

LETTERS SECTION CON'T

Dear Editor,

There seems to be an apathetic reaction from Maintenance concerning the fact that there are mice in Bernadine Hall.

Approximately two weeks ago a girl reported droppings and a gnawed cereal box in her cupboard. She reported this to our "efficient" maintenance staff and nothing was done.

Monday another girl was awakened by a mouse running across her floor. She immediately phoned maintenance and was told something would be done about it. It may appear funny or cute to maintenance that a girl is frightened by a mouse and this is typically feminine. Well, it is not funny. Mice are filthy creatures and for every mouse seen, how many go unseen?

Granted something was done. Maintenance brought over rat poison and gave it to one girl. Nothing was done about the problem in general. When the mice eat the rat poison they will more than likely die in the heating system. How sanitary is that? Wouldn't mouse traps be more practical?

The point of this letter is that what we feel to be a serious matter is not being taken very seriously by Maintenance at all.

There is a rule in residence that states that there are no pets allowed. How can this rule be enforced when wild mice are allowed to wander in our building at will?

The Student Union Elections are once again upon us. The new Student Union for 1978-79 will come into office April 30 and the old Student Union will step down. How did the students of UPEI view their Student Union of 1977-78?

SHARON TIMMONS, SOPHOMORE
I think they did a really good job. They dealt a lot with the Landlord Tenant Act; they did a lot for residences. They dealt quite a lot with the political issues at the student meetings. They dealt a lot with the Constitution. They're definitely fulfilled their purpose.

JIM RICHARD, FRESHMAN
It really isn't a political function. It seems to be concerned a lot more with the social functions. Through the Winter Carnival there was a lot of discussion of more social issues than the real political issues of the school which should be concerned with more than the social functions.

MICHAEL HARTSON, SENIOR
"My impression of it is that it hasn't really been effective in dealing with political issues. More or else it's been run as a business society in the sense that it's just dealing with social matters. I don't think the UPEI Student Union has any political pull with the university at

It was good. I thought it was really impressive. The Student Union has fulfilled its purpose to meet the students' needs, socially and politically.
