PRESENTS VIEWS ON RISING WAGE

Winnipeg, May 29 (CP)—It would be unwise to endorse the principle that changes in wages should be tied to changes in the cost of living, say the report of the International Relations Committee of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association today at the annual meeting.

The committee reported these views on wage policy in wartime had been submitted to the Minister of Labour by the Association. Endorsement by the government of such a principle, the committee said, would encourage demands for wage increases on every increase in the cost of living. In fixing wages, the report pointed out, the cost of living was not the only factor. Economists said "wages are a function of income" and the committee submitted "in other words, the question of what wages can be paid depends on the amount of income."

To endorse the principle referred to would tend to nullify the effort the government is making in setting up the Wartime Prices Board, the committee declared. "It would militate against the efficient and economical production of war supplies, and the maintenance and expansion of export trade, which is naturally a matter of vital importance in the present circumstances."

Sleep Vital To Health And Happiness

It's not how LONG you sleep, but how WELL that starts you off in the morning with vitality and a grand sense of well-being! It is difficult to realize that we spend approximately FOUR WHOLE MONTHS OF EVERY YEAR in bed, and to busy people the very thought of it seems a frightful waste of time.

But consider it for a moment—Do you know that SLEEP is more important to the human body than food? People have been known to go many days, even weeks, without food, yet it is impossible for anyone to do without sleep for more than a week, without going insane. Indeed, an ancient form of Chinese torture was to keep prisoners awake. They were rarely able to keep their reason after the fifth or sixth day.

So you see how essential sleep is to life. The loss of only two hours of normal sleep makes work very much more tiring the next day, and it takes several nights' sound sleep to make it up again. Sleep is a medicine, a remedy. It allows the intricate and delicate machinery of the human body to restore lost energy, rebuild worn-out tissue, rest and relax over-strained muscles and refresh over-taxed minds.

There are few people who can maintain good health on less than eight hours' sleep out of every twenty-four, and few who can retain a cheerful, happy outlook on life without this adequate amount of deep, comfortable sleep.

Canada's Plants Open To Britain

WINNIPEG, May 29 (CP)—Investigation as to how British and Canadian industries might cooperate to protect export markets so that British manufacturers might have a second line of defence in Canada in case of necessity, were reported by the Commercial Intelligence Committee today at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association.

A special committee was set up for this purpose and a circular was sent to all members of the association. As a result more than 100 C. M. A. members offered their facilities to manufacture to the order of some United Kingdom manufacturers, for the duration of the war only certain goods for specified overseas markets.

The special committee analyzed the information received and a memorandum outlining a plan of cooperation was prepared and submitted by the Minister of Trade and Commerce to the President of the Board of Trade of the United Kingdom.

Sir Andrew Duncan, of the Board of Trade, has sent this memorandum to the Export Council of the United Kingdom, which has been appointed to make a study of British industry with particular reference to export markets.

Foreign Legions Give Crusaders' Touch To Battle

By Gladys M. Arnold
Canadian Press Correspondent

PARIS, May 28 (CP)—Every nationality from Iraqians to Uruguayans; from citizens of the United States to denationalized bearers of League of Nations passports are to be found in the ranks of the legions of France. The French uniform may cover a Yugoslav, Dane, Swede, Norwegian, Belgian, Peruvian or Egyptian.

The other day an emigrant White Russian resident of Paris and second lieutenant in the French army received the Legion of Honor for gallantry. This suggested an investigation which revealed that no less than 47 different nationalities are serving under the Tricolor of France.

The legions of Poland and Czechoslovak soldiers have reached such proportions that they are well known. They are independent organizations in France but take their place side by side with the Allied armies of the Front. Legions are the international volunteers.

These strangers of many lands flocked to recruiting offices in France when the war began and they are incorporated in newly formed foreign regiments. Many of them scarcely know enough French language to understand the orders given them. To them there is no national sentiment, or very little, but they are fighting for "purely ideological reasons." The Allies—and England—mean less to them as nations than as defenders of the principles in which they believe. "It's for 'em in 1940, all the elements of a crusade."

Comparing Wars

Writers here point out this marks the profound difference between the First and Second Great War of the 20th century. The First Great War was a relatively straight nationalist fight, each nation fighting for what was considered the country's place in a tolerable world—men in 1914-18 fought for their native lands.

The present war shows greater resemblance to those of Napoleon, some writers say. They destroyed old allegiances, cut across political divisions and produced many curious regiments which might well be the ancestors of the present Polish and Czech legions of France. Napoleon led Dutch troops—and Germans—into Russia. The latter later joined forces with the British to send Napoleon to St. Helena. While in the British armies were to be found many an anti-Bonapartist Frenchman. Even royalist Americans fought valiantly under Wellington.

The character of the present "international legions" had its beginning in Spain where men fought bravely—not for country—but for ideas. They came by the thousands from all parts of the world to range themselves on one side or the other according to their beliefs. They had no sentiment of Spanish patriotism, scarcely knew the names of their generals, were unable to speak the language, unfamiliar with the history of Spain, yet they had the urge to defend an idea.

Today the International Brigade is a normal adjunct of the French armies.

WARTIME PULPITS FILLED BY WOMEN

By DILYS THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 29 (CP)—"Business as usual" is no mere slogan for a great many wives in this country. Increasing numbers are carrying on their husbands' jobs when the men are called up for service.

Many wives are found taking charge of small businesses but some operate service stations, hair-dressing salons, bakeries or even act as commercial travelers.

Two women have become Baptist ministers. One is Mrs. Ian R. Henderson, wife of the minister of Blonfield Memorial Baptist Church, Benwell, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Her husband is a chaplain in the Royal Air Force.

Members of Blonfield Church decided unanimously to ask Mrs. Henderson to carry on in her husband's absence. She preaches on Sundays and holds wedding or funeral services as required.

Mrs. W. Wiles, wife of the minister of Burlington Baptist Church, Ipswich, already has conducted her first marriage service. It was a double wedding, the brides being daughters of the choirmaster. When Albert Stringer, boot repairer of Andover, Hants, joined up, he left behind a wife and five children. But that did not worry Mrs. Stringer. As well as doing the housework and looking after the children she finds time to repair between 40 and 60 pairs of boots and shoes a week.

She only training she had was watching her husband, who, when he came home on leave, complimented his wife on the "professional finish" to her work.

GAYER CLOTHES IN OLD ENGLAND

NEW YORK, May 29 (CP)—Part of Jean Smith's job in the woolen apparel department of the British Pavilion at the New York World's Fair is to show "how British manufacturers are keeping up marvelous standards, despite difficulties of the war."

"We've been combatting ersatz wools, imitation wools made of milk and wood pulp," she said. "We tell the world there's nothing like wool for resiliency, heat retention and luster."

Generally the war has had a brightening effect on fashions Miss Smith believes. "Women in Britain are wearing gayer stuff because we in the fashion world are determined that the story of the last war shall not be repeated."

That war everybody had to get down to basics. We had no dyes. All the dyestuffs had been German. It wasn't until years after that things got back to normal. This time it's going to be different."

SERGEANT WEDS ENGLISH GIRL

ALDERSHOT, May 29 (CP)—The wedding of Sergeant R. B. Coleman, 109th Battery Royal Canadian Artillery, to Miss Gerakine Barber, daughter of Ernest Barber and the late Mrs. Barber of Norwich, Norfolk, took place here at Marlborough Lines Garrison Church. Sergeant Coleman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. R. Coleman of Lowestoft, Suffolk and was formerly on the staff of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd., at Trail, B. C.

OTTAWA OFFICER TO WED OVERSEAS

LONDON, May 29 (CP)—The engagement is announced here between Major Lewis Gordon Clarke, Royal Canadian Artillery, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Clarke, of Ottawa, Canada, and Sally, daughter of Major-General J. W. West, C. B., C. M. G., and Mrs. West, Cotgrave, Fleet.

BRITAIN PREPARES

These English coastal towns, many within earshot of the fighting around Calais and Boulogne, have been named evacuation areas as part of Britain's preparation against invasion. Plans are drawn up for evacuating children at any moment.
