Hyndman published in yesterday morning's Guardian, which read "We could not at present undertake to build on the Island, cars for use on the mainland, as, owing to the war, it will not be possible to undertake the widening of the railway, &c." in the latter part of this sentence should have read, "Owing to the war it may not be possible to do so" as it was in the original letter.

STEAMER HALIFAX REPORTED SOLD

Last of Plant Liners Disposed of by the Company to New York Parties. The steamer Halifax, which for years ran in the Boston-Halifax service of the Plant Line, has been sold to New York parties, it is understood and the new owners will place her in the trans-Atlantic trade. The steamer is now at Halifax, where she has been laid up since the company recently discontinued the service. The company now has no steamers, for the Evangeline, its largest boat, was sold a short time ago, and the A. W. Perry was wrecked near Halifax. It is not known whether the company intends to resume service at some future date. The Halifax was built at Glasgow in 1888. She is 250 feet long and of 1,075 tons, net register.— Boston Transcript.

BEYOND.

Though we see no gleam of the golden spires Of the City we hope to win. No cheering sight of the warming light That softly glows within: Yet ever, and ever it waits for us At the end of a winding trail. With a promise of peace that cannot fail A Love that cannot fail

Though we bend beneath the weight of a cross we bear, Or moon in a long night's pain, Waiting the deep and unbroken sleep That brings not more pain: Yet 'tis only the burden bravely borne O'er the thorns of a troubled way That wins to the rest of our eager quest At the end of the weary day. —Lucy Gertrude Clarkin in April Red and White.

Living up to His Name When the train stopped at an inland Virginia station the northern tourist sauntered out on the platform. He noticed a tall pine wood a lean animal with bony bristles. The tourist was interested. "What do you call that?" he queried of a lanky "cracker." "Razorback haw," "Well, what is he doing rubbing against that tree?" "He's stripping himself, mister; just stripping himself." — Harper's Magazine.

REASON FOR THE GERMAN RETREAT

(Canadian Press Despatch.) COPENHAGEN, Denmark, April 2.—via London—Germany, according to information here from Berlin, is now gathering to the colors every available man for a supreme military effort to bring the war to a victorious conclusion in this year's campaign—a goal which Field Marshal von Hindenburg and his advisers consider by no means impossible of attainment. Without advising formally the law of military service the German authorities have in practice extended the period of service beyond the forty-fifth year, and are retaining with colors and in many instances for fighting duty with active units in the front, hundreds of men who have passed this age. The policy of the German war Department, as stated in the Reichstag this week by a military representative is to withdraw those men over forty-five from the front line after they have done six months of duty there, but military exigencies compel the holding of these over-age men for service in the so-called Etape, or region behind the actual fighting front.

All Must Carry Rifles. For some time the German authorities, in a grand combing out of men earlier pronounced unfit for service, have been interesting men on the very verge of the age limit, but up to the present they have announced that the necessity has not yet arisen for legislation raising the age limit to sixty-five as has been done in Austria-Hungary.

The operations of the labor service law, now in full swing, are further releasing for service at the front every available man behind the lines capable of carrying a rifle, so that the next two or three months should see the German armies at their maximum in size. Simultaneously with this draining of the deers of human resources of soldier material Germany's industrial mobilization also is approaching a climax. A scheme for utilizing every available factory and employing every available machine on war work and manning them with labor, obtained under the labor service law, is contemplated. The work is to be done in three stages, and the construction of a third batch of munition plants is to begin immediately. The output of cannon munitions, therefore, should soon reach its maximum.

Changed Headquarters. The secret of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's plan of employing the army so-reinforced, and supplied to their maximum extent in the 1917 campaign, still is well kept. Uncertain whether the offensive will be directed in the East or in the West, the Germans strategic reserve, at last accounts still within Germany, has not begun to move in either direction.

AN EXPERT ON COLDS

Comparatively few people realize that a cold is a signal of physical weakness. To treat a cold with weakening physics, alcoholic syrups or drugged pills, may smother the cold but they also reduce the body powers still further and invite more serious sickness. Scott's Emulsion has always been an expert on colds, because it peculiarly enriches the blood, quickly tones up the forces and strengthens both throat and chest. Try Scott's. Refuse Substitutes.
