

THE MORNING GUARDIAN.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 10 1898.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

At the prohibition plebiscite in Nova Scotia taken in March, 1894, the total vote in the province was, 43,756 for and 12,335 against prohibition, giving a net majority of 31,466.

The proposed million dollar twentieth century fund to be raised by the Methodist church of Canada for organisation work is a bold and worthy enterprise which will no doubt prove successful.

The recent local election in Queen's County appears to have attracted more attention throughout the Dominion than in this Island.

Sir William MacCormack, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, of England, when asked about the very high rate of mortality experienced by the American troops in Cuba remarked that it has been vastly greater than that of British troops exposed in West Africa or in the Sudan.

Rev. G. M. Grant writes the Toronto Globe that during his recent visit to Newfoundland he did not once mention the subject of confederation with Canada.

the overtures. Principal Grant thinks Newfoundland indispensable to Canada, as an enemy possessing the Island could seal up the Gulf of St. Lawrence and hoke us effectually.

A sensational story comes from a newspaper published in Rome to the effect that the German Minister at Paris has notified the French government that certain alleged letters from the Emperor of Germany touching the Dreyfus matter are spurious, and that any attempt to use such letters in the future trial of accused persons would be followed by the German Minister demanding his passports.

A few voices here and there are raised in the country to say that in the event of the passage of a prohibitory law those having vested interests in the liquor trade must be compensated! This is sheer nonsense, which not even the objectors themselves believe.
