Dr. Pettersen said a system whereby the airport was heated had been successful in clearing fog from five runways by evaporation.

The second experiment was to spray a solution of sulphur chloride into the fog above the airport. An area 150 feet wide, 30 feet in height and 1,500 feet long was cleared by this method he said.

Balkans Begin To Simmer Under Nazi Activities

Movement of German Troops into Southeastern Europe believed double earlier estimate.

(By Robert B. Parker, Associated Press Staff Writer) BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 28 (AP) - Estimates of the number of German troops moving across Hungary rose from the original 300,000 to 600,000 today as reports indicated that at least some of them might remain in Hungary.

The bulk of them are bound for Rumania. Hungary's Minister of Agriculture, Michael Teleki, resigned today because, it was reported, he differed with the Government over the mass movement of German troops through Hungary.

Other dissension within the Government also was reported but it could not be learned whether more resignations might be expected. The thoroughness with which German army railroad technicians have taken hold of Hungarian rail lines between Slovakia and southeastern Europe indicated they plan to retain control until they have completed whatever campaign they may be organizing in the Balkans.

Telephone connections with Switzerland were cut temporarily by the censor Saturday night and German troops were called correspondents and "suggested" they refrain from saying the Hungarian state railways were under German management.

The main Hungarian rail lines radiate in four lines south of Budapest. Two branch toward the west in the direction of northern Yugoslavia and Italy. The third goes straight south in Yugoslavia and the fourth forks eastward into Rumania.

Reports trickling through the Rumanian censor indicated that most of the Germans moved directly into camps and barracks previously prepared in western Rumania, between Arad and Timisoara near the Yugoslav frontier, and along the southern Rumanian border between Giurgiu and the Black Sea opposite Bulgaria.

One item of military equipment arming and by sending every ounce and every ton of munitions and supplies that we can possibly spare to help the defenders who are in the front lines.

"It is no more un-neutral for us to do that than it is for Sweden, Russia and other nations near Germany to send steel and ore and oil and other war materials into Germany every day."

All present efforts to speed up defence construction "are not enough," Mr. Roosevelt declared, "we must have more ships, more guns, more planes—more of everything."

"We have furnished the British great material support and we will furnish far more in the future."

"There will be no 'bottlenecks' in our determination to aid Great Britain," Mr. Roosevelt said, "no matter how many dictators will weaken the determination by threats of how they will contribute that determination."

"The experience of the last two years," Roosevelt declared, "has proven beyond doubt that no nation can appease the Nazis."

"No man can tame a tiger into a kitten by stroking it," he continued, "and the Nazis are proceeding with ruthlessness. There can be no reasoning with an incendiary bomb."

"We know now that a nation can have peace with the only nation that can be brought to terms at the price of total surrender."

Declaring that even the Italian people have been forced to "become accomplices of the Nazis," the President added: "At this moment they do not know how soon they will be embraced to death by their allies."

Appeasers Ignore Warnings Mr. Roosevelt declared that "American appeasers" ignore warnings found in the fate of conquered European nations and argue that "the United States might just as well let Hitler's influence into the scale of a dictated peace, and get the best out of it that we can."

"There were also a few distinguished Flying Medals, the counterpart of the D.F.C. for non-commissioned airmen."

There were scores of Canadian soldiers in the ranks, Canadian army officers transferred back to the Dominion as instructors and smaller units of imperial army officers some of whom bore physical souvenirs of Dunkerque.

The experiences of Lieut. "Bud" Jarvis of Newcastle, N. B., former Halifax Wolverines and Saint John Beavers guild, were typical of what the men have been living through. "Bombs just missed me five times while I was at 'Wader-shot' (military camp)," he recalled. "They took all my clothes once."

"And most important of all," he continued, "the vast resources and wealth of this hemisphere constitute the most tempting loot in all the world."

The President said he wished to "make the direct statement to the American people that there is far less chance of the United States setting into war, if we do all we can now to support the nations defending themselves against attack by the Axis than if we acquiesce in their defeat, submit tamely to an Axis victory and wait our turn to be the object of an attack in another war later on."

"Our national policy is not directed toward war. Its sole purpose is to keep war away from our country and our people."

The United States, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, should aid "democracy's fight against world conquest" more greatly by re-

After a lapse of several hours The Associated Press correspondent succeeded in getting New York by telephone.

The intensity of the fires lit the way for the raiders more than ever before.

Waves of bombers apparently carrying cargoes of incendiary bombs—and no explosives—attacked the capital just after dark. They hurled hundreds upon hundreds of incendiary bombs to light the way for the raiders who snatched ton upon ton of explosives over the city in their blazing wake.

Sensing another ferocious attack, London's millions darted down subway entrances to safety. Others took refuge in their backyard Anderson shelters, the steel huts distributed by the government.

"Spotters' Stick Hundreds of rooftop fire 'spotters' stuck to their posts, and it is believed that many of these blundered in the mounting casualty list.

Reports indicated that at least two waves of raiders dropped incendiary bombs exclusively. Several "baskets" of fire bombs were loosed in one area.

One bomb exploded causing a reverberation that lasted at least two minutes.

Private messages from London indicated that incendiaries fell on the building at 20 Tudor Street housing the offices of The Canadian Press. There were no casualties.

On the morning of Christmas, Dr. Bonnell said that he had written to church leaders of all faiths asking them to appeal to Pope Pius XII, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the British Bishop of Germany for a suspension of warfare on Christmas Day so that "the people of belligerent countries could go to their churches and cathedrals to pray for peace without the fear of mutilation and death."

Dr. Bonnell said he had conceived the idea of a holiday truce after reading John Milton's "On the Morning of Christ's Nativity." He said the inspiration had come to him from the verse: "No war, no battle, church, and the world heard the world around: The idle spear and shield were high uphung; The hooked chariot stood untrusty with hostile blood; The trumpet spake not to the armed throng; And kings sat still with awful eye As if they surely knew their sov'reign God's great day had come."

Dr. Bonnell said that he had written in October to the Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York; the Rev. Frederick H. Knudel, president of the United Lutheran Church in America; E. J. Millington, president of the Northern Baptist Convention; the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. Dr. Francis J. McConnell, senior Bishop of the Methodist Church; and the Rev. William Lindsay Young, moderator of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Bonnell said he wished to stress his gratitude especially to Dr. Knudel and the Rev. Almond R. Pepper, acting for Bishop Tucker, who worked unceasingly on plans for the truce. Dr. Bonnell said that Dr. Knudel had been in direct contact with religious leaders in Germany, especially the Landesbischof of the Reich, and that the Rev. Mr. Pepper had made valuable contacts with the established church in England.

"I am tremendously gratified that the prediction of the truce has been fulfilled," Dr. Bonnell said, "and that the peoples of Germany and Britain can enjoy the Christmas season without fear of mutilation and death. I hope that this temporary truce, which was possible only because of the spirit of good will that Christmas has brought to the world, may be the seed for an enduring peace. And I hope that the fact of the truce will turn the minds of belligerents to Christ, the Prince of Peace, and that even the most ruthless of men may not remain unthought of."

(Prime Minister Churchill announced that Britain had no intention of maintaining a Christmas truce in a war in which she was fighting as the champion of Christian civilization.)

Watch Family Now While Epidemic Colds Are Spreading

At a treacherous time like this, with an epidemic of contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed. AT THE FIRST SNIFFLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION, put a few drops of Vicks VapoRub on each nostril. This helps to prevent many colds from developing because VapoRub is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds.

Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Both VapoRub and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting; you are using what has been proven by a member: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks VapoRub and a bottle of Vicks VapoRub today—have them handy, ready to use.

Naval circles considered it unlikely that the Berwick's presence with the convoy was a deliberate trap since the raider was attacked by first and the supply ship apparently was discovered earlier.

If the admiralty had known that the raider was taking on supplies from an auxiliary, these sources said, it was improbable that a convoy would be allowed to pass that area until British warships first had cleared it.

The admiralty's description of the raider indicated that it may have been one of Germany's 10,000-ton pocket battleships, fast, powerful warships which can out-run any opponents they cannot out-gun.

These ships, sisters of the defeated and scuttled Admiral Graf Spee, are known to have been used by the Germans for North Atlantic raiding. Germany entered the war with three.

This was the first indication that warships formerly used against the Italians in the Mediterranean had been shifted to the Atlantic.

The question of strengthening protection for convoys crossing the North Atlantic is known to have been considered by British sea lords because of increasing submarine attacks.

Visibility was blamed in part for the Berwick's failure to close in on the German raider.

"The enemy withdrew at high speed as soon as he realized the convoy was escorted," the admiralty related. "Our escorting force immediately gave chase and was able to engage the enemy at long range. The visibility, which had been variable, decreased rapidly until it was reduced to half a mile.

"One shell was seen to burst amidships on the enemy but it is not possible to state the extent of the further damage inflicted by our gunfire."

It stimulates surface of chest and back like a poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.
