MONDAY

What might have terminated in a very bad accident occurred near George's Island recently when a lobster boat manned by Arthur B. Wood, a lobster fisherman in the employ of J. H. Judson, and Walter McLean, capsized. The men were returning from the fishing grounds when they met with a rather stiff breeze and their boat was turned bottom up. They managed to get on the bottom where they clung for about half an hour before being rescued from their perilous situation by James McLean and of Point Prim who came to their relief in a dory. The young men were brought ashore none the worse for the accident except that they were in a somewhat exhausted condition.

The militia of Prince Edward Island will go into camp tomorrow on the usual ground, the artillery and infantry at Brighton and the Light Horse on the Exhibition Grounds. A., will be Camp Commandant, Major Weeks will be Brigade Major instead of Capt. Watts, Major Bartlett will be Paymaster, Capt. Campbell, musketry instructor, and Col. H. D. Johnson, Principal Medical Officer. Besides Major McLaughlin, M. D., who will be in command of the corps, Captain Walker, Lieutenants Dr. Ledwell, Charlotte town, Dr. J. C. Macdonald, York, and Dr. Lawson, of St. Louis, will attend the A. M. C. camp at Sussex.

The home of Chas. and Mrs. Dym of Springfield was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening last at six o'clock when their daughter Miss Annie E., was united in marriage to Edmund MacWilliams of West Cape in the presence of about fifty invited guests. Rev. H. A. Brown performed the ceremony assisted by Rev. E. S. Weeks of Bideford. The bride was very becomingly attired in white mull trimmed with lace and insertion and was attended by her sister Miss Edna Dym while the groom was ably supported by Charles Crossman of Halifax. The bridal party entered the room to the strains of the wedding march which was played by Mrs. H. A. Brown after the usual congratulations all were ushered into the dining room where a sumptuous table was spread. The bride was the recipient of a large number of gifts and costly presents among which was a very lovely, presented by the Bethel Choir of which she had been organist for the past five years. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful gold watch and chain. After a pleasant evening spent together the happy couple drove to their future home in West Cape. Their many friends join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. MacWilliams a happy and prosperous journey through life.

Anaemia's Victims

Can Find New Health in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Anaemia is simply a lack of blood. It therefore follows that the correct treatment for anaemia is one that increases the blood supply. That is really the only treatment that can possibly be successful. The symptoms of anaemia are easily recognized. Pale skin, listlessness, the failure of women and girls backaches, faintness and palpitation of the heart. To restore the blood supply to its normal quantity and quality Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be recommended with confidence. First because they are known to have cured thousands of anaemic people—the highest possible recommendation. Secondly they actually contain the ingredients that combine to make rich, red blood, without which no man, woman or growing girl can be healthy.

Mrs. E. M. Bell, Iod Deser, Alta., says: "When I came to Alberta some years ago, a young girl, I had been suffering for a couple of years from anaemic blood. Doctors had done everything for me that could be done, but to no purpose. The doctors said I could not live, but that a change of climate might prolong my life, so my father brought me to Alberta. For a short time I did seem to improve, but soon became as bad, if not worse, than before I left Ontario. I could not walk upstairs, walk on the street, or stand in a room for more than a few minutes without fainting. Life was a burden and I did not give up hope of getting better. It was at this time Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my attention, and a supply was got for me. After I had used the second box I thought I felt some better, and I continued taking the Pills until I had used nine or ten boxes, when I felt like a new person. I could walk, ride a bicycle and skate without the dreadful pains in my limbs I had before experienced, and in every way I was enjoying better health than ever before in my life. Now, whenever I feel the need of a tonic turn at once to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I can constantly recommend them to my friends."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Summerside was stirred by the announcement of another sudden death yesterday morning when the Rev. Henry Bamford passed peacefully away about eight o'clock at the residence of his son Rev. F. S. Bamford. The deceased who was seventy-one years of age had been ailing for the past year with Bright's disease, but was able to get up around the house all the time up to the night before his death. Yesterday morning when his son went up to enquire what was keeping him late for breakfast he found him dying and in a few minutes he was dead. He was a native of Rosedale, England, and came to Canada about six years ago with a wife with whom he has since resided. The funeral takes place at 3.30 p.m. tomorrow, Tuesday, to the People's Cemetery.

The death occurred at Summerside early yesterday morning after an illness of about six weeks, the last ten days of which he was confined to his bed. He was the son of the late Charles Peters. The deceased was thirty-seven years of age and leaves to mourn, besides his sorrowing wife and three young boys, his mother, one brother Frederick, and two sisters, Mrs. George Brown, Sherbrook, and Mrs. J. W. Green, Tignish. The deceased was a member of Court Chateaufort, I. O. F. and also a member of the Summerside Fire Department since its organization. The body of the late John Doucette formerly of New Acadia, and until lately of Dubuq, Minn., was brought to the city yesterday evening by his brother Eusebius Loucette. The deceased, who was in his twenty-fifth year, met a sad death while at work on a dredge in the harbor. He fell through the opening in the centre of the scow as the load was being dumped. For eleven days the search for the body continued before the searchers were finally successful, and during which time his brother Eusebius who has been a resident of Boston for the past few years, arrived to take charge of the remains. The deceased only left this province after a vacation spent here about five weeks ago. He leaves a father, Pruno Doucette, a mother, six brothers and three sisters, all at home at New Acadia surviving. This sudden bereavement surrounded by such sad circumstances will call forth from the whole community expressions of sincere sympathy. The body will be forwarded to New Acadia for interment this morning. Isaac Doucette, City, is an uncle of the deceased.

The police court was engaged for a short time on Saturday morning with the case against the Steward of the Charlottetown Club, charged with a breach of the Prohibition Act.

Mr. Johnston for the prosecution and Messrs. McLeod and Bentley for the defence were present when the court opened at 10 o'clock. The Guardian desires to correct an error which crept into the report of the proceedings of Friday which appeared in Saturday's issue. It was stated that Mr. McKinnon's evidence showed that 6,000 slips were used by the Club in six months. This was incorrect. What Mr. McKinnon, the secretary of the club, did state was that 10,000 slips were used by Club members in six months. He had received this information from the defendant himself.

There were two witnesses examined on Saturday. Another witness named Neil McDonald had not been arrested. The officer who had the warrant for his apprehension reported that he had searched for the witness at his residence at Inette and had been unable to find him. He had learned from the residents of his home that the witness had left his home on Monday last and had not returned. Mr. Johnston for the Prosecutor stated that from information in possession of the prosecutor, Mr. McDonald was a moss-cutting man. The intention of the Prosecutor to close the case without his evidence. The Magistrate directed the City Marshal to have the witness caught.

The first witness examined had been a member of the Club since 1907 and had procured 14 bottles, not more than two at any one time. He would take these bottles either home or to the country and some of it might be consumed by others beside himself. He had often got bottles for the Club. He had been treated at the Club. Had treated strangers, remembered a particular day this spring when he took four or five strangers to the Club and had treated them between half past three and four o'clock in the afternoon. Some were staying at the hotel where they were driven to, and others walked. They had been driven in his carriage which he had obtained at a livery stable. Could not say if they were under the influence of liquor.

He said it was on an occasion when people are generally joyful. The second witness was a drugist who said he was a member of the Club for the last 20 years. Had got liquor at the Club, and had been treated and treated members, treated non-members. He did not often go to the Club and was sorry for it. He remembered the city a few years ago. He had not got any supplies from the Club for the store, did not sell liquor in the store, very little liquor was dispensed medically. Knew it was against the rules of the Club to treat members. A notice to this effect had been posted in the Club room.

The court adjourned until Saturday, 2nd July next, for further evidence.

The announcement that Rev. T. F. Fullerton would preach on the Coronation Oath drew an unusually large congregation to St. James' Church last evening. The pastor took for his text John 15:14—Ye are My friends, if ye do the things which I command you. After a brief exposition of this text in the obligation of obedience to Christ, he claimed that this had been departed from by the Roman Catholic Church, notably in the dark ages. There were no priests in the early Christian Church, but later the Pope and priesthood, the Cross, the Virgin Mother, the worship of saints and the Mass had largely taken the place of the Saviour in the Catholic Church. With these come the assumption of power in the state, the right to set up and depose kings and to absolve subjects from their allegiance, and a spirit of intolerance and persecution. These were contrary to the teachings of Christ. He admitted that intolerance and persecution had been by no means confined to the Catholic Church, as he had a like condemnation for the Calvinism that sent Servetus to death as for the massacre of Bartholomew's day.

The teachings of the Catholic Church were that all outside of its pale were damned, and that the doctrines and teachings of that church were always and bloody struggle that freedom from the persecuting power was obtained. The Coronation Oath represented the determination to hold what had been achieved at so great a cost. But there were words in it which in our time are necessarily offensive to Roman Catholics, words which denounced the worship of saints and the mass as idolatrous and superstitious. He did not so regard them, and thought the words of the oath in that regard might properly be struck out, if care was taken to guard the Protestant successors of what it stood for. He argued that the disabilities formerly imposed upon Catholics in Protestant countries grew out of their previous intolerance when they had the power and the belief that a return thereto would be dangerous. But we ought not to meet intolerance with intolerance. He spoke of the great good which in many ways the Roman Catholic Church is doing and might do as a Christian organization and spoke of Archbishop Bruchesi as a great power for good in Montreal. They had a right to preach and teach what they believed, but not to encroach upon the lawful authority of the state or the just rights of others.

In this province there were public moneys paid to support Catholic teaching in the schools. The Presbyterians, almost as numerous, would not claim to have the doctrines of their Church thus taught. They were glad to extend equal rights and liberty of conscience to all, but objected to special privileges, being granted, or to the assumption of political power in the state by any church. The above synopsis does not give the preacher's words and only purports to set out in brief the substance of that part of his discourse relating to the Coronation Oath. The National Anthem was sung at the close of the service. In Grace Church Rev. William Harrison occupied the pulpit at both morning and evening service. At the former he spoke on "A Gospel of Certainty" the text being from Luke 1:1, and in the evening his subject was "Old Enemies Pursuing," and his text was from Exodus 14:10. Rev. E. J. Grant supplied the Baptist Church yesterday and preached forcible sermons at each service. In the morning he spoke from Psalm 31:19 and in the evening his text was Proverb 23:23. In Zion Church Rev. G. E. Ross, officiated at the morning service preaching from Isaiah 40:27. "Why hid from the Lord." In the evening Rev. J. P. Floyd exchanged with Mr. Ross and he delivered a strong discourse on mission work. In the Central Christian Church yesterday Rev. Mr. Floyd, the pastor, preached in the morning, and in the evening Rev. Mr. Ross of Zion Church officiated at the service. Rev. H. E. Thomas, preached at both services in the First Methodist Church yesterday. In the morning his text was from Matthew 6:34 and at the evening service his text was from 1 Corinthians 3:9—"For we are Laborers Together with God." In the Anglican Churches yesterday the rectors of St. Peter's and St. Paul's, Rev. Canon Simpson and Rev. T. W. Murphy, occupied their respective pulpits at both morning and evening services.

On Thursday last, as previously noted in the Guardian, the Angel of Death visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden, Cherry Valley, and took away their dearly beloved daughter, Annie. She was one of the noblest and best girls that ever lived; and her kindness of heart, endearing and gentle disposition, endeared her to a very large circle of friends who mourn her loss. Her death was just at the time when the flowers of life should be blooming at their brightest and best. Dear Annie was taken ill over a year ago—and since then all that the best doctors, her kind and loving parents and brother and sister could do to restore her to health was done (for human beings could do no more than they did), but all to no avail; and on that bright June morning her bright young spirit freed itself from its earthly prison and winged its flight to its home in the sunlight of the Saviour she served so faithfully and well while here below.

The funeral took place on Saturday and was one of the largest seen in this community for years—Rev. D. B. McLeod conducting the services in the house and at the little Methodist cemetery, the white casket covered with beautiful flowers that were emblematic of the stainless purity of the earthly life of the fair young flower that slept beneath; they tenderly laid to rest all that was mortal of our young friend, there to await the dawn of the glorious resurrection. The pall-bearers were: Roy Mutch, Neil McKinnon, Gavin Irving, Philip Webster, Daniel McIsaac and John Rooney.—A Friend.

The Fire Board of this city, consisting of Councilors R. M. Johnson, T. Campbell and Lane, the former the chairman, met last night and conducted an investigation into the recent Queen Hotel fire and at the same time brought out several matters of equal importance with the fire. His Worship Mayor Rogers, Stipendiary J. A. Macdonald, Councilor Riley, City Clerk Clark and others were in attendance were examined. A number of witnesses were examined who were interrogated by Marshall Cameron and the members of the fire board, and the testimony given was in relation to the recent discovery on two occasions of half burned oil saturated waste and excelsior in the cutting of the moulding on the doors of the main entrance to the Charlottetown Club premises and George A. B. McDonald's Drugstore and the breaking into of E. Auld's premises on Queen Street, besides the Queen Hotel fire.

The first witness examined was Peter J. Doyle, steward of the Club. He testified that one night in December last the moulding on the front door of the club was cut about five or six inches in two places. The moulding was damaged considerably and required repairs. Before this happened a party had applied to the managing committee for a position as watchman, and he did not know who he had been engaged or not. Speaking to this party after the occurrence the man referred generally to the affair. This was all in connection with this case.

R. H. Sterns gave evidence regarding the Queen Hotel fire. He told of his discovery of the fire at about one forty-five Wednesday morning last while on his usual rounds. He first saw the smoke from the stable and ran back to the Victoria and told the Victoria watchman, Mr. Craswell, who gave the alarm. He got a lantern and returned to the stable and extinguished the blaze. He found a board had been removed from the Lorne Young told of his being informed of the drugstore occurrence in the early morning by the night watchman. John Proud denied having written the letter to which his name was appended as described in Mr. Sterns' evidence. He knew absolutely nothing of it.

Francis E. Kiggins told of the night watchman's movements on the night of the Queen Hotel fire. He had seen him shortly before the alarm rang at Owen Trainor's corner. He referred to the drugstore door incident and told of seeing the watchman after the fire at the stables.

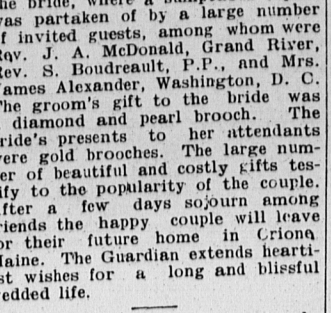

Robert Rattray told the board what he knew of the Hotel fire and of the finding of the oil bottle and burned paper.

The fire board, after hearing the evidence decided that it be handed over to the Stipendiary Magistrate, he to take whatever steps in the case he deemed necessary under the existing circumstances.

bottom of the barn and a bottle of kerosene oil and a bundle of papers partially burned were there. These were exhibited before the Fire Board. A party had applied to him on two occasions wishing to be engaged to watch the premises but he had put him off. The last time he applied was three days before the fire. An employee of his, Harry Ottaway told Mr. Sterns that this party had been around the stable twice before the fire. On one occasion he told of a woman who he said was drunk and hanging around the hotel yard and said Sterns should have a watchman. The next time he told Ottawa that Mr. Sterns had been too mean to employ him but remarked that he would be sorry for it. Mr. Sterns told of a letter received yesterday morning, delivered by a boy of twelve or thirteen years, signed "John Proud" which stated that a watchman had set the fire, and said that he should not be too hard on her.

Harry Ottaway, corroborated the evidence respecting his conversation with the nightwatchman. He said he had not seen him since the fire. He left the hotel that night at 10.15 and everything was in a state of confusion. Mr. J. H. Hogan testified that a window on the north side of his factory was broken and that a piece of waste partially consumed by fire, had been found by his fireman on a planer near the window. He told of some half burned excelsior which was found on the floor in the engine room by the fireman on another occasion. Previous to this, a watchman had been employed. When May came in he dispensed with the man's services. This was shortly before the first occurrence referred to happened. It appeared to him as if the waste had been set afire and the stable stamped out before being run down inside. He did not know his former watchman since the fire.

Rufus Hogan's evidence was of the same nature as M. P. Hogan's. He had not seen their former employee since the two discoveries mentioned. Arthur Furbush, Mr. Hogan's fireman, told of finding the waste in the excelsior. He said he had given the excelsior to Chief Ronaghan.

George E. Auld said that his premises on Queen Street had been broken into and entered by some marauder who evidently wished to have it known that the place had been entered. He said he was on duty at the time and entered by the cellar door and entered by the cellar door. Things were tossed about. He had a watchman employed for a time but after hearing of Mr. McDonald's drugstore being set afire, he had a warning him not to tamper with his door. This was before his store was entered.

G. A. B. McDonald related the incidents previous to and after the cutting of his door last December. He had received a verbal application from a party who wished to be employed to watch his store. He had refused, and he had a warning him not to tamper with his door. This was before his store was entered.

Lorne Young told of his being informed of the drugstore occurrence in the early morning by the night watchman. John Proud denied having written the letter to which his name was appended as described in Mr. Sterns' evidence. He knew absolutely nothing of it.

Francis E. Kiggins told of the night watchman's movements on the night of the Queen Hotel fire. He had seen him shortly before the alarm rang at Owen Trainor's corner. He referred to the drugstore door incident and told of seeing the watchman after the fire at the stables.

Robert Rattray told the board what he knew of the Hotel fire and of the finding of the oil bottle and burned paper.

The fire board, after hearing the evidence decided that it be handed over to the Stipendiary Magistrate, he to take whatever steps in the case he deemed necessary under the existing circumstances.
