Less Favorable Reports Issued

Yesterday's Bulletins Not Altogether Discouraging—Condition of the Lung Still Giving Trouble.

(Canadian Press)
LONDON, Dec. 9.—Tonight's bulletin showed that while the King had passed a quiet day, he had not recovered from the exhaustion resulting from his fever. The bulletin, signed by Sir Stanley Hewitt and Lord Dawson of Penn, read: "The King passed a quiet day but there is no diminution in the exhaustion referred to in this morning's bulletin. The pulse remains steady."

LONDON, Dec. 9.—After the issuance of the morning bulletin the statement was made by a high authority that notwithstanding the announcement in the bulletin that a certain measure of exhaustion was being produced there was no marked change in the King's condition.

The bulletin thought regarded as being of a less satisfactory nature than could be desired, nevertheless exhaustion was declared to be one of the anticipated effects of the King's long and trying illness.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The progress of the King today as shown by medical bulletins issued in the morning and evening was less favorable than might have been hoped for, but was not altogether discouraging. The royal patient has still been able to sleep and again had an undisturbed day, but the persistence of fever conditions noticed in both bulletins is producing the inevitable exhaustion. This persistence of the fever shows that the local affection in the lung is still giving trouble.

In the favor of His Majesty the fact, twice announced today, that the pulse remains steady, which would seem to indicate his exhaustion has not yet reached a stage reacting adversely on the action of his heart.

Another favorable point today, in the view of the general public, was that only two regular physicians were in attendance at Buckingham Palace. So far as is known neither Sir Farquhar Buzzard, Sir Humphrey Rolleston, nor Dr. H. Graham Dawson were at the palace today.

Of these had joined yesterday in signing a bulletin and their non-appearance today showed that further consultations are considered unnecessary at the present stage of the illness. Sir Stanley and Lord Dawson however are still constantly in attendance, in addition to the morning and evening visits they both made a visit in the afternoon.

Their morning report was: "The King has had several hours sleep."

RETURNED FOR LOOT BUT IS CAUGHT

Police Officers Apprehend Man With Bag of Chickens Belonging to Mr. J. D. Jenkins, Saturday night

On Saturday evening Mr. J. D. Jenkins having occasion to enter his business establishment on Sunnyside was amazed to find an intruder. The man attempted to make off and Mr. Jenkins grappled with him, but the intruder managed to make a break-away and made good his escape.

The police were informed and watch was kept with the result that the man was reckless enough to return later to carry away his loot and was apprehended.

Access is given to Mr. Jenkins' establishment by two gangways, one opening from Grafton Street and the other on Kent Street.

One of the officers, who with Mr. Jenkins was standing at Grafton Street gangway saw a man coming through the yard with what looked to be an overcoat slung over his shoulder. When the officer accosted him, the man dropped the overcoat and ran away going through the gangway to Kent Street.

Mr. Jenkins was able to identify him as the person he grappled with earlier in the evening and the object he dropped turned out to be a bag full of chickens, evidently stolen from Mr. Jenkins' stock.

Another officer gave chase and caught up to the man on Kent Street and he was taken into custody and lodged in jail. He will appear before the Stipendiary Magistrate on a charge of theft.

Upon investigation of his business premises Mr. Jenkins found that a great many chickens and fowl were missing from his stock.

50 MILLIONS TO BE SPENT IN MARITIMES

(Special to The Guardian)
MONCTON, Dec. 8.—Approximately fifty million dollars will be spent by the Canadian National Railways in the Atlantic Region in the year 1929 according to a statement made by Mr. W. U. Appleton, General Manager of the region, today. This vast amount of money will be distributed by the National System for all sorts of supplies and materials for labor and in maintenance. It is an expenditure that actually averages fifty dollars per head for every man, woman and child in the three provinces, probably the largest operating expenditure made by any railway on this continent in any one section of country in proportion to the population.

The Little Ones Need Your Help

The Santa-Pal Club Is Daily Growing—"Ye Have Done It Unto Me," is Your Greatest And Most Glorious Acknowledgment.

After the services yesterday our small community like ours is that in harmony with the central fact of Christianity, the birth of the Redeemer. It is only a few more weeks before we shall be celebrating that epochal event by actual worship, for we are all Christians, though most of us may have to confess that we are not always working at our profession. We have St. Paul's authority for the assertion that the essence of Christianity is to visit the widow and fatherless in their affliction, and to bring comfort to the poor in their distress. That is the motto of the Santa-Pals Club. They want to visit (by proxy), the widowed mother with fatherless children and other poor children who will be in distress if their stockings be empty on Christmas morning. How will you have peace of mind; how possibly can you take part in the Christmas church services if you have willfully or negligently failed in your essential duty as a Christian to care for God's poor and little ones? NOVA SCOTIA DAIRYING IS AFFECTED

New Zealand Product Drives Returns to Farmers Down in Nova Scotia, Market Study Reveals.

TRURO, Dec. 7.—The Montreal wholesale price for butter is now 3 cents per pound, or three-quarters of a cent higher than in October. The prices in Nova Scotia are based on the Montreal market.

The effect of the importation of butter from New Zealand is verily marked, according to information secured from the office of W. J. Bird, dairy superintendent for the province. Previous to the signing of the Australian treaty and for the first two years afterward, before importations of butter from the Antipodes had reached large proportions, it was customary for the

Four Nurses in Attendance on His Majesty Represent the Four Nationalities of Great Britain

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, Dec. 8.—In the background in these days of anxiety, with the burden of responsibility in every instant of the day and night, never relaxing their vigil.

For an hour a day, each in turn leaves the Palace to ease the strain of her difficult task. All of them are gentle-voiced and pleasant-faced, with quiet, soothing ways and they are felt to have a restful effect on their royal patient, not only because of these facts but because the King knows and appreciates their worth. They have been in attendance upon him previously, and he looks upon them as friends. The nurse, it is said, have found the King an excellent patient, ever maintaining simple courtesy and cheerfulness and never complaining.

All the nurses saw Red Cross service during the war in hospitals because of numerous battlefronts and possess war decorations. Nurses Davies and Black are on the staff of the London Hospital, while Nurse Gordon, of Scotland; Nurse Black of Ireland and Nurse Davies of Wales. From London's thousands of nurses these four women were selected for their important service. Their home is now in Buckingham Palace, and two of them are in attendance on His Majesty every relaxing their vigil.

Briand and Stresemann to Have Confidential Talk Before Regular Sessions of League Council Begin.

(Special to The Guardian)
PARIS, Dec. 8.—Aristide Briand, foreign minister, left Paris this morning with his staff for Lugano, Switzerland, where he arrives this afternoon and will meet the German foreign minister, Dr. Gustav Stresemann tomorrow for a confidential talk before the League Council begins its session on Monday.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British foreign secretary, will join them there on Sunday if reports of the King's health permit him to leave London. If he is unable to go Lord Cusden will take his place. The three foreign ministers will have in the council meetings some problems of secondary importance to tackle, such as the discussion of the fate of Vilna. But the whole interest of the session will be concentrated upon the private conversations that will be held. No one, however, expects that these discussions will have any immediate apparent effect.

All three foreign ministers have in recent meetings made clear their position on the immediate problems of the reparations settlement and the Rhineland evacuation. Until after their experts have met and their governments have accepted their decision, there is practically nothing to be done. They can only plan what is to be done after the final problem, reparations, has been settled.

Since they last met, however, there have been many possible changes in the world which will no doubt form the themes of their conversations. The Kellogg peace pact has been signed, and the Anglo-French naval accord which was expected in some quarters to ease the way to further disarmament discussion has been practically abandoned because of the United States campaign of opposition to it. Moreover the attitude of Italy in respect to the problems that interest all three nations and is held in some ways to threaten the maintenance of peace, will almost certainly be considered in the formation of a general policy.

BERLIN, Dec. 8.—Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann, accompanied by various experts and members of the staff of the foreign office, left tonight for Lugano, Switzerland, apparently in a more pessimistic mood than he has shown for many months. While the foreign office emphasizes that the Lugano meeting concerns the entire League of Nations and that it will deal with a multitude of problems affecting many countries, it is generally conceded that the meeting of Dr. Stresemann and Aristide Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain may have a decisive influence on the whole course of Germany's future in international politics.
