NO "LUMP SUMS"

LONDON, July —(CP) —The Pensions Minister, Sir Walter Wormsley announced that British servicemen would not be able to commute their pensions in favor of receiving a lump sum at the end of the war.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN PARATROOPS such as these spilling by the score out of twin-engined [illegible] Sicily by landing behind enemy lines, seizing airfields and communicaton centers.

SALVOS IN THE NIGHT from Allied warships set off the invasion of Sicily. Tremendous blasts, like this one from U.S. battleship's 16-inch guns, tore into the axis defenses, starting a "chain of smoke and flames" 10 mile inland, according to eye witness report.

Munda Point, New Georgia, with its fine landing strip, is the objective of a pincers thrust from north and east as American forces close in on the Japs on this island in the central Solomons. This airview taken during a bombing raid shows clearly the long air-field at Munda.

War—25 Years Ago Today

By The Canadian Press

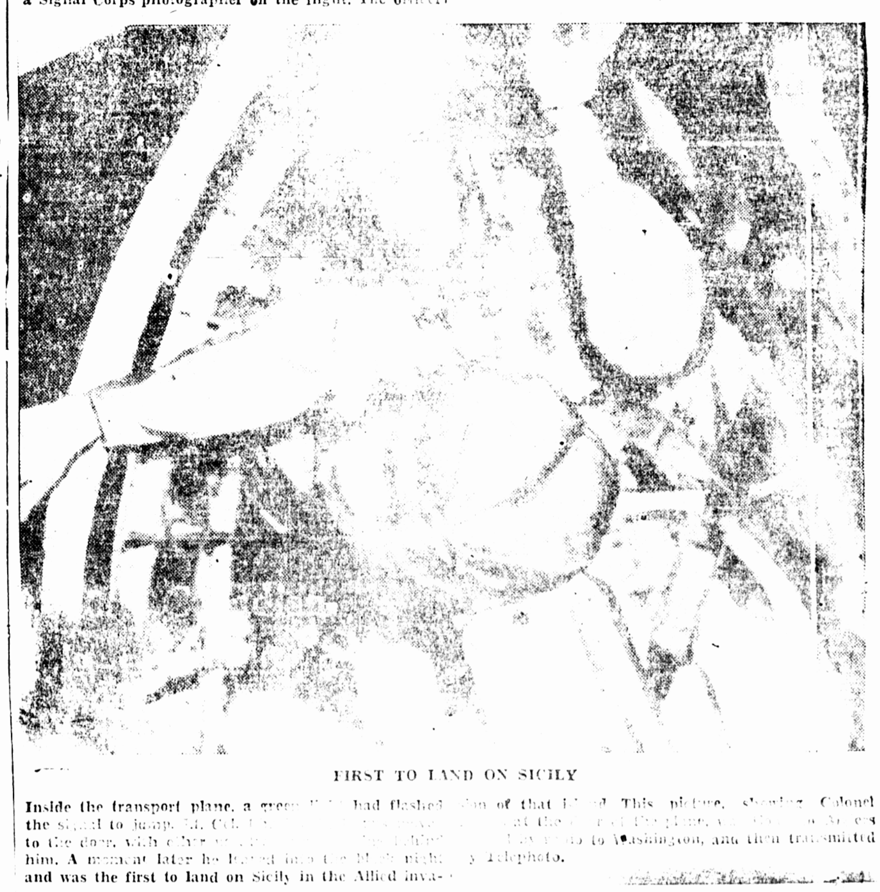
JULY 16, 1918—French stood firm east of Reims; Germans advanced towards Epernay from the Marne in very severe fighting on whole Western front; French-American troops regain Marne heights. Austrian Commander-In-Chief von Hetzendorf removed from command.

After lying neglected for 35 years in the yard of Thetford, Norfolk gasworks, a stone coffin believed to contain the remains of King Sweyn, father of King Canute, is to be re-interred in the ruined chapel at The Canons, Thetford.

THE INVASION BEGINS

—Signal Corps Radio-Telephoto, from NEA

"Your destination is the Italian island of Sicily, and you will be the first American [illegible]" what Lt. Col. Charles W. [illegible] was [illegible] ers in a transport plane as this picture was taken by a Signal Corps photographer on the flight. The officers, heavily laden with fighting equipment, led the jump. [illegible] on the [illegible] end of a [illegible]-mile coastal area, while British troops took the eastern end.



FIRST TO LAND ON SICILY

Inside the transport plane, a green light had flashed the signal to jump. Lt. Col. [illegible] to the door, with other [illegible] him. A moment later he leaped into the black night and was the first to land on Sicily in the Allied invasion of that island. This picture, showing Colonel [illegible] at the [illegible] of the plane, [illegible] to Washington, and then transmitted by Telephoto.

Loaded with troops who spearheaded the Allied invasion of Sicily, LCI boats lay side by side at a secret embarkation port, awaiting the "Go" signal to follow those seen in the background—already on their way toward the enemy shores.
