Their many friends wish them a happy wedded life.

DANCE ENJOYED.—A splendid Leap Year dance at which a fair sum was realized, was given in Millvale school on January 26th. by the Women's Institute. "BIG CHIEF" IN VANCOUVER B.C.

Career Of Mr. B. T. Chappell Vividly Told In Western Newspaper.

(The following clipping is from The Sunday Province, B. C., of January 31st, 1932. The same issue contains a cartoon of the "Big Chief of the Iron Horse." The Benjamin Chappell referred to is a son of the late John J. Chappell, for many years a clerk in the Stores Department of the P. E. Island Railway, now part of the C. N. R. He is a direct descendant of the fifth generation of Benjamin Chappell, who arrived in this colony in 1775, and was the first Postmaster of Prince Edward Island. He was a man of considerable ability and took an active part in the affairs of the colony. He kept a diary which contained much valuable information of the Island in its early days. This diary was preserved by members of the Chappell family for many years and parts of it are now in the Public Library in Charlottetown. Benjamin Chappell, the Superintendent of the C. N. R. at Vancouver, is another successful Islander abroad, and a worthy representative of an honored ancestor.)

Away over on the east coast of Canada there is some territory called Prince Edward Island. On this Island is a city called Charlottetown. Back in 1877 a child was born who was christened Benjamin Chappell. Today this child is living in Vancouver and the door of his office is labelled "B. T. Chappell, General Superintendent, Canadian National Railways."

But few know him here as Benjamin Chappell. He is popularly called, not only in British Columbia, but throughout all Western Canada, as "Ben." He is a big man physically and otherwise, and big men don't like long names. So he's perfectly happy when he is called just plain Ben.

Railroading has been his life work. As a matter of fact, he has never held any other kind of a job. At least not since he was a wee snipper and earned the odd dime delivering parcels, or chopping wood for the family cook stove.

When he was eighteen years old he thought he had seen enough of Prince Edward Island, so he set out with his face turned westward. Finally he got to Winnipeg in 1895 for his first view of the real West. The longer he lives, the more he likes Western Canada. If he lived to be 200 years old, the west would be just that much better.

When he travelled to Winnipeg on his first trip, he didn't like the way the railway was run. So he thought he would get a railroad job and do something about it. He's been doing that ever since. As general superintendent, he does a lot about it.

Grew Up With The West

He took a job as freight clerk in Winnipeg with the Northern Pacific & Manitoba Railway and stayed there until 1901, when the Manitoba lines of the company were taken over by Mackenzie & Mann. He thought the new owners needed some experienced men, so he joined the new company, known as the Canadian Northern.

He went from Winnipeg to Port Arthur. Port Arthur fought so much with Fort William that he didn't think it was a very safe place so he was transferred to North Battleford. Then he went to Saskatoon. In 1915 he came to Vancouver, but found Saskatoon was slipping as a city and went back there in 1919. Ten more years in Saskatoon brought him promotion to general superintendent at Vancouver. He's been here ever since.

He thinks Vancouver is a great city, but it would be greater if more Saskatoon people came and lived here.

The following were the speakers: Pro.—Walter Cuswack, Mary Bradley, Cecil Bradley, Emmett Gorman. Con.—Mathias Hogan; Peter Toole, Kathleen Cuswack, Emmett McQuaid, Mrs. F. J. Flood, Mary Trainor.

Vote Of Confidence For Premier Laval

PARIS, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Premier Laval, at the conclusion of a lengthy debate on unemployment, won a vote of confidence this morning from the French chamber of deputies voting 307 to 267. At the last minute the opposition sprung a surprise by presenting four additional motions. The Premier upset the manoeuvre by saying he made only the fifth motion a question of confidence and he was sustained.

Old Time Music and an Address on the Raising and Marketing of Livestock BY

The LEWIS W. GOFF COMPANY LTD.

He likes exhibitions and is a director of the Vancouver Exhibition Association. He's very happy at exhibitions and wishes summer would come more often so they could hold more of them.

He doesn't play golf. Says he's too young yet and hasn't time. Hopes to learn if J. K. Matheson will take him out to Hastings Park.

His hobbies are his home, the Canadian National Railways, the Vancouver Exhibition Association, the Rotary Club and his grandchild.

His pet aversions are snow and rockslides in the mountains, especially if they are on his railroad. He smokes cigars as vigorously as he does his work, which is just too bad for the cigar. Bridge is a waste of time with him, but he believes rummy is a very uplifting game.

He gets to his office early and works late. He makes friends quickly and keeps them.

It's not at all hard to like Ben Chappell.

He usually attracts some kind of attention in every place he resides and says he is quite satisfied as long as the police departments do not get too inquisitive. He prefers to keep some secrets to himself.

During his last residence in Saskatoon he became such a notorious gadabout that he attracted the attention of the Cree Indians. Cree Indians are partial to general superintendents, especially when they originate from a fish-eating province. So friendly did "B.T." become with the Saskatchewan Cree band that it is rumored that on one occasion two of them were induced to travel over the Canadian National Railways.

The Indians held a pow-wow over the incident and thought something should be done about it, so they decided to make Mr. Chappell an Indian chief—honorary, of course. They held the ceremonial at the Saskatoon Exhibition before a great gathering, and after a wild war dance which scared the daylight out of their honored guest, they invested him with a leather smock and a feathered Indian headdress. They used a tomahawk for a gavel, but when they tapped him on the head with the weapon, they broke the war club. All general superintendents have had heads.

"Chief Iron Horse."

They finished the ceremony by lighting the pipe of peace, but it made the new chief very sick, and he didn't enjoy himself very much from then on. They christened him "Chief Iron Horse."

He took the leather coat and headdress home to proudly show his family, but as it had been worn by some brave for many years and had not been dry-cleaned before the ceremony, it was quickly confined to the basement. He had received orders that this must never be worn again in the house and only outside when the wind is blowing strong from the south.

Details of his fearless deeds as an Indian chief came to the Coast with him, and last year at the Kamloops Exhibition, when he officially opened the gathering, he was invested as an honorary member of the Upper Country Cowboy Association. He was presented with a ten-gallon hat and a gaudy scarf. His wife liked the scarf so much she took immediate possession. She says he can wear the hat anytime, too, because it was quite new and had never been worn before.

He's hoping some cigar-makers organization will make him an honorary member now. He'd be tickled to death to accept several boxes of cigars—provided they went with the honorary membership.

INTERESTING DEBATES

On January 22nd a very humorous, entertaining and intelligent meeting was held at Kelly's Cross by the St. Joseph's Literary and Debating Society. The question, "Resolved that women should propose marriage" was shown by logical arguments that man should retain the privilege of "Popping the Question". Interesting and logical points were put forth by both the offensive and defensive, and those who were lacking in logic and reasoning compensated for that deficiency by a wonderful display of humor. So well balanced were the arguments that it was hard to discern which side was better, but eventually the judges announced that the "con" side was victorious by a small majority.

The following were the speakers: Pro.—James E. Coady, Mary Nantes, Maurice Bradley, John McQuaid, John W. Trainor, Anthony Malone, Harold McManus. Con.—Gordon Waddell, Helen McManus, Gerald Nantes, Louis McGuigan, Mrs. J. H. Nantes, Ambrose Monaghan, Thomas Cuswack.

On January 29th the St. Joseph's Literary and Debating Society of Kelly's Cross discussed the question, "Resolved that United States is a better country than Canada in which to live." Although some of the speakers were absent, the arguments set forth by those present showed that the subject received its due consideration. The arguments of the "pro" side centered about the sociality, progress and industry of U. S. A., while those of the "con" swung on the effect produced by the policy of Hon. R. B. Bennett in the development of Canada's natural resources.

The society experienced distinguished honor by the presence of the reverend George Bradley, S. J. Father Bradley addressed the meeting and in the course of his remarks highly commended our pastor, Rev. J. C. Pire, and the people of St. Joseph's parish for the resurrection and re-establishment of the debating society which existed in his youth and which he
