Which SIDE ARE YOU ON?

THE Paint question has but two sides; either a surface is well painted or not well painted. It may, of course, be totally lacking in paint, in which case there is no question about it—it should be painted.

Imagine a street like the one pictured above. On the one side live the careful, prosperous citizens whose property reflects their own sound qualities of mind. On the other live the careless people who could afford to paint up but neglect to do so. If this street were real the residents on the unpainted side could not stand the contrast which their homes present.

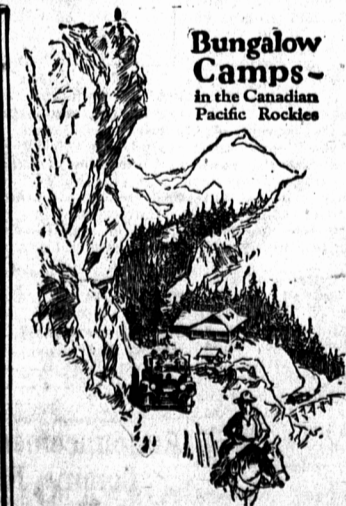

Father Time is the judge. Will he classify your home among those that are credits to any community or will he list it upon the Avenue of Neglect?

Bungalow Camps— in the Canadian Pacific Rockies

BANFF—LAKE WINDERMERE
GOD made the Rockies. Man made the cars. And now both the mountains and the cars can get together for one hundred spectacular miles on the Banff-Lake Windermere Automobile Road.

Fourteen years ago, the country wasn't surveyed. Even today you pass scores of unnamed and unclimbed peaks. And all about, within range of your kodak, there's big game—sheep, goat, deer, bear.

Four Bungalow Camps on this Road—Storm Mountain with a superlative view—Vermilion River Crossing, in the heart of the game country—Sinclear Hot Springs beyond the Iron Gates—and Lake Windermere in a lovely lochs-land, with the Lake of the Hanging Glaciers for an astounding side-trip. . . .

You can hire a car at Banff or Lake Louise. Or, go down the Road by motor-coaching bus.

MONTREAL FREEMAN GIVES PERSONAL TESTIMONY

Joseph Breard Suffered From Stomach Trouble and Nervousness for Long Time.

"Tanlac certainly made a quick run on my troubles and, as a result, I am at my best, ready for instant duty all the time," is the characteristic statement of Joseph Breard, 234 St. Charles St., Montreal, Que., popular member of the Montreal fire department.

"For a whole year my appetite was mighty poor, what little food I forced down lumped up in my stomach, and at times the pain almost doubled me up. I was continually bloated with gas and would often choke up like I had smoke in my throat and have to fight for breath. My nerves were bad, my sleep restless, and I always felt tired out."

Marriage Scales

By Mildred Barbour
CONCERNING THE ACTION AND THE CHARACTERS
Mariana Page, beautiful, idyllically romantic, reached the disconcerted stage of matrimony, and finds her husband, Charles, dull and uninteresting. She sees Craig Cullum, a fascinating young actor, who is creating a furore in a new play.

A GLIMPSE BACKSTAGE
Doris lunched hastily, as usual, at her club. An acquaintance hailed her with an invitation to join a gay little party of smartly dressed women, but she stopped only a moment to speak to one or two of them.

"Sorry—but I'm in a tearing hurry. I have an engagement at the National Theatre."

"Why, you've oodles of time for the matinee," drawled a slant-eyed girl puffing smoke idly through an exaggerated jade cigarette holder.

"Besides, what's the use of getting there until the middle of the first act when Craig Cullum comes on? The rest of the play's rotten."

"But it's Craig Cullum whom my engagement's with," laughed Doris. "I'm to meet him back stage at quarter to two."

A chorus of shrieks greeted this announcement.

"Not Craig Cullum!"
"My dear, how ever did you do it?"

"Your lucky girl! I'd give my eye-teeth for your chance!"

"Nonsense," said Doris bluntly. "All this ridiculous raving about an actor! I've heard nothing but Craig Cullum ever since the wretched show opened."

"But he's so positively divine—slant-eyes was beginning.

"Fiddlesticks!" scoffed Doris. "He's probably forty-five and bald and conceited with six children and a penchant for garlic. Just be-representative one, either, she had to admit truthfully, but the few she had known had always disagreeably impressed her by their gesturing, their posturing, their inability to cease dramatizing themselves, their repellent efforts to be constantly the center of attraction.

To the manager she remarked, with a humorous smile, as he led her up a winding iron stairway: "From all I hear of you, Mr. Cullum, I dare say I am expected to touch my forehead to the ground three times on entering his presence."

The manager laughed. "Don't you believe it! Women haven't spoiled Craig. He's one of the dearest chaps I've ever met. No affectation and a darned hard worker. You'll like him."

"The question is: Will he like me? Remember I'm going to ask a big favor of him."

"The manager gave her a glance which somehow adroitly took in all her charms from the fadish little hat framing her exquisite face to the tip of her slim, pretty foot.

"If he doesn't," he commented dryly, "it'll be the first time Craig was ever guilty of bad taste."

They reached the top of the steep stairway and the manager was puffing a bit. A door with a star painted on it confronted them.

"Only theatre I ever was in where the decent dressing rooms were upstairs," he panted. "Craig doesn't go on until 8 o'clock, so they have plenty of time to talk to him. Just a minute till I see if he's finished dressing."

He rapped at the door with the star decoration, opened it, poked his head in and said a word or two.

Then he motioned Doris. With a queer little breathless feeling which she couldn't control or analyze, she stepped into Craig Cullum's presence.

FELT A LUMP IN HIS STOMACH

Well-Known Soda Fountain Man Gets Wonderful Relief From Dreco. Gains Five Pounds and Feels Fit in Every Way.

Mr. J. A. Cabana of 153 Stanley Street, is another Montrealee who has found health by taking Dreco, the famous herbal system builder. Through a young man, Mr. Cabana suffered severely from digestive ailments. Today he has a splendid appetite and feels like a new man.

"Dreco has put me on my feet again," says Mr. Cabana. A month ago I was growing thinner and thinner every day. I could not eat. All my food seemed to sour in my stomach and I was troubled greatly with gas formations. When I retired at night I could not sleep, as I felt as though I had a lump in my stomach. I was very nervous too and jumpy and often had to walk the floor at night to get relief.

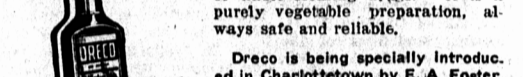

"I also suffered from chronic constipation, but since taking Dreco my bowels are regular every day. My digestion is now excellent and I eat my meals with relish, for I haven't the fear of suffering afterwards.

"I no longer have that tired feeling and although my work often keeps me on my feet fourteen hours a day, it is easily done, without a trace of fatigue. This is because my system is in proper shape. I have gained five pounds in two weeks and have every reason to be pleased with what Dreco has done for me."

Most troubles of this kind are directly traceable to the stomach and bowels. The latter, clogged with poisonous waste matter, affect the stomach, which is unable to perform its functions and the whole system suffers from lack of nourishment as a result. Dreco cleanses the system, purifies the blood and tones and regulates stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved its value. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. It is a purely vegetable preparation, always safe and reliable.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Charlottetown by E. A. Foster. It is also sold as follows:

Montague—H. J. Mabon.
Souris—Souris Drug Co.,
Summerside—Gallant Drug Co.,
Limited, and by a good drugist everywhere.
