REVIEW OF THE REIGN

By HARRY ECCLES

In years to come historians will ponder and probably marvel over a sharp contradiction in human progress; the steady advance of a great Empire to individual and collective democracy while all about it powerful nations succumbed or groped to dictatorships, the anti-thesis of that elusive goal—human liberty, equal rights.

In this year of grace 1935 his Majesty George V has been on the British throne 25 years. That quarter of a century has seen the greatest war the world has ever known, the greatest economic depression it should become commander of a Canadian corps that in the decisive battles of the closing years was entrusted with the spearhead of attack? The late General Sir Arthur Currie, a citizen soldier engaged in a great empire on the Pacific Coast 6,000 miles from Europe before war broke out.

The Dominions had their voice in the imperial war cabinet, and General Smuts was a power on the Allied side in the framing of the peace treaty.

Representatives of his Majesty in the dominions now are clearly separated from the representatives of his Majesty's government in the

KING'S VISIT TO CANADA

By HARRY ECCLES

Canadian Press Staff Writer
TORONTO, May 5—(C.P.)—Canada welcomed King George and Queen Mary in 1901, when as the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, they traversed the Dominion from Quebec to Victoria and back to Halifax, in the course of an Empire tour projected before the death of Queen Victoria in January of that year, the plans marked by her enthusiastic approval.

The King as Prince of Wales attended the 75th anniversary celebration of Quebec in 1908. On this occasion he came on the British battleship Indomitable, then the world's greatest fighting ship. But as Prince George, a young midshipman of H.M.S. Canada of the North American fleet, when the Indian squadron had his first glimpses of the Dominion in the early '80s.

Since his accession to the Throne the King has been unable to revisit Canada, but he has never missed an opportunity of showing his personal interest in the welfare of the Dominion with which he became intimately acquainted as her apparent. An dthe royal family has carried on and deepened the personal contact with the Dominion through the various visits of the present Prince of Wales and his brothers.

His Majesty's first official visit to Canada in 1901 is recalled with pleasure by many thousands of Canadians, from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The Duke of Cornwall, as he was then, had just passed his 21st birthday when the Indian squadron, on board the H.M.S. Canada, with the Duchess, whom he had married eight years previously, the Earl of Minto was then governor-general. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been prime minister five years.

From the moment the heir-apparent and his consort set foot on Canadian soil on the morning of Sept. 16, till their departure from Halifax on Oct. 21, they received on every side unmistakable evidence of the deep regard Canadians hold for the royal family. The streets were crowded with craft jammed with well-wishers, and the historic streets of old Quebec echoed again and again to salutes of cheers as their Royal Highnesses opened their tour. Before going to Montreal, the King and Queen visited Ottawa and other cities where the Duke presented medals to the Canadians who took part in the South African war. Everywhere the Duke and Duchess were given enthusiastic welcomes, and the tour westward by the northern route, through Winnipeg and Calgary on to Vancouver and Victoria.

In Toronto on the homeward journey, torrential rain failed to dampen the ardor of the great crowds whose cheers drowned out the voices of a welcoming choir on the city hall steps. Visiting many other cities en route the royal party went on to Halifax.

Made Famous Speech
Immediately on his return to England George was proclaimed Prince of Wales, his father having ascended the throne. The Prince spoke at the Guildhall function a few weeks later of the impressions he had gained overseas, of "the great tracts of country yet unexplored, the hidden wealth calling for development, the vast expanse of virgin soil ready to yield profitable returns to settlers. . . . And if this can be enjoyed on conditions of healthy life, liberal laws and free institutions, in return for over-crowded cities and an almost hopeless struggle for existence. . . . It was following his first visit that the King showed he had made no mere ceremonial visit when he told the great Guildhall gathering that the Old Country must "wake up" if she was to realize the opportunities overseas and maintain her pre-eminent position against foreign competition.

On his visit to Canada in 1908, two years before he ascended the throne, the Prince of Wales, now the King, was again greeted by the great British-Canadian prime minister Sir Wilfrid Laurier. His Royal Highness handed Earl Lord Grey, then governor-general, a sum of money publicly subscribed for the purchase of the Heights of Abraham as a national possession. A ceremonial review and a pageant of Canadian history, among the functions in which he took pleasure before leaving Canadian soil.

BY CAROL A. F. BELL, O'Leary returned to Summerside on Friday and found the roads in general good from Portage to Summerside with the exception of one place about one-quarter of a mile from Portage of about fifty feet in length, which was very springy and impassable without assistance. (This was being filled in with brush on Saturday.) Holes were encountered in other parts of the road, but these were not large, and all could be avoided. In general, the road was exceptionally good for the time of year. Mr. Bell's car was the first to make the trip from so far west this season. Last year he made this same trip on the 24th of April.

has ever experienced. It has recorded vast experiments in government; the dictatorship of the proletariat in sprawling Russia; dictatorship in Germany and Italy; a government of the individual from above in the United States and in smaller countries a chaotic confusion in which one man or a clique by force or necessity have imposed a rule to which the individual has either acquiesced or submitted.

While all this was taking place in the British Empire of the time of the King's accession in 1910 was growing steadily and freely into the British Commonwealth of Nations of his silver jubilee year. It now comprises the dominions legally equal to the government of the United Kingdom in common allegiance to the crown; the British colonial empire in which experiments in self-government are constantly being worked out; and the Indian Empire, due to receive shortly a new charter of self-government with all safeguards, not for the Imperial power, but for the people of India themselves.

Tests in War and Peace
His Majesty had been on the throne only four years and three months before the British declaration of war in 1914 put to a supreme test the fabric binding together the Empire. South Africa where bitter warfare had been waged against British rule little more than a decade previously; Canada, separated by an ocean; Newfoundland, Australia and New Zealand across the world—all were in the efficiency of the Mother Country's cause in a fight they conceived as quickly as Britain and herself to be for the principle of self-determination.

Who should take up and successfully discharge the task of cleaning up German East Africa? General Jan Smuts, than whom there was no more virile opponent of the British in the Boer War. Who materially to the ensemble. A profusion of flowers, daffodils, lilies, spotted geraniums and ferns were cleverly arranged on the stage and with soft mauve and yellow lights produced a charming effect. Rev. Mr. Loring presided and gave a short resume of the theme of "Easter Angels." Before the curtain and during intermission instrumental music was pleasingly rendered by Miss Mary Reedy (piano) and Mr. Elmer Phillips (violin). A feature of the program was a solo by Mrs. J. Edward Warren, "My Redeemer and My Lord," by Dudley Buck. The difficult accompaniment for this number was beautifully played by Miss Miriam Profit. Following is the program: Organ introduction Mrs. John Walker; Baritone solo and women's chorus, "Angels at Gethsemane," Mrs. J. E. Warren; soprano solo and chorus, "The Wandering Angels," Miss Kathleen Phillips; soprano solo, "Forgive Them Father," Mrs. J. E. Warren; alto and baritone duet, "Rock of Ages," Mr. J. E. Warren and Mrs. Patterson Walker; tenor solo, "When Even was Come," Mr. Ernest Dunning; quartette, "As It Began to Dawn," Mrs. Loring, Miss Marion Lockhart, Messrs. Russell McKay and Harry Brown; soprano solo, "Come Mary Magdalene," Mrs. Loring; tenor solo, "Fear Not," Mr. G. Roy Phillips; chorus, "The Victory is Won," choir; contralto solo, "We Have Seen His Toll," Mrs. W. C. McLeod; baritone solo and chorus, "Thou Art Gone up on High," Mr. Arnold Taylor; contralto solo and women's chorus, "Joy in the Mansions of Light," Miss Miriam Profit; women's trio and chorus, Mrs. Patterson Walker. Medical and Nursing Services

In each of its factories, the Imperial Tobacco Company maintains a well-equipped hospital, with one or more nurses constantly in attendance, and a doctor either in attendance or on call. In adopting these precautions to safeguard and conserve the health of its workers, the Company confesses to a personal interest in the well-being of every one of them. At the same time, it has the additional satisfaction of knowing that its course is strictly in line with sound business practice.

Time lost through sickness means earnings lost to the worker and production lost to the Company. Because there is a mutual advantage in reducing such lost time to a minimum, at the first sign of sickness or of undue fatigue the worker is expected to report immediately to the hospital for examination, treatment, and rest if need be. Hours or even minutes spent in checking incipient trouble may easily mean days, possibly weeks, saved in fighting serious illness.

A complete case history card is kept for every employee, based upon a thorough medical examination that is repeated at varying intervals, depending upon the facts and conditions revealed. Minor conditions needing correction which can be effected without absence from work, are treated in the Company's hospital.

To the hospital, of course, come all emergency cases. Fortunately, accidents are so few that on the average less than one day's work per year is lost for every nine employees. But even the occasional scratch or cut is immediately brought in for dressing, as a precaution against infection. To the hospital too, at mid-morning and mid-afternoon every day, come all underweight cases for their free ration of milk. And to the physician in charge, any employee may come at any time, for free diagnosis, free medical advice.

Any absence from work of more than three days' duration is promptly investigated by a Company nurse, who calls at the employee's home, taking with her any wages earned but unpaid. If sickness of a serious character is found to be the cause, she sees to it that competent medical supervision is provided at once.

It affords the Company real pleasure to serve the interests of its workers in these ways, and none the less so since experience has proven it is mutually beneficial.
