free-exchange between France and the colonies.

Over-rule French laws obtained in 1922 by French winegrowers and permit colonial rums to be sold in French markets.

Subsidize efforts to produce in the colonies the products France is now buying in world markets; rubber, cotton, coffee, raw silk, wool, rice, arachide, sugar and meats.

Introduce a project at the League of Nations for the creation of an International Colonial Bureau, under the League, to draft a code of colonial law.

Send medical missions with most modern equipment to cleanse the colonies of fevers and epidemic. Nine million francs will be spent in 1931 in fighting "sleeping sickness."

Tariff Change

The utmost importance is attached to the change from a high protective tariff in France, which keeps our colonial and foreign goods alike, to a regime of free colonial trade. Such legislation might cost the United States and Britain some of their finest export markets, particularly in Oceania and Africa, where American competition has practically driven French manufactured goods from the market.

At present only 15 percent of France's export trade is with her colonies, but the Government has set as its aim the equivalent of Great Britain's overseas trade half of which is with her Dominions and Colonies.

It is the opinion of French economists that the overseas empire, with every kind of climate and soil condition, can raise all sorts of natural materials which French industries need. This agricultural development will be concentrated, at first,

NEW HAMPSHIRE PLANS BIG RACING TRACK

SALEM, N. H., April 29.—(U.P.)—Stables for 600 horses will be constructed and general improvements made in the track and grounds at Rockingham Park here at an estimated cost of $200,000, according to William V. Dwyer, owner of the St. John's race track at Jacksonville, Fla.

The organization backing the track will be known as the Rockingham Jockey Club. It will be the farthest north-track in the country.

It is expected that the first races will be run in July. Opening day receipts and purses will be given to New Hampshire charities, it was announced.

Fishing Industry

Coastal fishing will also be developed to provide France and the colonies with all the fish they require. At present, France is spending $12,000,000 annually for fish food.

France will also enter the whale-oil industry and the first whaling ships will soon follow the French warship which was sent to take possession of the Kerguelen Islands. These will be made the base for French whaling efforts. Last year 325,000 tons of whale oil were produced in the world, valued at $60,000,000 and France did not figure for one cent although the Kerguelens are richly populated with seals and their waters with sea elephants and sea-leopards and whales.

Every User Likes the New John Deere

THE LIGHT-DRAFT SPREADER WITH THE BEATER ON THE AXLE AND THE BOX-ROLL TURN

Because of its distinctive features which permit better work, lighter draft and easier loading, the New John Deere 3-beater, tight-bottom spreader with the beater on the axle and box-roll turn appeals to everyone who has seen it.

The low down box does away with high pitching—the hard work in manure spreading.

High drive wheels, roller bearings, large, non-wrapping four-bar upper beater, and fewer moving parts make it easier pulling for your horses.

The beaters are low down—manure is released close to ground for more uniform spreading—manure does not drift.

Box-Roll Turn permits short turn-arounds without tipping.

You can make a one-man lime-spreading outfit out of the New John Deere by using the low-cost lime-spreading attachment which we can furnish.
