VIOLET AND ROSE.

On the little bridge which crosses the rapid, intersecting stream that gives the River Farm its name sweet Mary Burton stands, in all the glory of the sunset. And all the world seemed radiant about her, with soft tints of rose and gold.

On one side of the narrow river wood land and meadows lie, with the low line of farm buildings from which she is returning with her pail of foaming milk. On the other side is the quaint old farmhouse, under its canopy of shading elms.

As she stands thus, the very picture of rustic beauty and unconscious grace a light wagon rapidly rounds the side of the house, and in a moment the handsome young driver has stopped his team by the side of the pretty milkmaid, whose face seems to have caught the rosy glow of the sunset at his approach.

"They have come, Mary,' is his cheery announcement. "Mother and daughter, I guess; and the girl looks delicate—with cheeks like peaches and cream."

"I wish ma hadn't let them come," she says, wistfully.

But Joe laughs at this, and his gay reply, as the horses start on again, comes back to her eager ears like the sound of sweetest music.

It has been an understood thing ever since his uncle's death, the winter before, that Joe is sometime to marry his pretty cousin and to become the proprietor of the River farm. There is no hurry, of course, for they both are young, and there is no promise between them. But Mary is dreaming bright dreams of the future, and Joe has been fond of her, in a protecting and brotherly fashion, all his life.

A week has passed, and Mrs. Delancey is delighted with her new surroundings. She indulgently calls pretty Mary a "shy white violet," and Joe, a "rough diamond," and in writing to her friends she gives enthusiastic pictures of the "ideal farm" where her dear daughter Gladys is gaining fresh roses day by day.

And Gladys, city bred, seems to love this free life in the open air. She spends long hours every day in a favorite nook by the riverside, where Joe hangs her hammocks, or heaps a luxuriant couch for her of fragrant, new mown hay.

She is a small, fair tyrant, and delights to keep him always at her beck and call. But Joe has proved himself a willing slave. It is payment rich and rare, beyond all other, so he thinks, if she will but condescend to sing quaint ballads for him now and then, in her small, thin voice, as she softly thrums the while on her guitar.

One evening when a shower keeps Gladys within, to while away the time she sings her favorite "Money Musk" to her mother's accompaniment on the old cracked spinet.

As Joe stands listening and watching her graceful movements in the pretty dance he seems to see the husking party in the barn—sees Gladys shell the bright red ear, and trembles as, in fancy, he dares to kiss her rose-sweet cheek. Hark to the fiddler now as he calls out the figures! And Joe's heart is in a tumult of desire to join the dance with Gladys—always Gladys.

"THEY HAVE COME, MARY."

She laughs with pure amusement at him, standing as if entranced, when the song is ended. But Mary, watching from the doorway (the shy white violet, quite neglected now), turns and steals unnoticed to her dim attic chamber to weep away the night.

And when she hears Joe rise and hasten out, long before the early summer dawn, she knows it is that he may be at leisure later in the day to lie at Glady's feet and listen to her songs and stories of the distant city and its life.

So the summer passes, and Joe, in his fool's paradise, dreams wild dreams of somehow winning his way to fortune over every obstacle which lies between Gladys and himself.

Pretty and imperious, she wants him always at her side. Can it be, he wonders, in a bewilderment of bliss, that she is learning to care for him, even ever so little, in return?

With the first faint flush of autumn that tinges the creepers on the old stone wall, Mrs. Delancey, who has lingered at the farm because "dear Gladys seemed so happy there," announces that the time is at hand for their departure.

"Will you ride to-day?" he asks the girl he blindly worships, for he feels that now or never will come the chance to speak what is in his heart.

"It looks like rain," says Gladys "and yet—our last ride! We can't afford to lose it, can we, Joe? Saddle Brown Bess for me, then, and we will have one more glorious gallop together o'er hill and dale!'

They take their glorious gallop and are riding slowly toward home. Joe has not yet spoken. His inarticulate passion can find no fitting words.

"What a queer world this is," says Gladys, lightly. 'We have been ... together, you and I, all summer ... and now—this is the end! We shall probably never see, never even hear of each other again."

"Life would be worth nothing if I thought that," stammers he miserably. Gladys laughs.

"I do not mean to stay here at the farm," he goes on, rapidly. "I'm going away as soon as I can, to win my way as others have done and make myself worthy of—of the one I love."

"Ah, yes—Mary," she says, with idle interest. "I guessed it from the first. And now, to return your confidence—I'm going to be married soon myself! Mr. Howard has been in Europe on business all summer, and that's why we came to this quiet, out-of-the-way little place; for, of course," with a light laugh, "engaged girls are supposed not to care any more for men's society But, Joe, if you really leave the farm you must come to us, and we'll help you all we can. Ah, see the rain is coming across the hills! Come, we must ride hard or take a drenching."

"JUMP NOW!" HE CRIES; AND SHE OBEYS HIM.

Does Gladys know? Is she willfully cruel, or only cruelly kind? Whichever she may be, she has given poor Joe's hopes their death wound, and with a smiling face.

Mary moves to and fro on her evening duties like the pallid ghost of the happy girl she was two months ago; for Joe has passed her by with wild unseeing eyes, and has gone out, with his weight of trouble, into the uproar of the night.

But Gladys is as careless as before. And while the tempest rages without she gayly sings her favorite "Money Musk," to the old spinet's quavering notes.

At noon next day there comes a lull in the storm and Gladys, wrapped in a large cloak, runs out for a breath of the fresh, wild autumn air.

Her steps turn naturally down the familiar pathway to the little river and she marvels to see a rapid, seething torrent in its stead.

She gains the bridge and pauses there a moment to secure her fluttering veil. Some heavy logs are drifting down the river, and yonder is that truant Joe, beckoning and running toward her. She laughs at his breathless haste.

Crash! what is that? The bridge is swaying under her. Another crash, and the slight structure is giving way, and Gladys, screaming with terror, clings to her frail support.

Joe's ringing voice falls clearly on her ear:

"I am coming, Gladys—Gladys!"

She sees him speeding towards her down the bank. She sees him plunge into the torrent, hears him cry: "Jump now!" and she obeys him.

The early morning train bears Mrs Delancey and her daughter ever farther from the scene of the young girl's peril of the day before; ever farther from the house of sorrow, where lies the man whose young life has been beaten out by the swirling waters for which he yet could rescue Gladys unharmed; and ever farther from the pathetic figure of poor Mary, who blindly grasps at the belief that death has given back to her that treasure which Gladys idly won and as idly tossed away.—Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Priestley's black dress goods do not need praise. They have made their way. They are the standard all over the world. But Priestley's "Eudora" is new, and needs a word. It is not a Henrietta, though it has most of the qualities of the famous Henrietta of this firm. It does not fray, does not get rusty, wears long, repels the dust, and has a greater width and weight than the Henrietta. Wrapped on "The Varnished Board," as all Priestley's goods are, and the name, Priestley, stamped on every five yards.

THAT ACHING HEAD.

What Causes It and How Overcome.

How often the remark, "Oh, my head aches," and there are so many varieties of aches and pains the head is subject to all along the line from the dull and heavy and oppressed feeling over the eyes to the persistent, racking and torturing misery of Sick Headache. The cause is in most cases the same, the overflow of poisonous uric acid is not extracted from the blood by the Kidneys, and accumulating in the blood, causes high and irregular pulse, headaches, mental depression and nausea. Chase's K. & L. Pills tone and restore the Kidneys, excrete poisonous matter from the blood, sending it on its way pure and health-giving, curing Headache, and removing all the attending symptoms from its wake. Mrs. G. Bird, Harriston, Ont., while attending the 1894 Fall Exhibition at Toronto, was taken very ill with Sick Headache and dizziness. She was subject to these attacks for years, compelling her to take to her bed. In this case by using Chase's Pills relief was immediately obtained, and the usual days of misery and prostration avoided. Thousands of such cases can be referred to where Chase's Pills have cured Sick Headache and its attendant symptoms. 25 cents a box, of all dealers, or by addressing Edmanson, Bates & Co., 45 Lombard St., Toronto.

To Cure Indigestion.

Who can describe the sufferings of the victim of chronic indigestion.

Words are powerless. One thought fills the mind of the sufferer day and night—how shall I be cured? Unable to eat, no pleasure in eating, the almost constant torture of pains in the stomach, life a burden.

To such a sufferer Hawker's nerve and stomach tonic comes as a priceless blessing. This great remedy will cure the most obstinate cases of chronic indigestion. Its wonderful power as a stomach tonic and aid to digestion is without parallel. It does the work thoroughly, and effects a complete cure. It is also a blood and flesh builder, and nerve and brain invigorator. Its use restores health and strength. It is sold by all druggists and dealers at 50 cts. per bottle, or six bottles for $2 50, and is manufactured only by the Hawker Medicine Co. (Ltd.) St. John, N B, and New York City.

"It is the Best In the Market."

MR. JOHN S. KAIZER, of Beckerton, Guysboro Co., N. S., writes us: "I write to request you to make me, or some other man in this place, an agent for your PRUSSIAN OIL. It is the best for what it claims to cure ever offered here. I have used the two bottles I got from you with much satisfaction. The oil recommends itself. It is the best in the market. I have proved its value and appreciate its healing properties." And later he says: "It is selling fast and proving a great success here."

"USE IT AND PROVE IT."

MOST INVALUABLE.

The New Specific Remedy is being Extensively Used at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, July 29.—The marvellous recovery of Mr. G. H. Kent, of this city, from Bright's disease by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills is still fresh in the memories of Ottawa people, and the remedy is being freely recommended both by druggists and private citizens. The similar wonderful cures of Dr. A. G. McCormick, of Richmond, Quebec, and of Mr. Arthur Coley, of Somerset, Manitoba, to say nothing of many others, are generally quoted in favor of the assertion that no remedy of modern times has gone so successfully through a severe trial, and been so efficacious in all cases of kidney trouble. It is also proving itself invaluable in the milder forms of sickness which appear during the summer.

Fatal Result of Delay.

Sickness generally follows in the path of neglect. Don't be reckless! but prudently take a few doses of Scott's Emulsion immediately following exposure to cold. It will save you many painful days and sleepless nights.

How to Get a "Sunlight" Book.

Send 12 "Sunlight" soap wrappers to Lever Bros., Ltd., 43 Scott St., Toronto who will send post-paid a paper-bound book 160 pages. For 6 "Life buoy" Carbolic Soap wrappers, a similar book will be sent. This is a splendid opportunity to obtain good reading. Send your name and address written carefully. Remember "Sunlight" sells at 6 cts. per twin-bar, and "Lifebuoy" at 10 cts. One cent postage will bring your wrappers by leaving the ends open. sat&wk.
