

Was Subject to BRONCHITIS Every Winter

Mrs. Wm. Healey, 524 Hill Street, London, Ont., writes: "My daughter, aged fourteen, was subject to bronchitis every winter. "She would cough until she was sore from the exertion. "Last winter a friend advised me to get a bottle of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. "I got a small bottle to try and was delighted to find that before she had taken half of it her cough was completely relieved. "I certainly feel justified in recommending it to those suffering from coughs and colds." Price 35c. a bottle, large family size 60c., put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

It Bids Pain Begone.—When neuralgia racks the nerves, or lumbago cripples the back is the time to test the virtues of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Well rubbed in it will still the pain and produce a sensation of ease and rest. A trial of it will establish faith in it.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I, Lemuel B. Hughes of Peake Station, P. E. I., do hereby apologize to Mrs. Adrian Keenan, also of Peake Station if I have said anything that might be injurious to her character or reputation. Any words spoken by me were said without malice aforethought and I regret if they have been the cause of lasting reflection on her good name. (Signed) L. B. HUGHES. Dated this eleventh (11th) day of January, 1928. Witnessed by THOMAS GOODWIN

NOTICE

The Annual Meeting of the John R. Dinns Pedigreed Foxes, Ltd., will be held on Thursday, January 19, 1928, at 7:30 p. m. in the Y. M. C. A. Parlor, Charlottetown. JOHN R. DINNS, President. 1890-1-11-31

FOR SALE

At 51 Dorchester Street. To be sold at Public Auction on Friday, January 20th, at eleven o'clock, one heavy draft horse, one sloven, two carts, two wood sleighs, harness, also coal hoisting outfit, all household effects including stove, rug, bed and bedding, chairs, lounge and other articles. Terms cash, no reserve. J. A. McDONALD, Auctioneer. 1891-1, 17, 31.

Poultry

We will be buying live, and dressed poultry daily until the end of the season. Highest prices paid. SWIFT CANADIAN CO.

EYES TESTED

Glasses fitted by scientific methods. E. W. TAYLOR AND J. S. TAYLOR Registered Optometrists 143 Richmond Street

Professional Car's

DONALD S. HART Chartered Accountant (Formerly Travelling Auditor Income Tax Department) 130 Edward Street

Dr. C. C. Archibald Graduate to N. Y. Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital Practice limited to Eye, Ear Nose and Throat. Testing Eyes and supplying Glasses Office, Beyer Building Great George Street Office Hours—9 to 12.30, 1.30 to 5.00

Mark R. McGuigan B. A.

BARRISTER, SOLICITOR, ETC. Money to Loan. Cameron Block, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

McLeod & Bentley

J. A. BENTLEY W. E. BENTLEY, K. C. Barrister and Attorney-at-Law Office: 130 Richmond Street MONEY TO LOAN Charlottetown, P. E. I.

McDonald & McPhee B. A.

J. A. McDONALD H. F. MCPHEE B. A. Barristers, Attorneys, Etc. Money to Loan. Bally Building, Charlottetown

SMILES

"Asking a man to trace your bungalow apron is a bit unreasonable even if he is a house detective."

"Is Tom as thick with Mae as he was?" "Sure. She's been trying to shake him ever since Christmas and he's too thick to see it."

"THE NEW RAGE "Making any resolutions for the New Year?" "Why yes, I think I'll limit myself to five companionate marriages in 1928."

"DAMAGED ARTICLE "I'm sure I possess Charlie's heart." "A damaged article is scarcely worth having." "What do you mean by that?" "He said I had broken it."

"SPOT CASH Friend: You are always pleased when you can bring down the leopard, eh?" "Big Game Hunter: Oh, yes; I can always sell their skins for spot cash."

Experiments by a Vienna scientist have indicated that light acts directly upon human muscles causing them to move, instead of through the nerves as heretofore believed.

Lesson No. 8

Question: Why is the emulsified form the more efficient way for me to realize the health-giving benefits of cod-liver oil?

Answer: Because when cod-liver oil is emulsified it is more perfectly absorbed, and does not disagree with digestion. Take

SCOTT'S EMULSION

SONIA

By VIDA HURST

Before she was out of bed the next morning her telephone was ringing. Her heart gave a throb of joy as she answered. Her brother came to call.

"Do you want to see me, Sonia?" "Of course I do. I have several things to tell you."

"Your voice was without life as he suggested a luncheon place at noon."

Seated with him at a table in a corner, Sonia began to talk. She was startled at his indifference. His attitude was almost pathological.

"I was worried about you Thursday night," Sonia admitted. "Did you get to the shack all right?" He looked up as if from a trance. "Oh, yes. I made it all right."

"I didn't know but that the rain would make it hard going."

"The rain?" His shiver was scarcely perceptible. "It was a bad night."

"Franklin," she said gently, "you aren't angry with me?"

"Angry with you?" She trembled before the magic sweetness of his voice. "Sonia, darling, I couldn't be angry with you if you plunged a knife deep into my heart."

She leaned across the table then to whisper. "You think I'm married to Walter Henderson, but I'm not."

"You are not married to Henderson?"

Sonia smiled sadly. "No. It's Dr. Don Stillwater, from my own town."

His eyes stared at her. He repeated almost stupidly, "You're not married to Henderson?"

"No, but after all, the fact of my marriage is unchanged. It doesn't matter who it is."

"No, of course not. It doesn't matter."

How terribly upset he must have been. To be so nervous! The fact that lifted the glass of water shook visibly.

"Franklin," she said earnestly, "I suppose it's unreasonable to hope that you can understand the reasons back of all this. But you certainly know it wasn't because I didn't care for you."

His understanding nod was so free from bitterness that it brought a sob to her throat. "With an effort she went on, "I thought you didn't really love me. I was terrified with the shock of Maxine's death. It seemed then that I was through with excitement forever. All I wanted was to be safe and protected."

He said, then, "You needn't explain your motives, Sonia. I know exactly how you felt."

The waiter served their order. When he had left, she continued: "But you don't understand that ours is not a real marriage. Oh, it is legal enough. But I entered it selfishly and I couldn't go on with it. Don has gone to Berlin for the summer and has promised to release me when he comes home."

Her words did not have the effect she had anticipated. "I'm going away, too," he said, drearily. "Mother and I are going for a trip right away."

"Where, Franklin?"

"Oh, across the ocean somewhere. I don't care."

She asked through lips determined to smile, "Are you going on account of me?"

"Partly. Mother is glad enough to take me. She feels it will settle things."

"You asked her to take you?"

"Yes."

After a moment he asked: "What are you going to do in Muncie?"

How could she tell him that she had planned to wait there for him? "Nothing much, I guess."

"How can you endure to go back? I thought you had always hated it?"

"I do," she admitted. "But it was Don's one condition when he left."

"Wanted you away from my influence, did he?"

"Something like that."

He hadn't had worried. You can tell him for me. I'm not running after another man's wife."

His attitude puzzled her. "But, don't you see? I'll be free after Don comes home?"

"Do you really think that means anything? That he is going to give you up after you're married to him?"

"We aren't really married," she insisted. "It can be annulled."

Then for the first time there was a flash of emotion in his face. His hands pressed hers. He whispered, "Do you mean you'll wait for me?"

"Do you want me to?"

"Sonia, wait, you're the or thing under Heaven I do want. If you had only had a little confidence in me."

"Oh, I know. . . . Oh, if you could only have waited! We are both too headstrong, Sonia."

Next Time . . . KOTEX

All doctors recommend these safe sanitary napkins

DO not be careless about your health. Guard it during the important periods. Use Kotex, as thousands of doctors everywhere advise.

Kotex is scientifically correct. Softest, most absorbent materials. Rounded corners, hence comfortable. Form-fitting, so non-detectable when worn.

It deodorizes as it acts. You discard simply, without embarrassment.

Two sizes—Regular and Kotex-Super. . . . Get Kotex at all drug, dry goods and departmental stores.

KOTEX Sanitary Napkins

use are letters? When I am dying to see you."

It was difficult for Sonia to withstand Franklin's pleading. She forced herself to answer calmly. "Letters aren't much use, are they? And yet a letter is better than nothing."

He shook his head, begging, "Sonia, wait until tomorrow. Don't go tonight."

"I must. I've written them."

"But we could call them up, darling. What's another night to them when we aren't to see each other for months?"

"I wish I could. I'd give anything. . . ."

"How terrible you will. I'll be good, sweetheart. . . ."

"No," she said, stubbornly, although there were tears in her eyes. "I will not break my promise to Don."

She was afraid her refusal might anger him. But he accepted it heartily.

"There is no use trying to persuade you?"

"But longing sang in her voice. She touched his hand lingeringly. "You know I don't want to go."

He went back to the apartment with her. He held her achingly close in his arms. She was conscious of an added gentleness in his embrace, born, no doubt, of the inevitability of their parting.

She held his face between her hands, crying, "You will be true to me while you're away?"

"Do I need to prove that now, Sonia?"

"I'll never doubt you again. Four months is not so long."

"It will be longer than that, Sonia, perhaps a year."

She flung back her head, smiling. "What's a year?"

Then she sank back into his arms, because she knew that year would be endless, stretching into eternity. . . .

At 4 o'clock she tore herself from his embrace, crying, "I must go."

His farewell kiss was without passion, chilled with acceptance of her decision.

"I'll take you to the train, Sonia."

She hurried to leave the apartment. It felt vacant already. Ten minutes later she was on the train, where the tests take place under the eye of trained psychologists, has been set up on the recommendation of the industrial commissions of the city. It is designed to save both time and money for employers by weeding out unsuitable applicants for positions.

A man, for instance, who wishes to become a chauffeur may, before learning to drive, discover his fitness for the work in the course of a short examination by Professor Kelllogg. The founder of the Institute. He is used before a table on which a motor of Vienna and to guide his "nap car"—a miniature chassis—from one point to another, to keep his eye open for warning signals and for signs representing other traffic. A pen, supplied with red ink records the steadiness of hand, presence of mind and self-control of the candidate, and in a few minutes they can give him a detailed and reasoned verdict.

A board bearing a number of letters, dotted casually about its surface is used in the test for night driving. It is illuminated by a poor light, just strong enough for the candidate to read the letters. A powerful searchlight is suddenly flashed straight in his eyes as he sits before the board; the professor stands by with the stop watch, timing his struggle to overcome the blinding effect of the glare and recognize the letters on the board. If it takes him over fifty seconds to read the first letter—and it often does—the candidate is unfit for night driving.

Engineers who are to take charge of large machines, locomotive drivers and electro-technicians, where instant and accurate response to any change in conditions is essential are tested by another machine. Five coloured lamps face the applicant with a keyboard of five keys, each corresponding to one colour. The lights flash on and off irregularly, and the candidate has to press the corresponding key,

Mechanical Tests For Employees Nerves

(By British United Press) LONDON, January 16.— Sensitive machinery which tests the temperament and nerves of candidates for various occupations has been put in use at Vienna.

The Psychotechnical Institute, where the tests take place, under the eye of trained psychologists, has been set up on the recommendation of the industrial commissions of the city. It is designed to save both time and money for employers by weeding out unsuitable applicants for positions.

A man, for instance, who wishes to become a chauffeur may, before learning to drive, discover his fitness for the work in the course of a short examination by Professor Kelllogg. The founder of the Institute. He is used before a table on which a motor of Vienna and to guide his "nap car"—a miniature chassis—from one point to another, to keep his eye open for warning signals and for signs representing other traffic. A pen, supplied with red ink records the steadiness of hand, presence of mind and self-control of the candidate, and in a few minutes they can give him a detailed and reasoned verdict.

A board bearing a number of letters, dotted casually about its surface is used in the test for night driving. It is illuminated by a poor light, just strong enough for the candidate to read the letters. A powerful searchlight is suddenly flashed straight in his eyes as he sits before the board; the professor stands by with the stop watch, timing his struggle to overcome the blinding effect of the glare and recognize the letters on the board. If it takes him over fifty seconds to read the first letter—and it often does—the candidate is unfit for night driving.

Engineers who are to take charge of large machines, locomotive drivers and electro-technicians, where instant and accurate response to any change in conditions is essential are tested by another machine. Five coloured lamps face the applicant with a keyboard of five keys, each corresponding to one colour. The lights flash on and off irregularly, and the candidate has to press the corresponding key,

Cuts-Burns

Vicks' healing, anti-septic ingredients bring soothing relief. Apply gently.

VICKS' VAPORUB

Over 21 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

its accuracy or otherwise being recorded by numbers which appear on a board as the keys are depressed.

An ordinary puzzle is the test of quickness in arriving at the solution of a mechanical problem. The candidate is given a metal plate with interwoven geometrical figures, and is called upon to release from the tangle a single triangle. This can only be done by making certain methodical movements and is timed while discovering and carrying these out. He then has to return the triangle to its original position.

Talk With Death Watch Beetle

(By British United Press) LONDON, January 16.— Sir Frank Baines, who until recently was Director of Works at the Office of Works in London, has succeeded in making a death watch beetle "converse" with him.

Sir Frank was responsible for the reconstruction of the roof of Westminster Hall, and the steps taken from the preservation of parts of Hampton Court Palace, where the woodwork had been attacked by the beetles.

These insects made a peculiar tapping noise when calling to their mates. Sir Frank kept a specimen in his office and tried for a long time to tap back again.

At last he hit on the correct rhythm, and the little creature responded vigorously. A woman visitor to whom he showed the insect, doing its tricks, remarked, "Oh, how clever of you to have taught it that!"

Fortune For Murderer Of Mother-In-Law

(By British United Press) PARIS, January 16.— For years Paris assize juries have made a practice of acquitting men and women who have killed their wives or husbands in cases known as "Reve tragedies."

But the other day a jury at Beauvais (Oise) went a step further—to the dismay of French judicial experts, when they acquitted Charles Marin, who shot his mother in law, a widow aged 86, merely because she had sold disadvantageously a portion of her estate which he hoped to inherit at her death.

The Public Prosecutor pointed out that this crime was one of vulgar avarice and the criminal deserved no mercy.

But the jury, moved by the speech of Maître Paul-Boncour for the defence, who spoke of the natural anger of a man who saw family property being wasted, returned a verdict of not guilty.

This means that not only was Marin set free, but that through his wife he inherits the whole fortune of his victim.

List Of Mass Cards And Spiritual Offerings

Mr. and Mrs. James Gallant wish to thank all those friends who showed so much kindness during their recent sad bereavement.

The following is a list of Mass Cards and Spiritual offerings:

Mass Cards
A. J. Dougan and family
Mrs. Minnie Bradley and family
Mr. and Mrs. H. Callaghan
Mr. John Gormley
Miss Minnie McKenzie
Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brown
Mrs. Jas. Hughes and family
Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson
Mrs. Thos. McMahon
Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Russell
Mrs. E. Gallant and Emma
Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Doyle
Mr. and Mrs. J. McAleer
Mr. James Toole
Mr. and Mrs. H. Couran
Mr. and Mrs. Wm Flynn and family
Mr. and Mrs. Peter Whitty and family
Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hennessey
Mrs. P. A. Smith
Mr. and Mrs. Hughie Hennessey
Angus Buss
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nicholson
Mr. and Mrs. John Power
Mr. and Mrs. Andrew LeClair

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kelly
Mr. and Mrs. Pius O'Meara
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Howatt
Peter Bradley and family
Spiritual Bouquets
Katie Fitzpatrick
Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Flynn
Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McKinnon
Mrs. John Reid
Gertrude Cody
Mr. and Mrs. T. Flynn
Mr. and Mrs. B. Montleith
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanley
Mrs. A. McDougall
Mr. and Mrs. Harry McNeill

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Doyle
Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Skerry
Mr. Anes Hennessey and family.
(Patriot please copy.)

The upper halves of the lenses of a spectacle invented by a Swedish physician protect their wearers' eyes from automobile headlight glare, the lower halves permitting clear vision.

Milner's Linctament for asthma.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Doyle
Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Skerry
Mr. Anes Hennessey and family.
(Patriot please copy.)

The upper halves of the lenses of a spectacle invented by a Swedish physician protect their wearers' eyes from automobile headlight glare, the lower halves permitting clear vision.

Milner's Linctament for asthma.

Imperial Fox Food

Regularly fed throughout the winter season

is The Best Guarantee

of Assured Results in Reproduction

The largest litters born last season and also the highest average of pups raised to maturity were in fox ranches where IMPERIAL COD LIVER OIL FOX BISCUITS comprised a most important part of the foxes' daily winter diet. Line up with the world's successful ranchers and insist on having "IMPERIALS," the best fox food obtainable.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO. CHARLOTTETOWN P. E. I.