Language Restriction End Asked By Quebec City Man

By RUSSELL ELMAN OTTAWA (CP)—A plea for removal of restrictions on bilingual broadcasting in Canada was made Wednesday before the Board of Broadcast Governors.

languages other than English or French without special permission. Bernard Goulet, French-speaking full-time BBG member, asked what would happen if the French-language station in St. Boniface, Man., began broadcasting in English.

"If a station wants to broadcast in either French or English, why not permit it?" He spoke for an application by CIOQC to be allowed to carry French-language programming on its 18-month trial basis. At present the station is limited to broadcast only in English to serve the English-speaking minority in the Quebec City area.

"I think all the English stations in Winnipeg would object," he said. The CIOQC application is opposed by the French-language Quebec City radio station CILR. Mrs. Mary Bush, CIOQC general manager, said that in the case of Quebec City, the French language stations would look at French complaining about the competitive factors of a little station such as CIOQC with only 250 watts power.

"We want to be a bilingual station in a predominantly French-speaking area," Mr. Goulet said to the board.

Part-time BBG member Rev. Emily Davies, a Toronto Baptist minister, asked whether there was any evidence that French-language stations were seeking to cater to the English minority audience. Mrs. Bush said there was none.

The CIOQC application was supplemented by a tape recording of sample bilingual programming, in which French was woven into the context of a basically English-language orial while trying to take a photograph of the area. (AP Wirephoto).

New Self-Confident Spirit Seen For Negroes In N.S.

HALIFAX (CP)—The field representative for colored communities with the Nova Scotia adult education department says the fact that increasingly more Negro students are registered in the province's high schools, trades schools and universities suggests a "new self-confidence" on part of the young Negro in Nova Scotia.

Rev. W. P. Oliver, a Negro, said in an interview Wednesday current legislation "is encouraging and seems likely to raise the aspirations of young people."

He felt that the province's 13,000 Negroes, almost half the total Negro population of Canada, were well aware that a lack of job opportunities is contingent on lack of skill.

"This is uppermost in their minds. They realize once they receive the qualifications the opportunities will be better."
