

CRITICAL TIMES

There are certain times in the lives of all men and women when the nerves demand the benefits derived from the use of a good nerve remedy—one that is not merely a sedative but a tonic.

FOSTERS COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES is a true nerve tonic and its effects will be noticed not only upon the improved condition of the nerves but upon the entire system as well. There's nothing like this remedy to tone up the system and make you well and strong—$1.00 bottles.

Letter From Capt. Best Who Will Visit Ch'town

The following letter received from Captain T. F. Best, who is to speak here next Monday night on his experiences at the front, will be read with interest by the many who heard him during his visit to Charlottetown two years ago.

CAPT. T. F. BEST.

Jan. 10, 1919.

My Dear Friend.—Good morning! Awakening out of a happy dream of a visit from my sainted mother, I remembered that this was my birthday, so of course became reminiscent in thought, and soon decided to write you another report letter. The rising Canadian sun was shining brightly through a large German window into my German bedroom as well as upon this German city and its people. Proving the Scripture (Matthew 5:45) "For He maketh His sun to rise on the evil and on the good."

Since writing you I have seen considerable, strange, interesting and remarkable country, as well as numerous towns and cities, made famous by the war in France and Belgium and Germany. Perhaps you could follow me in mind or on map from Etaples to Aubin St. Vaast, Cameron St. Martin, Meronla Laisson, Paris, Versailles, Amiens, Arras, Doull Valenciennes, Mons, Charleroi, Perwez Ramilles, Namur, Liege, Bonn, Cologne, Seigburk, Wahn, Kall, and a number of smaller places where our troops are stationed. I literally wound up my watch on the Rhine, January 2nd, 1919. What a wonderful change has come over the war situation, too, since I last wrote to you. The most optimistic among us could hardly have believed it possible. How much we have to thank God for. How plainly discernable His guiding hand is now. "Oh, we of little faith."

What a relief after five weeks without a letter, to get a grand pile of mail at Bonn and find that the dear ones at home had battled bravely and successfully (Thank God) through the terrible "flu" and were all safe and well. I sat up until 2 a.m. reading letters and opening parcels, such lovely greetings and kind gifts, cheering messages and thoughtful remembrances, quite enough to spoil one who was not already spoiled by kindnesses of many friends. Christmas and New Year's day missed the home touch, but January 2nd, 1919, made up for it. Sharing the boxes of good things with the troops was not only a real pleasure but a precautionary measure as one's "fit" physical condition was in jeopardy from such quantities of Christmas cakes, plum puddings and so on. It is rather a novel experience to get behind the lines formerly held by the enemy, crossing what was once "No man's land," discovering the Boches' old positions, recognizing his work of destruction on every hand. Villages and towns raised to the ground, bridges blown up, railroads wrecked, trees cut down along the road by the thousands and the whole land laid waste. Then we came upon piles of war material, fields full of transport of all kinds, trains loaded with aeroplanes, tanks, artillery and ammunition. Further up where the enemy retired after the armistice was signed, the country looked better and buildings were intact.

Using billets in French and Belgian houses recently occupied by Boche officers was a bit queer, but when we crossed the border and saw the Huns in their own towns, villages and cities coming suddenly upon demobilized "Hemies" at the stations and on the streets, that was a climax of sensation. Trained instinct said "Either shoot or take cover instantly," and yet we did neither.

Now we are billeted in the German houses all along the Rhine and ten to fifteen miles further in, we find the people very civil and friendly; in fact, "given to hospitality." We think too much so to be genuine. It is safely put on for a purpose. We know the breed! This is a prosperous part of Humland, and one of the prettiest parts. The people are, or have been, quite wealthy. Very expensive houses, no architectural beauty, but substantial and well-furnished inside.

Notwithstanding my limited observation and knowledge of the country and people, it seems to me that in roads and streets, in forestry, in cathedrals and public works and in taking life comfortably, we could learn valuable lessons from Germany, and Germany could learn many lessons from us to her advantage, particularly along moral lines. Moral standards here are too low to be tolerated by twentieth century civilization.

This great war has opened many doors of opportunity for Christian service among the troops, but perhaps never has there been such an opportunity for getting practical gospel messages into the minds and hearts of men as at present. Fighting and trench warfare, haddships and heavy drilling are over, or at least suspended, and we are facing homeward, minds relieved of anxiety and heavy strain are open and free for other exercises. Hearts hardened by the brutal bloody experiences of the war, are now softened with thoughts of home and loved ones and peace. Oh, how the boys do listen to "A message from home!"

The good old Y.M.C.A., as many khaki lads call it, is a wonderful organization out here, and is proving a real God-send to our troops. Its leadership has been strong. Then N.C.O.'s and men working for the "Y" are putting up a great program and carrying on a tremendous canteen
