Testimonial

C. P. Fletcher, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I do not wish to return to Montreal without expressing my gratitude to you for the very excellent Bell Piano that you placed at my disposal for my recital. I have tried many Canadian Pianos of different manufacturers, and must say that, considering the size of the instrument, I have never found one to equal it for depth and brilliancy of tone. The action is quite as elastic and responsive as in American Upright Pianos of the highest grade. Again thanking you, very sincerely,

I remain,
Yours,

SCHEME TO SWELL DIVIDENDS.
Device Employed by Some Gas Companies and How to Thwart It.

Having graduated from the Sheffield Scientific school, where he made a special study of the chemistry of illuminating gases, he quickly found a position with one of the older gas companies in a city which shall be nameless. He remained two years and then resigned. He had been reared in the Methodist faith, and he confided to a friend that he could not retain his position without doing violence to his protesting conscience.

"It is a good thing for corporations that they have no souls," he said when chatting about his experiences, "as they are relieved of all fear of future punishment. The eighth commandment is apparently unknown to the general manager of the company with which I was associated. Did you ever have gas bills rendered for amounts seemingly out of all proportion to the quantity of gas you thought you had burned?"

Every member of the group nodded a vigorous affirmative.

"Possibly your meters are defective," he observed, "but in the district served by my former employers there was always a 'kick' coming from the consumers, and yet the meters were absolutely accurate in their operation. Every month the company collected from 10 to 15 per cent more than it was honestly entitled to, which was a tidy little profit on the side. How was it managed? Easily enough. Every night shortly after midnight the pressure in the mains was raised enormously. Under this increased pressure the gas was forced through the meters and compressed in the various pipes in the building of the consumer. Naturally the meters accurately registered all the gas thus forced through them. Later the pressure was reduced below the normal, and there was a return flow through the pipes, but as the meters would not back register the gas flowed through them from the house to the mains without producing any alteration in the figures. Sticking to this system of pumping, the company succeeded in getting a showing at the end of the month that was largely in its favor."

"Was there no way in which the consumer could protect himself?" inquired one curious member of the circle of listeners.

"Certainly, but as he knew nothing of the method by which he was being swindled the simple checking scheme never occurred to him. The prudent man who carefully turned off his gas at the meter every night when he was through with it paid only for what he got. The 'milking' of the meters was then impossible."

And every one who heard how it was done made a mental resolution to use the meter shut off thenceforward, even while consoling himself that the Chicago companies are above resorting to any petty fraud of this character.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Stage Tragedies.

One of the dramatic little stories of Mr. F. Frankfort Moore, the London novelist, turns on the actual stabbing of a Juliet by a jealous Romeo during a performance in a German court theater. Such tragic incidents have not infrequently occurred in the annals of opera and playhouse. In our own city's chief lyric theater last season we had what seemed the lively comedy of an actor something leading up to his sudden death, when the unfortunate Castlemary, as Sir Tristan Mickleford, was pursued by the crowd of Richmondfair folk in "Martha." There are at least a dozen well attested suicides that have been consummated by luckless actors or singers under cover of the tragic movement of their part. A more recent example occurred at the theater in Arad, Hungary, when a well known leading member of the company, Koloman Balla, put a real and loaded revolver to his forehead in concluding the last act of the night's drama. He fell dead, amid an immense demonstration of applause from a crowded house quite unaware of the reality of the actor's emotion and gestures. He was a man of excellent family and bright in professional prospects, disappointed in love, morbid, and, as he grimly wrote to a friend, "determined to end his days as an actor ought to do—to the satisfaction of his public."—Harper's Weekly.

Halfpenny Dinners.

Near to Whitechapel church, London, is a shop where a dinner can be procured for a halfpenny. The "halfpenny dinner" is not served up in the shape of a cut from the joint and two vegetables. It is a big brown "pie," very juicy and very hot. The absence of beefsteak is evident when you bite the pie, but you find inside a good sprinkling of onions, carrots and sheep's liver, with a plentiful supply of gravy. Between the hours of 12 and 2 the poor and hungry from all parts of the east end flock to this shop. There are shoeblacks, penny toy men, costers and clerks "out of collar."—London Standard.

FOR SALE.
RARE CHANCE

The property occupied by J. J. Gay and son situate in the village of Pownal, 7 miles from Charlottetown, is offered for sale. The proprietors have carried on a large market garden nursery, and seed business for thirty years, and the purchaser will no doubt retain a large share of the local trade. The premises comprise a large dwelling house, store, warehouse, barn, shed, orchard, and about 15 acres of the most fertile land on the island.

This land has been manured year after year for so long that as an old man said the other day, "It is all a bed of manure and could be hauled for top-dressing." This would be an ideal spot for a country merchant or it would be admirable for a summer resort. The situation is one of the most beautiful on the island. Good bathing, fishing, boating, shooting and within easy distance churches, post office, school, telephone and shops all at the door.

BURNETT OF TOMBSTONE.

County Cut Down His Bill, and He Ran the Court to Suit Himself.

A stormy life was that ended when old Jim Burnett was killed in Tombstone by William Greene—a life full of experiences of the border kind that would supply material for 20 of the most thrilling of the yellow backed novels. The end was in keeping with the life. Burnett, a justice of the peace in Pearce camp, had left his work in order to go down on the San Pedro river, 50 miles away, and blow out with giant powder the irrigating canal dam of his enemy, Greene. Below at the time, probably unknown to Burnett, were two young girls, one a daughter of Greene, aged 18, and her friend from Bisbee. They were caught in the flood that followed the explosion and were drowned. The father learned of the presence of his foe, saddled his horse, rode over to Tombstone, found Burnett on the main street and shot him down. The town stood behind Greene in his deed. He has been admitted to light bail and will be acquitted if ever brought to trial.

Since Burnett's death many are the tales being raked up about him. His was a singular personality. Strong willed and violent in temper, he especially shone in a frontier camp. It was, therefore, quite appropriate that he should have been elected justice of the peace in 1881 at Charleston, on the San Pedro, where the rich ores of Tombstone were at that time mined.

Charleston was then a howling camp, full of freighters, miners and the wolfiest of cowboys. The whisky sold wasn't of the mildest brand, and consequently tribulation sate within the community and the justice's court was always open. Burnett did a rashing business. At the end of three months he duly reported, as by law required, to the county supervisors, sending in his bill for the amount due him from the county. The county fathers cut the bill down one-half. Burnett swore vigorously when he got the returns, but held no further communications with the county seat. Another three months elapsing, the county treasurer wrote Burnett to furnish his quarterly statement. The reply came promptly. It was: "The blazes with you! This court after this will be self sustaining."

And so it was, in great shape. Every time a cowboy would get exhilarated and shoot up the town the judge would fine him several hundred dollars and would pocket what remained after paying his constables for the arrest.

One day old man Schwartz got excited and killed a man. After the justice, an ex-officio coroner, had finished the inquest he had Schwartz haled before the bar, found him guilty of the crime and fined him $1,000. Schwartz wanted to appeal the case, but Burnett would issue no papers on appeal. So the defendant sent up to Tombstone for Attorney Mark Smith, now delegate to congress from Arizona. Smith came down at once and heard Schwartz's tale of woe. It was a clear case of murder.

"Pay the money, you ass," the lawyer fairly shouted, "and then go bury yourself somewhere down in Mexico."

Schwartz paid and skipped, and the case was never again heard of in court.

But the county never received any of that coin. Those who figured on the proposition said that Burnett came out $22,000 ahead in his office in two years.—Philadelphia Times.
