

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How to Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fly! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffing, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Relief is sure.

NEIL TELLS BARBARA A GOOD FRONT GOES A LONG WAY
CHAPTER XXX

Much against my will, I had arrived at the conclusion that Neil did not wish me to know anything of his business methods. Not that this was cause for my doubting their perfectly legitimate; but it, in a way made me feel that Neil did not think me capable of understanding thing which, it was perfectly obvious, he confided in Blanche Orton. It made me vaguely jealous. I did not, for a moment, yet, believe Neil to be in love with Blanche; but I felt that he thought her worthy of his confidence, in a way that it hurt me to think of.

I was definitely conscious of the possibility that, because of this faith in Mrs. Orton's ability, he might eventually think her necessary to him. Hitherto my happiness had been almost perfect because of my trust in Neil's loyalty.

I regarded the ordinary form of jealousy as unnecessary, and indeed dishonorable toward Neil—toward my love for him. To me, such form of jealousy were an insult. But could Neil, more than another, permanently control his heart if the woman made him think she was necessary to his success?

Success was Neil's God. If it would make for that success, would he sacrifice me? I asked myself this question, but refused myself an answer. When married Neil, although 23 years old, I never had cared for anyone else, never had had the slightest idea of what an all-absorbing love meant to a woman. But now I knew to the fullest extent. Was I also to know the unhappiness which sometimes comes to women who love. All day I thought and thought and thought. Neil's friend had said that he was fortunate to be able to "enlist the interest of two women," and then he had called Blanche Orton "clever and — dangerous." Then he had said it was easy to read the character of a woman of her sort: "Charming, fascinating, unscrupulous—when it suits them."

Did it suit Blanche Orton to be unscrupulous? And was there something in her relation with Neil that warranted that remark?

In spite of my anxiety, the day passed swiftly. Neil had asked for an elaborate menu for the dinner and there were flowers to get, and other things to occupy me. I was all dressed when he came in. Dressed exactly as I had been the night before, pearls and all. And I should have no rival at this dinner. Blanche Orton, in her snaky costume, would not eclipse me. It raised my spirits a way, that this was so; and when Neil again complimented me, who could I look sweet enough to tell me I felt quite satisfied with myself and with my appearance.

Mr. Scott came quite promptly and I was surprised that Neil should have been so particular, should have been so much trouble for him. It was a short, swarthy man, bald, dressed although in evening clothes "Open-faced clothes," he facetiously called them, later, on, when the wine Neil had given him made him feel more at ease. His English was poor and ungrammatical; his voice halted frequently when he tried to express himself.

"He needs his money. He hasn't any other attractions," I said to myself. But Neil had wanted me to be certain him, so I tried to forget his unattractive personality, and to be as interesting as I could. That I was succeeding, and that Neil was pleased, was evident by his quick, appreciative glance in my direction.

We had coffee in the library—coffee and liquors. Both Mr. Scott and Neil became talkative. "You're a slick one, Forbes, so I'm old," Mr. Scott remarked. "But you or anyone else will have to get up early in the morning to put anything over on me. I am sure your seat is on the square, and I'll take that block of stock."

They excused themselves and went to the desk and talked of checks and shares for about ten minutes. Then Neil gave him some stock certificates—at least that was what they called them—and he gave Neil a check. After he left, Neil laughed rather sarcastically and said:

Girls! Have a Mass of Beautiful Hair, Soft, Glossy, Wavy

A small bottle destroys dandruff and doubles beauty of your hair

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can find single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but that will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—es—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and ragged, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter for a few cents and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will try a little Danderine.
