

Tenders for Lambs Fat Sheep and Cattle

Tenders will be received by the undersigned up to Saturday, Oct. 27th on parties willing to contract for about 250 lambs and fat sheep and one half car fat cattle (tenders to include rate per lb. for under weight lambs) delivered at Baltic Station.

T. S. ROBERTSON, East Baltic R. R. Oct. 15, 1917. 939-10-31M31pd.

OSTPONED STOCK SALE!

We are authorized by Horace McKinnon to sell on his farm at Rocky Point.

ON SATURDAY! November 3rd, 1917.

Commencing at 1:30 o'clock, (sharp) 5 Milch Cows, 1 Cow (freshened), 6 Heifers Holstein Grade, 2 Heifers Pure Bred Holsteins, 5 Heifers 1 1/2 years old, 4 Bulls 1 1/2 years old, 3 Fat Oxen, 1 Pure Bred Shorthorn Bull (registered) 5 years old, 8 Horses, 10 Sheep, Brood Sow and Litter, 20 Geese.

ALSO—1 Binder (new), 1 Hay Mower (new), 1 Team Truck Wagon, 1 Driving Wagon (new), 1 Motor Boat, 20 tons Hay, 1 Cream Separator.

TERMS—All sums of $5.00 and under, cash; over that amount 13 months credit on approved joint notes, 6 per cent off for cash.

ALSO—On the same day we will sell 40 acres of land for Mr. Mutch, one mile from Rocky Point Wharf.

TERMS AT SALE. BENJ. CARTER & CO., Auctioneers.

939-10-31M31pd.

Valuable Farm Property For Sale

The undersigned will sell by Public Auction on the premises on Thursday the 1st day of November next A. D. 1917 at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, two certain tracts of land situate on the Winsloe Road consisting of one 97 acre tract and another of 45 acres both in a high state of cultivation, with a good dwelling house and other farm buildings owned by the late William Good.

Monday November 5th, 1917. At 1 o'clock, p. m. (sharp)

THE FOLLOWING STOCK: 8 Milch Cows, 3 Fat Cattle, 3 Heifers 2 years old, 2 Calves, 1 Cow (freshened), 1 Horse 11 years old, 1 Filly 4 months old (Barrister), 1 Colt 1 1/2 years old, 8 Pigs 9 weeks old.

5 tons of Hay, a quantity of Straw, 600 bushels of Turnips. TERMS—13 months credit will be given on all sums exceeding $5.00, 6 per cent off for cash. BENJ. CARTER & CO., Auctioneers.

941-10-31M31pd.

TENDERS

Sealed tenders will be received by the undersigned up to 6 p. m., on Monday, Nov. 5th for the sale of about 150 lambs and a number of sheep. Tenders to state price per pound, live weight.

Highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. E. S. NORTON, Secretary, Cardigan-Farmers' Institute Oct. 25th, 1917. 921-10-30M61pd.

TIME TABLE

Table with columns: Leave Ch' Town, Leave Rocky Pt., and times for Rocky Point Ferry.

1602-9-13MettJNov13.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Land Regulations

This sole head of a family or any male over eighteen years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must be a citizen of the Dominion of Canada...

Small Pill Small Dose Small Price. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. FOR CONSTIPATION have stood the test of time. Purely vegetable. Wonderfully quick to banish biliousness, headache, indigestion and to clear up a bad complexion.

PALE FACES Generally indicate a lack of iron in the Blood. Carter's Iron Pills Will help this condition. ALL AS IT COMES. Joy, grief, sorrow, fun. Be prepared for all All as it comes.

Valuable Farm Property For Sale. The undersigned will sell by Public Auction on the premises on Thursday the 1st day of November next A. D. 1917 at the hour of 12 o'clock noon, two certain tracts of land situate on the Winsloe Road...

C. D. McCALLUM Solicitor Dated this 15th day of October A.D. 1917. HENRY HORNE ROBERT STEWART Executors under the last will of William Good deceased.

Annual Meeting. The valuable property formerly known as the American Consulate, Corner Water and Haviland Sts., will be offered by public auction, Thursday, the 1st of November at twelve o'clock noon.

Maid Wanted. For general housework in family of three. No washing. Big wages to experienced, competent person. Apply in writing giving experience and recommendations to HOUSEKEEPER, P. O. Box 460, City.

Choice Lot For Sale in Charlottetown. We will sell by public auction on Wednesday Oct. 31, 1917 commencing at 12 o'clock noon choice lot of land 42 and 80 situated on Richmond Street, East part of the late Judge Hodgson, estate. For particulars apply BENJ. CARTER Auctioneer.

Home Defense JOHNSON'S ANODYNE Liniment. For over 100 years thousands of homes have been safely defended against evil effects from Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Gramps, Chills, etc., by this wonderfully soothing, healing, pain destroying anodyne.

GENERAL'S RISE A ROMANCE OF WAR

Sir Arthur Currie Insurance Agent in Victoria Three Years Ago—Now in High Command

SHOWED RARE BRAVERY IN SECOND YPRES BATTLE Has Unbounded Faith in His Men and Latter Swear by Him

The following interesting sketch of Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian army in France, from the pen of C. L. McClure Stevens, appears in the London Penny Pictorial: The career of Lieutenant-General Sir Arthur Currie, who has been selected to command the Canadian Corps in France in succession to Sir Julian Byng is one of the romances of the war.

Born forty-one years ago in Toronto, Ontario, he went "out west" at an early age, and at a time earned his living as a schoolmaster. But his one hobby, then as now, was soldiering.

An Early Settler. He was one of the earliest amongst the settlers in British Columbia to join the old Canadian Militia, the equivalent of our volunteers. Most of his fellow-militiamen did not take their obligations very seriously. They turned up to drill or stayed away, according as they felt inclined.

Currie, on the other hand, regarded his very seriously indeed. He never missed a drill. He put his name down for every "course" that came along. Musketry, "flag-wagging," mounted infantry, gunnery—it was all the same to him. He made it his business to become proficient in them all.

As a result he passed quickly through the various grades of non-commissioned rank, and eventually rose to command the Victorian Garrison Artillery. Shortly before the war broke out, however, his period of command of this unit came automatically to an end.

But, meanwhile, he had prospered in business and what to a less enthusiastic man might have meant the end of volunteer soldiering for good and all, meant for him the beginning of a new departure. He straightway set to work to raise a corps of his own. The men composing it were mostly, like himself, of Scottish extraction, and Currie christened his new unit the Canadian Gordon Highlanders.

War a Remote Idea. Many people out there shrugged their shoulders and smiled. War or any thought of war seemed very distant from the peaceful valleys and snow-capped mountains of far away British Columbia. They did not seriously believe in its possibility even; a view which is not to be greatly wondered at when we consider that it was shared, at that time, by the majority of the inhabitants of these islands.

But Currie knew better. Always a keen student of international politics he was one of the few who read the signs of the times aright; and he laid his plans accordingly. His watchword, so far as his particular unit was concerned, was drill, drill, and yet drill. There were no slackers in his battalion. There was no room for them. With him it was a case of get on or get out, and mostly they got on.

Thus it happened that when the war cloud burst, Colonel Currie was able to place at the disposal of the Canadian government a perfectly equipped and highly efficient fighting unit, just the very thing most urgently needed in order to stiffen the raw levies hastily being raised in the more thickly populated eastern provinces—Quebec, Ontario and so forth.

Hurried to Valcartier. He hurried with his battalion four thousand miles across Canada to the great training camp at Valcartier. Here he was placed in command of a brigade. Then came the journey to England, the long, weary bout of training on Salisbury Plain, followed at last by the crossing to France and the "real thing."

Currie and his men soon showed the sort of stuff they were made of. At the second battle of Ypres it fell to his lot to lead a Canadian brigade—he had been made a brigadier-general a short while previously—to stiffen a line fighting against desperate odds.

It was the time of the first surprise gas attack, and the forced retirement of the French left the Canadian flank in the air. It was a case of saving Ypres or losing it. The men had no gas helmets, of course, in those days, and they were entrained; but they held their ground.

"We are running short of ammunition," one Canadian officer reported. "What are we to do?" "Bayonets! You must rely upon your bayonets. Hold the trench at all costs," was Currie's reply.

Took Command Himself. At the crisis of the German attack.

MADE IN CANADA ROYAL EAST LAKES ROYAL YEAST. Not even Germany has tried to inculcate patriotism more earnestly than our big kinsman and partner to the South. It is said that in the authorized edition of the primary German school-book there is this question: "What is Germany?" The answer is, "Our Fatherland, surrounded by enemies."

When it seemed that our line must give, Currie himself assumed command of the 48th Toronto Highlanders. It was a grim work. There were no brilliant charges, no capture of prisoners or guns. It was just kill or be killed.

The 48th went into action 895 strong. Their total casualties amounted to 691 officers, non-commissioned officers and men. Only two officers were unharmed. Yet he exposed himself freely, passing up and down the front line trench exhorting, commanding, encouraging his men by example and by precept.

A Cool, Quiet Man. Coolness in action could hardly go further than this. But then Currie is one of those cool, quiet men, who do not seem to know the meaning of nerves. Once he was seen standing against a willow tree between Poelcapelle and St. Julien amid a hail of bullets. A high explosive shell fell about 30 feet from him, covering him with dirt. A few seconds later another struck a tree just above his head, but did not explode. "I felt glad I had no more inches," he remarked afterwards to a friend.

That remark about no more inches is amusing when it is known that he is, too, broad in proportion across the shoulders.

Many war honors have come his way. Promotion has followed upon promotion. He wears the insignia of the French Legion of Honor. Our King has made him a K.C.M.G. and a C.B. Yet he is not "stuck up." "Come on, boys!" is his favorite formula in battle. When out of the fighting line he is "Hello, Dick!" or "What cheer, Harry?"

Men Swear By Him. Naturally his men swear by him, and are ready to follow him anywhere. The result is that the unit he has commanded have more than once accomplished the seemingly impossible.

We have seen one example at the second battle of Ypres. Another where, with the Germans trenches lost in a prevailing engagement.

General Currie by the way, has unbounded faith in his men, in their power of initiative, and he is never tired of indicating the cultivation of responsibility by the individual soldier.

Though Currie is an out and out Canadian, he came to England for a wife. Mrs. Currie is a member of a well known Nottingham family.

THE FAIRIES HAVE NEVER A PENNY TO SPEND Punch. The fairies have never a penny to spend. They haven't a thing put by. But theirs is the dower of bird and of flower.

And theirs are the earth and the sky. And though you should live in a palace of gold.

Or sleep in a dried-up ditch. You could never be poor as the fairies are, And never as rich.

Since ever and ever the world began They have danced like a ribbon of flame.

They have sung their song through the centuries long. And yet it is never the same. And though you be foolish or though you be wise,

With hair of silver or gold, You could never be young as the fairies are, And never as old.

OLD KINSMEN GETTING TOGETHER

Not even Germany has tried to inculcate patriotism more earnestly than our big kinsman and partner to the South. It is said that in the authorized edition of the primary German school-book there is this question: "What is Germany?" The answer is, "Our Fatherland, surrounded by enemies."

Popular Notion of England. Americans who are readers and whose knowledge of history is not confined to what they were taught when in knickerbockers, have themselves of the prejudice against England, but as most Americans, like most Canadians, do not learn anything about ancient history after they escape from the public schools, it is not unusual that the majority of American citizens have had the idea that as soldiers the English were either jokes or tragedies, that the general idea was an unpleasant combination of both.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

It is not true, however, it may now approximate to the truth. In the United States the answer to a school-book question as to what is England, the answer is in effect, "A tyrant that we fight." American school-children for several generations have been taught that they and their country came into being by defeating, more than once, the stupid bully, England, that had desired to treat Americans as Sonagambians were treated by cruel taskmasters. Hence has arisen a prejudice against Great Britain, which is not to be explained away by Fenianism. Millions of Americans destitute of Irish blood have had the notion that England is a robber nation and that the foreign policy of the United States might properly be concentrated into watchfulness or perfidious Albion.

His Master's Voice. Out Today New Victor Records for November. John McCormack Sings a Soldier Song. Elman plays Drdla's "Souvenir". Alma Gluck's "The Prayer Perfect". Popular songs, and dance selections, etc. 90 cents for 10-inch, double-sided. Any "His Master's Voice" dealer will gladly play these and any other records you may wish to hear.

Berliner Gram-o-phone Co. MONTREAL LIMITED. 127 Lenoir Street. "His Master's Voice" Charlottetown Dealer. H. A. TANTON & CO., 144 Great George Street.

Military Service Act 1917. Class 1 Men. It is not sufficient for men in the above class to be medically examined. Each man MUST REPORT for SERVICE or CLAIM EXEMPTION before Nov. 10th, 1917.

Hundreds Forms for exemption and Reports for Service can be had at your nearest Post Office. W. W. STANLEY Reg. M. S. A.

NEW YORK FISH ADVTs. Wholesale Commission Fish Dealers. 108 Fulton Fish Market, New York. Specialties, Smelts, Eels, and Clams. Consignments solicited, daily returns, Stencils and stationery on application.

Thomas M. Reid & Co. Reference Market and Fulton National Bank, New York. S. B. WILEY, & SONS, Transfer Agent Boston.

Reference Market and Fulton National Bank, New York. S. B. WILEY, & SONS, Transfer Agent Boston.

Reference Market and Fulton National Bank, New York. S. B. WILEY, & SONS, Transfer Agent Boston.

Reference Market and Fulton National Bank, New York. S. B. WILEY, & SONS, Transfer Agent Boston.