

THE SUMMERSIDE GUARDIAN

AND PRINCE COUNTY CHRONICLE

THE WESTERN GUARDIAN

AGENT—Mrs. John Pond, 107 Harvard Street—
SUMMERSIDE, AND PRINCE COUNTY—Phone 289

News, Subscriptions, Advertising should be left with Mrs. Pond

The Guardian may be bought daily at any of the following stores in Summerside:

Bell Bookstore, Water St. Gourley's Drugstore, Water St.
Toronto Bakery, Water St. Mark Gaudet, 67 Granville St.

The Guardian will be delivered to your home in Summerside by carrier boy at 20 per day or 100 per week. Phone 289 for this service or give your order to the boy responsible for deliveries on your route.

This column is reserved for news of local interest but advertising of a new nature may be inserted at 2 cents a word strictly payable in advance —HOG WORM POWDER at Taylor Drug Co., Kensington. 10-14-41.

—BUY Toe Calk Steel and Iron Horse Shoes at Brace's. L-186-10-14-21.

—ROBINSON'S Special Flour made from new Island wheat for sale at Robinson's Bakery. L-1260-10-16-19.

—DEATH OF MR. JAMES A. KINCAIDE—Their passed away in the Prince County Hospital in the early hours of Saturday morning, Mr. James A. Kincaide of Miscouche. He was 70 years of age. Mr. Kincaide was brought to the Prince County Hospital three days ago in a serious condition. He was a native of New Brunswick but had lived the greater part of his life in the United States. He came to the Island some years ago and purchased a small farm next to the Lecky homestead. He married Miss Adams of Miscouche. His first wife died some years ago. His son Albert Kincaide was in Summerside and is an employee of Transwell Company. Mr. Kincaide was a quiet, unassuming person and was well liked in the district. Much sympathy is extended to his widow and family in their bereavement. —S —ALBERTON COURT—Magistrate Darby held court at Alberton on Friday when several cases came before him. A man from Elmfield charged with the theft of some fish was sentenced to one month in prison. A man from Campbellton charged with driving without proper brakes and without registering the car was given a total fine of $7.50. A man from Hagar Road was fined five dollars and costs for driving a car without an operators license. A woman from Tignish was fined $25.00 and costs for an infraction of the Excise Act. A man from Tignish was fined five dollars and costs for one month for disturbing a social assemblage. A case against a party from Tignish charged with inflicting damage upon household furniture was dismissed because the plaintiff failed to attend. A case against a party from Howland under the Excise Act was adjourned to the 22nd.

—MR. MACLEAN BRIGHTER—The condition of Mr. A. E. MacLean is reported as a little better on Saturday and he appears a little brighter after his trip by plane from Boston. Speaking to Dr. John F. MacNeil about the trip to the United States, Mr. MacLean stated that the trip very well indeed. Dr. MacNeil said the nurse and doctors at the Baker Memorial Hospital were most kind and that they could for the comfort of Mr. MacLean and his party. The officials at the airport just outside Boston were most kind and the arrangements made for the trip. Dr. MacNeil said he and Miss MacLean arrived in Boston at 7 o'clock on Friday morning and after having breakfast they drove out to the airport to see about chartering a plane. The one selected was a 7-passenger plane and the trip was made for a mattress two seats were removed and other adjustments made for the comfort of the invalid. The plane left Boston around one o'clock and its course in a straight line along the coast to St. John; there was a slight breeze which was biting them. On arrival at St. John, the plane was met by the guard in a direct line for Summerside arriving at the airport in exactly two hours and forty minutes from the time they left Boston. The trip was made in exactly one hour and five minutes under the normal time allowed for the trip. Mr. MacLean then went to the hotel where his machine is being repaired and he and Mrs. MacLean were found to quite thriving. The change in scenery along the coast was marvelous and an excellent rest for the invalid. Mr. and Mrs. MacLean are glad to be home once more. —S

—KENSINGTON and Vicinity

Mr. Willard McDonald, of Charlottetown was a business visitor to Kensington on Wednesday.

Miss Eugenia McLean, who has been a patient in the Prince County Hospital, returned to her home here on Wednesday, and although she will be confined to bed for some time yet, is well on the road to recovery.

Mr. Vincent Windsor of Saint John, N.B. was a visitor to Kensington on Wednesday, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Howatt. His many friends will be pleased to hear that Mr. Howard Boyles, who has been seriously ill during the past few days, is well on the road to a complete recovery.

Mr. T. M. Howatt has left on a business trip to Saint John, N.B. where he will be the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Vincent Windsor. A number of local expert anglers are in seeking new thrills, trying their luck in going after the smelt, and report they sure have some fun, although their catches are nothing to holler about. —H

—FERNWOOD SCHOOL

Following is the standing of Fernwood School for the month of September:

- Grade IX:
- Pauline Henderson.
  - Edna Sherry.
- Grade VIII:
- Helen Sherry.
  - No. een Henderson.
  - Frank MacFarlane.
- Grade VII:
- Theresa Pineau.
  - Helen MacFarlane.
  - Glenn MacFarlane.
- Grade VI:
- Edna Sherry.
  - George Pineau.
  - Billy MacFarlane.
- Grade IV:
- Alvin Pineau.
  - Hilda MacFarlane.
- Grade II:
- George Campbell.
  - Hazel Pineau.
- Grade I (a):
- Adela Henderson.
- Grade I (b):
- Marjorie MacFarlane.
- Grade I (c):
- Billy Pineau.
  - Glenn Murray and Donnie MacFarlane (equal).
- Highest average for Senior Grades: Helen Sherry 84.6 per cent.
- Highest average for Junior Grades: George Campbell 88.4 per cent.
- Perfect Attendance:
- Pauline Henderson, Helen Sherry, Glenn MacFarlane, Freda Sherry, Edna Sherry, Hilda MacFarlane, George Campbell, Hazel Pineau, Adela Henderson, Doris McKenna, Teacher.

—How Are Your Eyes?

If you are having symptoms of strain—headaches, sore eyes or dizziness—consult a specialist.

At your service with years of experience and a thorough refracting service.

Call in and discuss your difficulties.

G. F. Hutcheson

G. F. HUTCHESON, F. G. HUTCHESON

MONDAY & TUESDAY

“THE HARDYS RIDE HIGH”
H.G. Campbell, H. M. S. Ark Royal
Lena Stone • Missy KOONEY
Cecile PARKER • Fay HOLDEN

ALSO PETE SMITH AND PASSING PARADE
SHOWS 7.30-8.10
MATINEE TUESDAY AT 3.30

CAPITOL
SUMMERSIDE

Carleton and Vicinity

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Mrs. Victor Shaw of De Sable, with her two small children, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McWilliams of Cape Traverse.

Mr. Edward MacPadyen of Augustine Cove and Mr. Norman MacWilliams of Carleton, have returned from a motor trip to Presque Isle, Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Connell of Do. hester, Mass., motored to the Island recently to visit relatives in Culloden. On the return trip they were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman MacWilliams, Carleton.

Chilton school reopened Tuesday after the autumn vacation.

Concentration

(Continued from page 1)

The Admiralty desire once more to reaffirm the fact that the H. M. S. Ark Royal has not been sunk nor has she been damaged in any way.

Mr. Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Union of Fascists, told a meeting tonight that “the people alone” had the right to decide the issues of peace or war and said it should not be left to a handful of parliamentarians elected four or five years ago on totally different issues.

The International Labor Party's executive committee issued a statement saying that the working class movement could stop the war without creating a peace which would represent a triumph for aggression by a unified international demand for a peace conference of belligerents and neutrals, including the United States.

Parliament's keen interest in British relations with Soviet Russia was reflected in three questions which have been filed for discussion this week:—

Whether Britain's negotiations with Russia before the war included any suggestion that the Soviet Union have military, naval or air bases in any Baltic states; Whether a broad trade agreement with Soviet would be negotiated;

If preparations have been taken against British tin and rubber reaching Germany as a result of the British-Soviet trade agreement reached this week for exchanging those products for Russian timber.

Prime Minister Chamberlain probably will make a statement to the House of Commons on the international situation on Wednesday. His reply to Adolf Hitler's peace proposals was so favorable that he decided not to go through with his scheduled Empire broadcast Saturday.

“TOMMIES”

(Continued from page 1)

have blown up three of five railway bridges leading into Germany, all was quiet in the sector between the Rhine and Moselle Rivers there were patrol actions.

The passivity of the German forces has become a joking matter for the French. One officer from the front said German troops in the Moselle Valley put up a sign “don't shoot and we won't shoot.” French soldiers promptly raised their own notice, “post no bills.”

The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

FINNS MAKE

(Continued from page 1)

briefs and buildings were guarded. Reverses in Helsinki and this district were being mustered and many restaurants were devoting half their space to giving them provisions. Sale of liquor in any form was banned indefinitely.

Signs are to go up in every Helsinki apartment tomorrow telling what should be done in case flight from the city is necessary.

“Preparing”

Nearly 100,000 persons already have left voluntarily.

“We are preparing for everything,” a spokesman said, maintaining, nevertheless, there still was hope of a peace. Finland's differences with Russia.

It was announced that an unnamed Argentinian importer had sent a contribution of 120,000 Finnish marks (about $200,000) for the benefit of the Finnish civil guard, an organization of 100,000 youths who are to be called for military duty in a time of emergency.

Despite these military preparations, Sulo Koikkari, chief of the press Bureau of the Olympic games, said preparations were going ahead for the classic in 1940. He said 47 Finnish soldiers had not one had cancelled its plans.

“TOMMIES”

(Continued from page 1)

have blown up three of five railway bridges leading into Germany, all was quiet in the sector between the Rhine and Moselle Rivers there were patrol actions.

The passivity of the German forces has become a joking matter for the French. One officer from the front said German troops in the Moselle Valley put up a sign “don't shoot and we won't shoot.” French soldiers promptly raised their own notice, “post no bills.”

The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

“The French command, nevertheless, continued to take seriously the possibility of a German general offensive following the refusal of Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain to accept Hitler's “peace offensive.”

French scouting centered especially in the Boucon west, along the Valley of the Lauter River at the midway point in the front, where the lines bend west from the Rhine toward the Moselle. There heavily wooded hills covered the frontier for almost 10 miles could serve as a scene for German troops concentrations in the Palatinat.

That Body of Hours

(Continued from page 1)

When you read of the wonderful results obtained in mental cases by the use of the insulin and metrazol shock treatments, you may wonder why all cases are not treated by these methods.

What must be remembered is that before these newer methods of treatment were discovered, mental specialists in private practice and in mental hospitals were having good success by the usual methods.

It is estimated that of every ten patients entering mental hospitals and getting ordinary hospital treatment, 6 are able to return to home or business although some of these may have to return to hospital for a further period of treatment.

If, then, about 6 in 10 patients with dementia praecox (persistent dream state) and those who are depressed and still others with other mental symptoms are able to leave the mental hospital, are these newer methods of treatment necessary or helpful?

In a recent comparison of the newer with the older methods is reported in the British Lancet by Drs. H. Stalker, W. M. Millar, and J. M. Jacobs. They compared the results obtained in the treatment of 218 cases of schizophrenia—praecox—divided into three series according to whether treatment was by ordinary hospital methods, by lessening sugar in the blood, or by drugs which caused convulsion—insulin and metrazol.

From the standpoint of “numbers cured, there was not much difference in the results obtained by the three methods. The patients recovered by ordinary hospital treatment in acute cases. Lessening the amount of sugar in the blood in the “depressed” group gave good results. Using the drugs that cause convulsions appeared to be best suited for patients in stupor. The convulsive drug treatment was the useful in cases where the patients were not being helped by the usual psychoanalysis methods—finding the circumstance or circumstances in the patient's life history that caused the mental symptoms and discussing them freely.

However, the main reasons why these “shock” treatments are not used in more cases is that many patients and the families of the patients object to them and also that injuries, especially to the spinal column, occur in a number of cases.

However, when there has been no improvement for many months or years by the ordinary hospital methods, treatment with these convulsive drugs would appear to be worth trying.