IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mrs. Craig, (nee Ada McDougall) who died Feb. 17th., 1916.

Oft times I sit and think of her
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

Some time I hope to meet her,
Some day I know not when;
I shall clasp her hand in a better land.
And never part again.

ENGLISH LADY DOING HER "BIT"

The following extracts from a letter received here will give some idea of what the women in England are doing to help in the war. The writer, who has visited Charlottetown several times, is a lady of independent means, who before the war never did any harder work than play tennis or golf. Before she lost the flesh referred to, she weighed about ninety pounds. We must admit that her occupation is more strenuous than most of her sisters in this province, although many thousands are doing similar work in England:

"Nowadays I work 60 hours a week at high pressure, come home late Saturday night, and leave again on Sunday night. We have five days holiday now (Christmas week). I am very glad to rest, it is a real treat not to have to turn out of bed at 6 a.m. these cold mornings! Everything is going well. I rather like factory life for a change. It is most interesting, and I feel it is good work for the country. I am head forewoman for the filling of lyddite high explosive shells, and have already nearly a hundred girls working, and 22 sheds to go round. It makes me jump round. There are about five workers in each shed and a large danger space between. It is rather difficult to make the girls realize the danger without frightening them too much. It is the highest explosive there is, but it is not so injurious as some other fillings. I have kept very well but have not much flesh on me, which is not surprising when you think that I can't sit down except half an hour for dinner in the ten hours. We are starting night shift after Christmas. I am not looking forward to that. At Banbury, where I was sent to train, we worked 12-hour shifts and there was no canteen, and we had to bring our food with us; had to walk about two miles to and from the works, and get up at 4.30 a.m. I may have told you this before, but it seems like a night-mare to me now."

U-BOATS SLEW TWO HUNDRED AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, February 15—Two hundred Americans at least, probably more, have gone to their deaths through German and Austrian operations.

Most of the Americans lost were traveling on unarmed merchant ships and, under the practices of international law and humanity, believed themselves secure. More than 2000 citizens of other nationalities lost their lives in the same attacks which cost the lives of Americans, but they compose only a part of the toll of life taken by submarine warfare. The ships lost, on which the Americans met death, are only a fraction of the number sent to the bottom by torpedoes—most of them without warning.

The cases which involve the United States and Germany are primarily those in which American life was lost or endangered. The first American of whom there is record to lose his life in submarine attack was Leon T. Thresher, a passenger on the British liner Falaba, bound from Liverpool for West Africa, which was torpedoed and sunk March 27, 1915, off Milford, England. The Falaba, after a hopeless attempt to escape, stopped, and while boats were being lowered and passengers still were abroad the submarine drove a torpedo into her side and she went down in ten minutes. Of 242 persons 136 were saved; the American was among the lost.

The first American ship attacked was the Gulflight, an oil tanker, from Port Arthur, Tex., to Rouen, France, torpedoed without warning off the Scilly Islands May 1, 1915. Two men jumped overboard and were drowned; her captain died of heart failure. The Gulflight did not sink and was towed to port by British patrols. The German Government acknowledged the attack as an accident, expressing its regrets and promised to pay damages.

The next attack was the one that shocked the civilized world and brought the United States and Germany for the first time to the verge of war. It was the destruction of the Lusitania on May 7, 1915. Unarmed with 1257 pasesngers, of whom 159 were Americans, and a crew of 702, she was torpedoed without warning and sank in twenty-three minutes off Old Head of Kinsale, as she was leaving Liverpool. In all 1198 lives were lost of which 124 were Americans, many of them men of national prominence. Everything pointed to a prearranged German plan to torpedo the ship. The German Embassy had published advertisements warning Americans in veiled terms, and at the wharf a number of prominent Americans received telegrams warning them not to sail. It has been charged that the German ambassador himself knew the liner was to be sunk and that German officials here counted her progress across the ocean day by day and as the hour of her destination drew near they watched for the extra newspapers which they knew would announce her destruction. The case passed into diplomatic negotiations which never took final form.

While the Lusitania case still was fresh in the public mind, a German submarine torpedoed another American ship—the Nebraskan—without warning, May 25, 1915, south of Fastnet Rock. The Nebraskan's name was painted on her sides in letters six feet long, and her lights had been hauled down at darkness, as is the custom at sea. The Nebraskan was able to reach port under her own steam, and no one was injured. The German Government again expressed its regret for a mistake and promised to pay damages.

Twenty American negro muleteers on the Leyland liner Armenian were killed June 28, 1915, by shell fire and drowning when the Armenian failed to escape with her cargo of army mules from a submarine near the Cornwall coast. The Armenian was warned and invited her destruction by flight. The Armenian muleteers suffered by the action of the British captain.

The next submarine attack in which Americans were endangered was not successful but only because the Cunard liner Orduna was too speedy for her pursuers. After sending a torpedo just under the Orduna's stern, the submarine rained shells after the fleeing liner without harm and then gave up the chase. A score or more of Americans were on the ship and the attack, coming close on the assurances for the safety of passenger liners during the course of the Lusitania negotiations, aroused American public opinion to a high pitch. Germany explained that the submarine commander had failed to observe his orders and more explicit instructions had been issued.

SUN LIFE LEADS CANADIAN COMPANIES

The Sun Life of Canada's published statement of 1916 results, which appeared yesterday is in every sense a satisfactory document. It shows assurance issued and paid for in cash during 1916 of a total of over $42,750,000, the largest amount of new business ever written by any Canadian Life company in any year. Assurance in force now total over $280,000,000. Assets increased by over $6,500,000 to practically $83,000,000 the largest assets ever attained by a Canadian company. Cash income totalled nearly $18,50,000 an increase of over $2,500,000 over that of 1915. Payments to policyholders exceeded $7,500,000, bringing total payments to policyholders since organization to over $60,250,000.

The record of the Sun Life of Canada for 1916 reflects the highest credit upon the Directors and officers of the Company and should be equally satisfactory to the Company's policy holders.

To Relieve Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Any druggist can supply you, or a bottle will be sent on receipt of 75c. postal note or money order. Address International Laboratories, 74 St. Antonie St., Montreal, Canada.

CANADIAN PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY

Sir,— Will you allow me to give some further information about supplying food and comforts to our prisoners. There are 2196 Canadians of all ranks, confined in ninety-one different camps in Germany.

The Canadian Red Cross Society has pledged itself to supply each one of these with weekly boxes of food to the value of $10.00 per month, and also with six pounds of bread a week, four pounds being sent from Switzerland and two pounds from Holland. This costs the Society over $20,000 per month, and it depends on our generous contributions for this purpose to avoid drawing on the general funds of the Society, which are required for many other things. The new postal regulations forbidding the sending of private parcels of food or clothing, make it all the more imperative that the Red Cross funds should reach the prisoners every week. A returned prisoner writes that the Red Cross parcels everywhere in Germany are the object of admiration both for quantity and quality, but more so for the excellent taste shown in the contents. Two escaped prisoners attribute their good health to the parcels of food sent them regularly by the Canadian Red Cross, and say they received quite 90 per cent of them. The Society still allow us in P. E. Island to adopt a prisoner for $4.50 per month, that being the original value of the boxes, which on account of the increase in the price of goods now costs $10.00 per month; the difference is made up by contributions, other than monthly subscriptions. The Victoria W. P. A., and the Alberton W. P. A., Kensington W. P. A., have adopted prisoners this week. We want many more to follow their example, either by adoption or contributions. We are now providing for 69 prisoners.

I am, Sir, etc.
(Canon) JAMES SIMPSON,
Treasurer Prisoners' of War Depart.,
Canadian Red Cross.
