WOMAN STOWAWAY HAD TRYING TIME

NEW YORK, Sep. 4—After living for ten days in a black hole four feet by six, which at times was flooded a foot deep with salt water, Jean Tucker, 22 years old, a young English woman, was lifted out last Monday night by the officers of the American liner Philadelphia in a fainting condition and was detained as a stowaway. She was so weak she could scarcely stand alone and was covered with rust and grime from lying on the iron plates.

The young woman is said to have been smuggled on board the liner in Southampton on Friday night, August 20, by Edward Manning, a fireman and a citizen of the United States. The fireman is alleged to have declared that unless the young woman came to New York and married him he would commit suicide.

When dragged from the hole the stowaway wore a blue dungaree overall suit. When she went to Ellis Island this morning she wore some new clothing that Manning had purchased for her in New York after the ship docked on Monday.

Officers and engineers of the Philadelphia knew before leaving Southampton that the young woman had come aboard the night before in men's clothes, but could not discover her hiding place, although several searches were made. The officers explained the failure of their searches by the fact that they believed no human being could live in such a place as the stowaway was found. It was right in the eyes of the ship, between the plates of the bow and was so low that she could stand upright only at one side. The only air came through a locker where potatoes were stored for the voyage. The girl had been passed down through the manhole in Southampton and could not get out without aid.

Yet throughout the voyage, the woman stowaway said that she experienced fear but once. That was when, on August 22, the Philadelphia struck a whale. The huge mammal swished its tail, which beat upon the bow plates of the ship. The first blow knocked her off her feet. Others made her think the liner had struck a reef and was foundering. She lost all hope for life, and the battering ceased—the ship steamed on.

At last the Philadelphia reached her destination. The ten-day nightmare was over.

In our personal life we also have spaces of prosperity. As Christians we are sometimes disposed to look with suspicion on wealth and greatness. But in its proper nature, in design, prosperity must be regarded as a blessing. One of Emerson's ancestors was in the habit of praying that none of his posterity might be rich. It is easy to imagine a man offering a prayer like that for his posterity, although it would be a rather shabby thing to do, but you will hardly find a sane man offering such a prayer like that for himself. Terrestrial prosperity is still one of God's benedictions.

Prosperity is a blessing, as it widens the range of our physical enjoyment, gives freer play to our intellectual powers, and renders possible a fuller intellectual life, gives opportunity for the expression of higher character, and enables us to act out more fully our nobler aspirations. So we have much to be thankful for when our ships return with gold and ivory and spices. They ought to bring pure pleasure, larger usefulness—Condensed from Lessons of Prosperity, by W. L. Watkinson.

The ships of Solomon brought rubies; so did the ships of Carthage of Greece; of Rome; so did the ships and cargoes of Spain. The other day in Whitby they showed me the ruins of the grand old Abbey. On the south aspect the wall is much more dilapidated than on the north, showing, it would seem, that the light of the sun has been more destructive than all the wild storms of the North Sea. So the sun of prosperity has often proved more fatal to empire than the bitterest tempests of danger and want and conflict.

We have seen that the prosperity of Solomon wrought evil and soon passed away, and as the material glory of Israel was eclipsed, so has it been with other civilizations. Is this to be the outcome of our prosperity? It need not be so, for Christianity brings us some new ideas and ideals, and if we are true to these our faith shall be on all our glory a defence.

Christ has given us a nobler conception of our lives, and of the end of human life. He has taught us the pre-eminence of character; he has profoundly convinced us that in all the life of the highest righteousness shall we find the highest glory and happiness of being. If our prosperity is to serve us and not to harm us, we must fix our thoughts, our conceptions, upon things above.

Our lesson text of to-day depicts the climax of Israel's greatness. Solomon's last years were a contradiction of his first years. His "enthusiasm for humanity," when he prayed for wisdom to rule his people wisely "was supplanted by enthusiasm for money," and it came to pass, when he was old, that his wives turned away his heart after other gods, 1 K. 11: 4.

"Hated by his people for the heavy burden of taxation which he was forced to lay upon them for the support of his costly household, turned hither and thither by wives who neither understood his wisdom nor cared for his greatness, but only for his gold, worshipping at the shrines of a hundred gods, in none of which he believed—what an old age is this! It is the very mockery of greatness, the supreme irony of fate, that the hoary head of the wisest of monarchs should be crowned by his own hands with the cap of a fool. And all this because he did not understand that to guide one's own life is a harder and more perilous task than to rule a kingdom."

Sad Death of Lady
Well Known Here

A letter received by Dr. and Mrs. Yeo, city, from Mr. Palmer Kinsman, former representative in this city for the Imperial Tobacco Company, gives some details of the terrible accident in which Mrs. James Morris, Mrs. Kinsman's mother, met her death recently at Hamilton, Ont. Mrs. Morris and her husband it will be remembered visited here last summer and made many friends. The letter states:

"Mr. and Mrs. Morris were leaving their beach house for the city Saturday August 28th, Mrs. Morris driving the car. Their summer home is on a corner and the garage on the side street. In crossing the suburban car tracks to main carriage road they heard one car and waited, but unfortunately did not hear or see the car coming from the city and were hit by same. Some idea of the crash can be gained when you consider that their auto, a Willys-Knight sedan, 3,200 pounds, was carried 45 feet and the street car proceeded another 60 feet before stopping. Mrs. Morris had ribs broken causing lung puncture and died Sunday, 29th. Mr. Morris, ribs broken, cuts on a fractured skull and is still very weak, and unconscious also and there is little hope for his recovery. It certainly was a terrible affair and we hardly realize it as yet.

Give our kind regards to all our Charlottetown friends. King Street east does not yet know that his wife has passed away. Inquiries elicited the information that the injured man's condition is much more serious than was at first thought, the three broken ribs he sustained being the least of his injuries. Since being brought from the beach, he has been in a semi-conscious condition, and concussion is feared. Although it was stated that Mr. Morris walked into the house from the car, immediately after the accident happened, he has not since been conscious of events transpiring about him.

Mrs. Morris, whose demise will cause sorrow to a very large number of friends, was one of the city's most estimable women. She was prominent in the work of St. John's Church, where her attractive personality will be missed. She was a daughter of Bronte, but had resided in this city for many years. Besides her husband she is survived by her son, Dr. J. Irving Morris, King Street east, and two daughters, Mrs. Palmer Kinsman, of St. John's, N.B., and Mrs. Harold Newson, of this city.

Have You Tried This Automobile Oil?

There are two ways to tell how good any lubricating oil is. One way is to make a test in the laboratory. The other way is to put it in your car and try it out under actual service conditions.

We know that Veedol will increase your mileage and save anywhere from $50 to $115 a year in operating expense.

Prove that out for yourself. Here's how you can do it. Clean out your automobile crankcase. Fill with kerosene. Run your motor about thirty seconds under its own power. Drain out all kerosene and refill with Veedol.

Then make a test run over a familiar road including steep hills and straight level stretches. You will find your motor has acquired new pick-up and hill-climbing ability. It will have less vibration and will give greater gasoline mileage.

Veedol will cost you more than the average oil. With a few gallons of Veedol you can drive 2000 to 5000 miles. That will give you ample opportunity to compare operating costs. It will prove the superiority of Veedol as emphatically as have laboratory tests.
