Did You See The New MOIR Chocolates?

There are fresh MOIR'S Chocolates in today.

It seems to us that these chocolates are getting better all the time. These last have an unusually fine flavor, and they are so dainty, pure, wholesome and taste-tickling that they would smile away any jinx or grouch.

This week they are put up in a beautiful box that is well worth the price of a half-pound alone. Pound box 60c

A DISTINCTIVE INSTRUMENT

The swelling and the shrinkage of wood which take place with climatic changes open up minute passages through which the air escapes, and if leakage of air takes place, then the action immediately deteriorates. The Aluminum Action in the Heintzman & Co. Player-Piano provides against this common weakness of other Player-Pianos.

PARTICULARS OF ISLANDERS DEATH

Mrs. John Quinn, City has received the following particulars of the death of Pte. Moses Gallant:

Belgium,
Sept. 30th, 1915

From O. C. 26th Batt. Canadians to Mrs. John Quinn, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

Dear Mrs. Quinn:— It is my sad duty to officially inform you of the death of Pte. Moses Gallant of whom you are the next of kin. You have my deepest sympathy. He died in the full fulfillment of his duties as a soldier, a man in an advanced post at midnight, 28th inst, while returning to trenches he was killed by a German sniper who shot him through the back killing him instantly. Whatever effects, Bank book, metal tag, etc. will be forwarded to you in good time by military authorities. He is buried in a plot of land I staked off for the purpose. I personally attended, saw him decently buried. There is a cross at his head with name, rank, regiment, number on it and a bottle buried in grave with same written on slip of paper corked up in it. The ground will be consecrated as soon as I can get a "Parde." Later I shall try and send you a drawing or a photo of grave.

Yours sympathetically,
J. L. McAvity, Col.,
Officer commanding
26th Batt. Canadians.

After the war you will be notified exactly where on map of Belgium Gallant is buried. Censors will not permit anyone knowing where any corps is now as the whereabouts of any battalion would give valuable information to the enemy.

J. L. McA.

We are now under heavy shell fire carrying on. Pardon briefness.

ISLAND SOLDIER'S WORDS OF PRAISE

Following is a copy of a letter from "Will" McLure an ex-"Prince of Wales" Student to his parents at Murray Harbor North.

Belgium Sept. 27, 1915.

Dear Father and Mother:—

I guess that I had better change the order of things and write you a letter instead of always sending Service post cards. Last night we came out of the front line, but we are still in the trenches. It was real good to be able to sleep right around the clock—as we were able to do here— from nine o'clock last night until nine this morning, as we only managed to get four hours out of twenty-four in the last three days—and the four hour "nap" was enjoyed during the daylight hours. We have been giving the Germans as hot a time as we could lately, and of course they have been retaliating; but although it has been pretty "hot" at times we are getting along fine. It rained almost continually night and day for those three days we spent in the front line trenches, and so there was lots of mud, many wet feet and much discomfort in general. However, things have been so very satisfactory in other ways that we do not allow little things like those I have mentioned count for much. There seems to be many important successes on different parts of the line—and it is such facts that really count here. I see where we get another good sleep tonight; we have to take rations up to the fellows who are now in the front line, but that won't take very long and it is not an awfully hard job at all. I feel mighty thankful that I have such good health, because no odds how much there is to go through I never get what I used to call really tired, and when a bit weary a short rest and a little sleep makes me feel fit and fine again. This morning we all have a shave, wash and general clean-up, and so now we feel like new. You asked about our food; our rations are always brought in to the front line trenches at night. We usually do our own cooking— such as making tea and frying bacon. Of course if there is fresh meat for us they fix it up away back at "the cookers" and we get it sliced cold. It is really wonderful how well all these and many other such things are done. During the last while things have been pretty rough hereabouts; in fact I think that I can safely say that this last while has been the toughest since May; but when we are engaged in a winning game nothing else matters. I have seen lots of the fellows belonging to the second contingent lately; Many, if not all, of them are here now, and they seem to be a pretty good bunch and seem able to keep up the name made by those of the first contingent. Will write when we get out of the trenches— first line— again, or if we are not out soon I will write from there. Love to all.

"WILL."

Mrs. F. Blanchard has just received this letter from her nephew, Arthur, now at the front in France, which will doubtless be interesting to the readers. It having been recovered from the Hesperian which was torpedoed by a German submarine off off Plymouth, England.

August 30th, 1915

Dear Aunt Robbie:—

I received your very welcome letter last night, I was very glad to hear from you. How did you find the old home this time? I supposed everything will be changed quite a bit since you was home last. Of course we all know that such changes must take place sooner or later and that it is useless to mourn our loss to too great an extent. God's will is the law and He knows best. I am seeing sights every day that will but make a person but believe the firmer in the Almighty Power who is guiding.

When a person sees two chums walking across the camp ground together and one is struck dead with lightning while the other is left standing with little more than a shock, it certainly makes one think. Again when you see the hundreds of maimed soldiers some far worse off than if they were dead and when nearly daily train loads of freshly wounded men pass right under your eyes, it makes you wonder at the ups and downs of this human life.

Just a few days ago I saw a Red Cross train going one way, with wounded while a big troop train was going the other way with hundreds of boys and men off for the front to take the place of the ones who had fallen. It sounds queer but it is true that we are all anxious to see this thing through. Every day some new troops go but the rest "kick" because it wasn't their battalion. It is whispered about that this "outfit" of ours is going to relieve the Canadians who are at the front before long. We are all wishing it is true.

The first Canadian Division did some of the most distinguished work ever accomplished on the battle field and the 2nd Division are determined that they will keep up the good name won for us through some of the best blood of dear old Canada.

You should just see the bunch of men there is in this 26th alone. They are a magnificent body of fellows all right and this Platoon I am in is a corker and there are, I don't know how many different nationalities in it, Indian, French, Russians, Belgians, English, Irish, Scotch, Americans and Canadians. Some mob, eh? You can hear nearly any language around here any time of day.

Believe me they are a vicious sounding bunch when some of their old friends drop in to see them, with his head bandaged up, or on a pair of crutches or without an arm or some thing wrong which can be charged up to the Huns.

If the Germans get all that these 26th fellows say they will, it is time for them to quit.

Say there is a fellow right here at the table with me and he just asked me who I was writing to and when I told him, he said to tell you he will go up to see you with me as soon as the war is over if you promise you will have a couple of nice girls there for us and also lots of "dough" for we will be a bit hard up if money is as scarce as it is now.

I will have to close with the promise that I will write you again before we leave England.

So I will say good bye. With lots of love from your nephew,

ARTHUR ROBINSON,
26th Battalion,
5th Brigade,
2nd Canadaian E. Force

NOVEL LUNCHEON.

At a luncheon given for six ladies recently, the place cards were a cluster of flowers, each beginning with the initial of the lady who was to possess them. The guests were told they must find their own places accordingly They were comparative strangers to one another, so walking around the table and discussing the correct name of the flowers set the conversation fairly under way.
