

Was Tortured With Eczema For Years

Mrs. George Shambler, 110 Creighton St., Halifax, N.S., writes: "After being tortured with eczema, for years, and trying everything possible from doctors and drug stores, a friend recommended me to take

I sent my husband to get me a bottle and after I had taken it I noticed the cooling of my blood, so he advised me to continue, and after taking several bottles I can truly say it is a wonderful medicine."

Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

NOTICE

Westmoreland Silver and Patch Fox Company's Ranch and foxes for sale, under the voluntary winding up act. Tenders will be received by the undersigned Liquidators up to and including Saturday 17th, Nov. 1928 for ranch property and eight silver black foxes.

J. WARREN NEWSOM Liquidator, Crispaud, P. E. I.

8028-11-7-21

MORTGAGE SALE

There will be sold by Public Auction in front of the Law Courts Building in Charlottetown on Saturday the 17th day of November, A. D. 1928 at the hour of twelve o'clock noon ALL THAT tract of land situated on Lot Thirty-six in Queens County bounded and described as follows: Commencing on the south side of the Port Augustus Road and side of the Port Augustus Road and side of the Port Augustus Road and side of the Port Augustus Road...

This sale is made in pursuance of a Power of Sale contained in an Indenture of Mortgage dated the 15th day of September, A. D. 1915 and made between Peter Garland, of Fort Augustus in Queen's County, and the undersigned of the first part, default having been made in the payment of the principal and interest secured thereby.

STEPHEN R. JENKINS Messrs. McLean & McKinnon, Solicitors. 8502-10-18th 41

POULTRY

We are paying special prices on live fowl, chickens and broilers for the Thanksgiving Market. If you have any to sell, write or phone us for prices.

SWIFT CANADIAN CO., LTD. 1155-10-3-1-mo.

Professional Cards

Mark R. McGuigan B. A. BARRISTER, SOLICITOR, ETC. MONEY TO LOAN. Cameron Block, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

McLeod & Bentley J. A. BENTLEY W. E. BENTLEY, K. C. Barrister and Attorney-at-Law. Office: 180 Richmond Street. MONEY TO LOAN. Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Dr. C. C. Archibald Graduate of N. Y. Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital. Practice Limited to Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat. Testin' Eyes and supplying Glasses. Office: 101-102, Beyer Building, Great George Street. Office Hours—9 to 12.30, 1.30 to 5.00.

McDonald & McPhee B. A. J. A. McDONALD H. F. MCPHEE BARRISTERS, ATTORNEYS, ETC. MONEY TO LOAN. River Building, Charlottetown.

Bell & Mathieson

SMILES

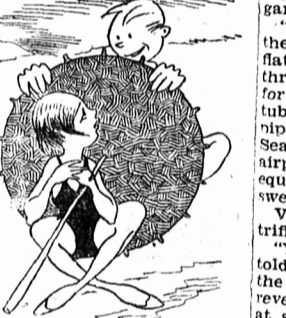

"Unless your husband has non-skid collar buttons he's prone to discover flaws in your housekeeping."

KNIGHT AT DAY LABOR

"How is that English knight employed?" "At day labor."

He: Aw gimme a kiss. She: I'll scream if you kiss me. He: I'll scream if I don't.

DOESN'T GAS ON THE STEPS "Does your feller ever gas on the steps with you in the evening?" "I should say not. He steps on the gas with me in the evening, my dear."

Halifax to Norway IN 7 DAYS S.S. Bergensfjord SAILING NOVEMBER 22nd, 1928 TO BERGEN AND OSLO. Only Opportunity of Shipping

LIVE FOXES Direct to NORWAY. Space must be reserved through T. A. S. DeWolf & Son HALIFAX, N. S.

RED CROSS LINE S. S. "ROSALIND" FREIGHT AND PASSENGERS MONTREAL CH'TOWN ST. JOHN'S

Wonderful For Indigestion! When your stomach feels bad; when Gas, Sourness, Nausea or after-eating pains make you feel miserable—a single dose of pure Bismarck-Brown will bring you instant relief. For Indigestion, the prompt effect.

Canada S.S. Lines Ltd. Nov. 10 Nov. 24 Nov. 12 Nov. 26 Nov. 13 Nov. 27

Blue Murder BY EDMUND SHELL

(Continued)

He sighted them a few moments later, pausing at the foot of the first flight of stone steps, apparently lost in admiration of a tranquil sea reflecting the stars.

Marney had never quite realized what a colossal man Ahlberg was until he saw him outlined there in jet against a violet background. Von Roeschen, thickset as he was, seemed a pigmy beside him. The glowing tip of Ahlberg's cigar showed a foot above that of the German.

"Fine!" ejaculated the shorter man presently. "Very beautiful!" Ahlberg grunted.

"You Germans are queer fellows," he declared. "Even in your most heroic moments you find time to be sentimental! And yet you call yourselves a nation of warriors! You will never conquer the world, my friend, until you rid yourselves of sentiment."

He extended an arm toward the dim horizon as if he were wondering what Goethe or Schiller would say about this scene. You are moved by the silver ripples on the water, the white foam at the foot of the cliffs—while at the same time you are wondering how far you can beat me down, tell you, Von Roeschen, you cannot mix these things. When I started to manufacture a little left sentiment to women and fools I thought how many thousands of Germans could kill with my gas. He chuckled hoarsely.

"And then fool-sentimentalists stepped in and stopped me—and almost lost because of it! They were afraid for their views, Von Roeschen, don't you see?—afraid for their precious country-side!"

Marney, lurking in the shadows where he now clung, flattened out his forehead. Something between jagged boulders, drinking in the end he had been morose, silent, madman's lips. He kept glancing between his words surely, loudly echoing in the ears of the lovers in the garden.

"Shall I tell you what I see out there, Von Roeschen? I see ships, service in the world. I pay by reflat, oil-driven monitors, moving suits, and by heaven! I get them! forty knots. No turrets, no torpedo-launchers, no heavy guns, just flexible pipes pumping out livid blue rays! Senseless, with silent engines, airplanes, shore batteries—all equipped with those queer, unswearable tubes."

Von Roeschen eyed the other a trifle nervously and laughed. "You are a prophet, Ahlberg," he told him. "You have drawn aside the dark curtain of the future—and revealed the fleet of the Fatherland at sea!"

Ahlberg dealt the other a resounding blow with the flat of his hand which sent him swaying on the brink of the abyss—then jerked him back on to the steps by his coat-tails.

"In the days of which I am talking," he said, "there will be no German fleet, no British, no French, nor even American."

"So?" queried the Teuton, more than a little exercised as to his companion's sanity.

"Exactly so, my dear Von Roeschen! You people have haunted me too long. You have made me realize the inestimable value of the secrets I possess. I am enlightened, my friend, disillusioned. All the gold in the world would not tempt me to sell. The board is down, I tell you, and you can go back to your country tomorrow. Karl Ahlberg haggles no longer."

His wild peal of laughter sent a cold sensation passing down Marney's spine. The man was mad, Tavernier had always said he was mad. This last raid had been too much for him.

The German thought so too, for he turned his back on the sea and made as if to retrace his footsteps to the garden.

Divining his intention, Ahlberg caught him by the arm. "Look!" he thundered. "Cannot you see them? Long, blue bars of light sweeping to infinity. How simple everything will be—and how effective! There will be no doctors in the next war, no nurses, no cumbersome hospital ships. The Blue Death does not wound, Von Roeschen; it kills mercifully, surely; it pulverizes everything! I see you are a man with vision, a man after my own heart. We will go lower, down to the water's edge, and talk about this everywhere. Listening; Italian spies, French spies, English spies, German spies. . . . A German came to my house last night. Did you know on him—and he melted away on the path. When the police came there was just a heap of dust—German dust! They would try an ordinary man for murder for a thing like that; but they are afraid of Ahlberg—all of them. The police want me to leave Italy; the Government does not let me out of its sight!"

Still talking, he drew the other down the steps to the bathing platform, and Marney followed, with an automatic, shifted from his hip to his overcoat, hoping he would never have to use it.

He had forgotten Greta now, forgotten Dighton in a nursing-home in Genoa. Ahlberg had gone stark raving mad, more mad than Tavernier had ever believed possible. He dragged him from the rock onto the concrete platform.

"Two others have gone now. You know something about that. You sent me to invade my grounds, break into my house, slaughter my dogs. . . . I know who they were, I tell you. I can give you their names! Did you suppose I would other; but the third got away in the darkness. I will tell you his name—Hans Koerich!"

The German paused in the midst of his struggling to voice an emphatic denial.

"I tell you I know nothing of all this—nothing at all." A bellow like that of an enraged bull escaped Ahlberg's lips.

"I have never heard of him—never known a man of that name. . . . I give you one more chance, Von Roeschen, this is your last chance."

him with such force that he staggered against the wall of the recess right under the spot where the American was hiding. "Himself!" spluttered the German. "You do this to me! I—"

The threat his lips were framing petered out abruptly. He was crouching back against

ITCHY ECZEMA-ON BABY'S FACE

Broke Out in Watery Pimples. Cuticura Healed.

"Eczema broke out in watery pimples on my baby's face. It itched and burned so badly that she scratched, and her face was covered with sore eruptions. When she scratched the eruptions they used to bleed something dreadful. She used to fret and stay awake nights. It caused disfigurement for a while. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using it I purchased two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and in five weeks she was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Clifford Fancy, Westfield, N. S.

Give Cuticura Soap and Ointment the care of your skin.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address Canadian Agents: The Cuticura Company, Dept. 22, Oshkosh, Wis. and 200, Toronto, Ont. Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

was in flated with a sense of his own impotence. He had left off playing with the world now and was in deadly earnest. In Marney's ears the signal for that grim effort that was to send the inventor and his ghastly dope sky-high.

Above the incessant plashing of restless waters engaged on their eternal struggle with the rocks, the two men had completed the descent and were halted where the waves threw up intermittent showers of spray.

Von Roeschen was nervous. The American could see that from the spot behind the rocks where Mafalda and Dighton had talked, and he kept glancing between his words surely, loudly echoing in the ears of the lovers in the garden.

"I have a secret service too, Von Roeschen, and it is the best paid service in the world. I pay by reflat, oil-driven monitors, moving suits, and by heaven! I get them! forty knots. No turrets, no torpedo-launchers, no heavy guns, just flexible pipes pumping out livid blue rays! Senseless, with silent engines, airplanes, shore batteries—all equipped with those queer, unswearable tubes."

Von Roeschen eyed the other a trifle nervously and laughed. "You are a prophet, Ahlberg," he told him. "You have drawn aside the dark curtain of the future—and revealed the fleet of the Fatherland at sea!"

Ahlberg dealt the other a resounding blow with the flat of his hand which sent him swaying on the brink of the abyss—then jerked him back on to the steps by his coat-tails.

"In the days of which I am talking," he said, "there will be no German fleet, no British, no French, nor even American."

"So?" queried the Teuton, more than a little exercised as to his companion's sanity.

"Exactly so, my dear Von Roeschen! You people have haunted me too long. You have made me realize the inestimable value of the secrets I possess. I am enlightened, my friend, disillusioned. All the gold in the world would not tempt me to sell. The board is down, I tell you, and you can go back to your country tomorrow. Karl Ahlberg haggles no longer."

His wild peal of laughter sent a cold sensation passing down Marney's spine. The man was mad, Tavernier had always said he was mad. This last raid had been too much for him.

The German thought so too, for he turned his back on the sea and made as if to retrace his footsteps to the garden.

Divining his intention, Ahlberg caught him by the arm. "Look!" he thundered. "Cannot you see them? Long, blue bars of light sweeping to infinity. How simple everything will be—and how effective! There will be no doctors in the next war, no nurses, no cumbersome hospital ships. The Blue Death does not wound, Von Roeschen; it kills mercifully, surely; it pulverizes everything! I see you are a man with vision, a man after my own heart. We will go lower, down to the water's edge, and talk about this everywhere. Listening; Italian spies, French spies, English spies, German spies. . . . A German came to my house last night. Did you know on him—and he melted away on the path. When the police came there was just a heap of dust—German dust! They would try an ordinary man for murder for a thing like that; but they are afraid of Ahlberg—all of them. The police want me to leave Italy; the Government does not let me out of its sight!"

Still talking, he drew the other down the steps to the bathing platform, and Marney followed, with an automatic, shifted from his hip to his overcoat, hoping he would never have to use it.

He had forgotten Greta now, forgotten Dighton in a nursing-home in Genoa. Ahlberg had gone stark raving mad, more mad than Tavernier had ever believed possible. He dragged him from the rock onto the concrete platform.

"Two others have gone now. You know something about that. You sent me to invade my grounds, break into my house, slaughter my dogs. . . . I know who they were, I tell you. I can give you their names! Did you suppose I would

other; but the third got away in the darkness. I will tell you his name—Hans Koerich!"

The German paused in the midst of his struggling to voice an emphatic denial.

"I tell you I know nothing of all this—nothing at all." A bellow like that of an enraged bull escaped Ahlberg's lips.

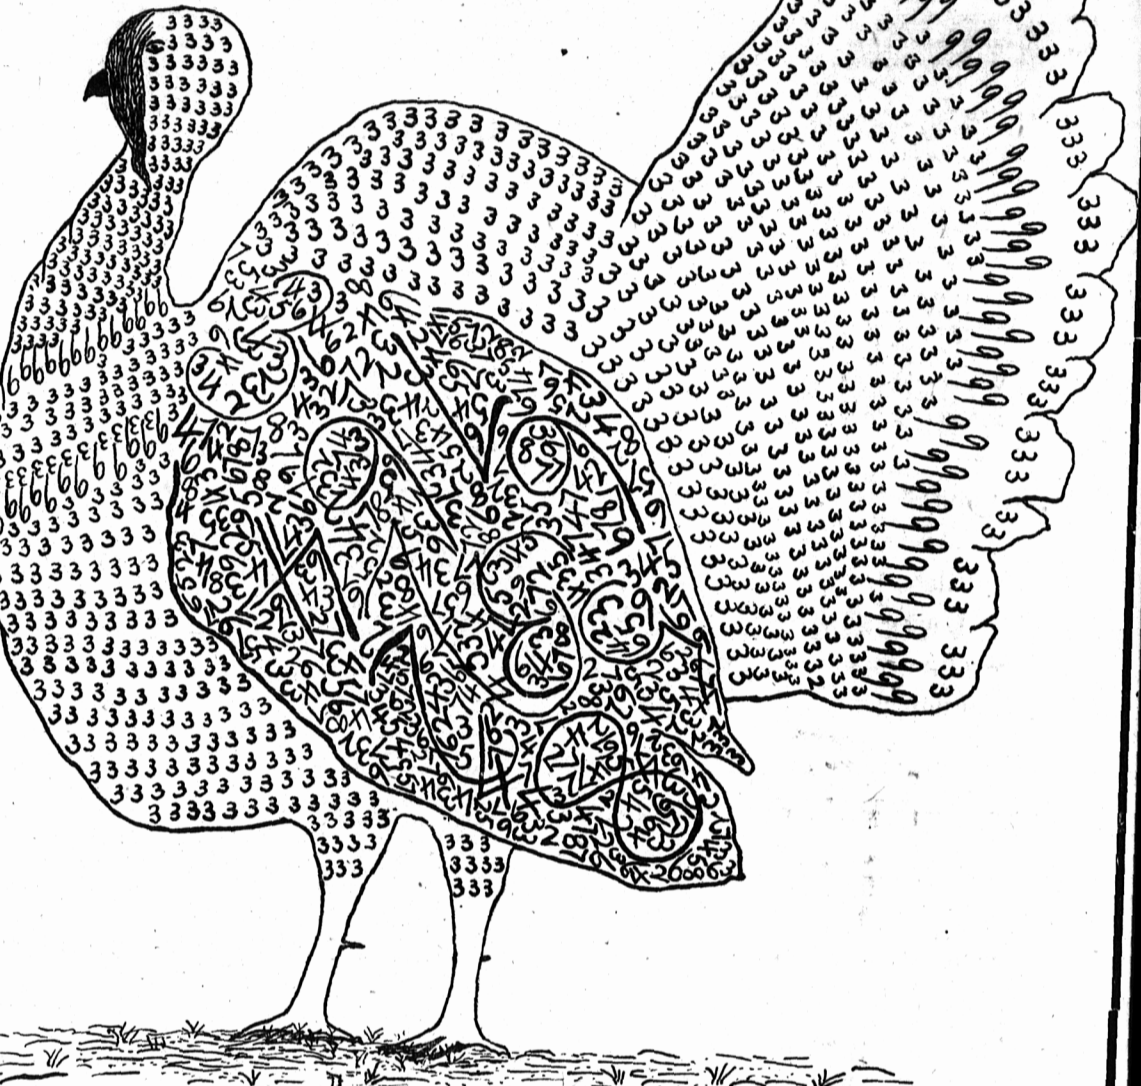

"I have never heard of him—never known a man of that name. . . . I give you one more chance, Von Roeschen, this is your last chance."

him with such force that he staggered against the wall of the recess right under the spot where the American was hiding. "Himself!" spluttered the German. "You do this to me! I—"

The threat his lips were framing petered out abruptly. He was crouching back against

HOW MANY FEATHERS ON THE TURKEY?

$50.00 to the Person who counts them correctly—Other awards from $20.00 down.

The feathers on the Turkey are made up of figures 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. The problem is to take these feathers off the Turkey and add the figures. The total of the added figures will be taken as the number of feathers on the bird.

PRIZES.—For the correct, or nearest correct, solution prizes in order as follows will be paid in cash.

Table with 2 columns: Prize Rank and Amount. 1st Prize $50.00, 2nd Prize 20.00, 3rd Prize 10.00, 4th Prize 5.00, 5th Prize $4.00, 6th Prize 3.00, 7th Prize 2.00, 8th Prize 1.00.

IT COSTS NOTHING There is absolutely no responsibility, obligation or cost of any kind to try for a prize. The solving of the problem will provide a few hours most interesting work.

COMPETITION CLOSES The competition closes Saturday, November 10th, 1928, at midnight. All solutions to be considered, must reach the address below before that hour.

In case of a tie the prize will go to the one who had sent a new subscription with his solution in accordance with condition No. 3.

If those who tie have both, or all sent in new subscriptions; then the prize will go to the one whose subscription which he or she became eligible, is paid the farthest in advance into the year 1929. If both or all are paid in advance to December 31, 1929, then the money will be divided among such proportionately according to the number of winners.

Conditions 1. Every one in any family where there is a regular subscription of this paper paid in advance, is invited to try the solution and compete for the prizes. 2. Anyone not eligible in accordance with No. 1 condition, may compete by becoming a subscriber or sending in the subscription of some member of the family with $4.00 for country or $5.00 for the city for the first year in advance. 3. Every competitor may, if he or she so desires, send in a new paid in advance for one year subscription with the solution. This is not obligatory; but the winner of each double the amount his or her prize calls for. Thus if the winner of the first prize had sent a new subscriber, he will be awarded $100.00 cash instead of $50.00, and accordingly with all the prizes. No one can so secure double money unless the new subscription is actually forwarded with his solution. 4. Each competitor, by sending in his solution, agrees that the decision of the judges shall be indisputable and final. 5. All solutions must be sent in on the following form, clipped from this paper.

Cut this out on the border lines, fill in and mail early. Mark on outside of envelope "Turkey Feathers Competition."

SOLUTION TURKEY FEATHERS COMPETITION

To Turkey Feathers Competition The Guardian, Charlottetown, P. E. I.

(a) My solution of the Feathers on the Turkey is (b) I am eligible for the competition on the subscription addressed Name Address

(c) Amount enclosed on account of the above Subscription $ (d) New Subscription Name Address Amount enclosed: $4.00 or $5.00 paying for the first year in advance

(e) I agree that the decision of the Judges shall be indisputable and final. Signed Address Dated 1928.

NOTE: Sections (c) and (d) are for use only if subscription is in arrears, or if sending in a new subscription.