

Norman Death May Change Canada-U.S. Arrangement

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials indicated Tuesday that changes may be made in arrangements between Canada and the United States for exchange of security information.

One authority said these arrangements now are under review by an interdepartmental committee representing all the Canadian government agencies involved.

The review stems from the suicide last week in Cairo of Herbert Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt against whom the U.S. Senate sub-committee on internal security recently revived charges of past Communist associations.

STATEMENT TODAY

External Affairs Minister Pearson plans to make a statement on this matter in the Commons today. All he said Tuesday was: "It is a complicated matter as well as a tragic one because the statement will deal not only with a certain tragic experience (Mr. Norman's death) but with relations between the two governments in the field of security."

Soon after he made this comment in the Commons, Mr. Pearson, Prime Minister St. Laurent and Trade Minister Howe attended with some 300 other persons a memorial service for Mr. Norman in the United Church here. They all wore black ties.

Among members of the diplomatic corps present were U.S. ambassador Livingston T. Merchant, Russian Ambassador Dmitri S. Chuvashin, Egyptian Ambassador El Hussein el Khatib and Netherlands Ambassador A. H. J. Lovink, dean of the corps.

"LOVABLE" PERSONALITY

Rev. A. Leonard Griffith, pastor of Chalmers United, said: "It is surely one of life's bitter tragedies that so sensitive and lovable a personality should be pressured and beaten by destructive forces, many of them evil and downright demonic. How ghastly would be our world if these forces had the last word in any man's life."

Mr. Griffith said the memorial service was not an official gesture but grew out of the desire of Mr. Norman's colleagues to honor the memory of a distinguished Canadian. No greater tribute could be paid him.

Frank Delaute, secretary to Governor-General Massey, represented Government House. Others present included Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell and representatives of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Also present was Rev. R. C. Wright, brother-in-law of Mr. Norman and a United Church minister at Wardsville, Ont.

There now is close co-operation between Canada and the U.S. on security matters, especially between the RCMP and the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation.

It was indicated here that Mr. Norman's suicide has raised the question whether there is risk that information exchanged confidentially between the two governments may become public through availability to U.S. congressional bodies.

At Winnipeg, Malcolm McNish, former Canadian army captain who served on President Eisenhower's staff during the Second World War, said he has returned awarded a pension for services rendered.

"I am so disgusted about this whole (Norman) matter that I am sending the parchment back with a personal letter to Mr. Eisenhower," he said.

Dr. Adams Acquitted After Jury Deliberates 44 Minutes

By JOHN DUDMAN
LONDON (Reuters) — The trial of Dr. John Bodkin Adams came to an end Tuesday when a jury of 10 men and two women acquitted him of a charge of murdering an elderly widow patient.

The portly, bespectacled doctor appeared flushed but impassive as the verdict in the 1950 death of 81-year-old Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell of Eastbourne was returned after 44 minutes of deliberation.

Justice Sir Patrick Devlin announced: "John Bodkin Adams, you now are discharged." Dr. Adams mumbled a "thank you" and bowed to the court.

Thus ended in its 17th day the longest murder trial in British criminal history. The longest previous murder trial took 13 days.

The trial also made a name for Dr. Adams' chief counsel, 50-year-old Geoffrey Lawrence, formerly best known as a divorce case lawyer, is reported to have been paid the largest fee in English history for defending a man accused of murder—£10,000.

all the drugs he prescribed for her but Lawrence produced vital notebooks, kept by the nurses in attendance during Mrs. Morrell's last days, which showed the amounts of drugs given to Mrs. Morrell.

He said the books provided "the fountain of truth" on which to judge Dr. Adams. The Crown, in turn, said it was odd the notebooks should have been kept when normally such records were destroyed after death.

Medical evidence differed strongly on whether the drugs were enough to kill Mrs. Morrell. But the judge ruled that the jury should completely disregard any questions of dosage other than those recorded in the books.

TOSSED BOMBHELL

Lawrence tossed another bombshell by producing more records from a nursing home where Mrs. Morrell had been treated for a stroke in 1948, before she became a patient of Dr. Adams. The records showed that she had been given doses of morphine at that time.

The biggest surprise of all occurred when Lawrence declined to put Dr. Adams in the witness box. He said the doctor already had transferred a period of "unbearable strain" and that it would be too much to ask him to go back over "the gulf of six years" with the realization that one slip of the tongue might be looked upon as an indication of guilt.

Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, who led the prosecution, announced that the Crown will not proceed with a further indictment against Dr. Adams—a charge of murdering another widow, 51-year-old Mrs. Gertrude Hullett, at Eastbourne last year.

"QUEEN OF BABYLON" OPENS TODAY AT THE CAPITOL, SUMMERSIDE

Filmed entirely in Europe by producer N. Wachsberger and director Carlo Ludovico Bragaglia, this dramatic spectacle marks the first European venture for both stars. The flaming, red-tressed Rhonda suggests a provocative representation of Semiramis, the slave girl who was crowned a queen. Ricardo Montalban plays Amal, a Chaldean warrior who seeks an end to the evil rulings of King Assur of Babylon. Some of Europe's outstanding talent has been pooled into this production, including Rodiano Lupi as King Assur, whom Semiramis marries in order to save Amal's life; Carlo Ninchi as the king's scheming prime minister who aims to sit in the king's throne with the beautiful Semiramis beside him; and Tamara Lee as a discarded mistress who seeks revenge the only way she knows how.

London Enjoys 4 Mails Daily

LONDON (Reuters)—Mail deliveries in Britain are frequent, rapid and low in cost.

The post office—which also runs the country's telephone and telegraph services—delivers an average of 27,000,000 letters a day at a cost of 2½ pence (three cents) for a two-ounce letter.

Deliveries in London average four a day except on Sunday. Most other big cities have three and only in the remote areas does the mailman ring only once.

Special services offered by the post office include an express service and the more expensive but faster "rail-ex."

The rail-ex letter or parcel is taken by a messenger to the train, handed to the conductor and collected by the postmaster, who has been forewarned by telegram, at its destination. It then is delivered direct by messenger.

Mail between widely-separated cities in the United Kingdom, between Belfast and London, for example—is carried by air, as is all mail destined for Western Europe.

The British post office also operates a money order service and a postal savings bank.

Shoot Banff In Italian Setting

CORTINA, Italy (CP)—An Alberta lumber camp has been set up in the Dolomite Mountains—but the authentic Canadian snow is missing.

The camp is for the J. Arthur Rank film of Hammond Innes' Campbell's Kingdom, a story of the Alberta oilfields. Producer Betty Box originally intended to shoot panoramic shots near Banff, but Canada was ruled out in favor of Italy.

The film-makers required shots of a hydro-electric dam and found just what they wanted near the site of the 1956 Winter Olympic Games.

But the film unit arrived too late for the winter snows. As a result, it has had to hire an expensive snow-making machine to provide the right background for actor Dirk Bogarde.

In fact, snow is so precious a bulletin was issued asking members of the unit to make sure that they "never, never tread on virgin snow."

BRISTOL

Rev. Joseph Rossiter, O.M.I. Ottawa, was home last week for a short but sad mission attending the funeral of his father, the late E.P. Rossiter. We were all very happy to see Father Rossiter home, but regret it was a sad mission that called him home.

Miss Toddy Rossiter, Toronto, arrived home late last week called by the sudden passing of her father. She leaves again in a few days on return to her duties in the Queen city.

In the passing of Mr. Edward Rossiter, this vicinity has lost to father time another of its finest residents. A hard working farmer all his life and a lover of a good or not, he was one of the old timers card club here his place will be hard to fill. The memory of Ed Rossiter will live long in this village where he spent his life time on the farm. His funeral to the Church of the little Flower on Friday was one of the largest seen here in many a day. To his wife and family were extend sincere sympathy.

The condition of Mr. Frank Dunphy, who has been a patient in Charlottetown Hospital for several weeks, suffering a face infection is reported as somewhat improved. Mr. Dunphy informs us the trouble came from a bad tooth that was locked on to his jawbone. Well along in life now, older people as well as younger men, but we all hope to see our good friend around again soon.

The condition of Mr. Charles Eidershaw, who has been a patient for more than a year, is reported as somewhat better. We regret that Charlie won't be in the line-up with the fishermen on the opening day this spring. He was one of the best fishermen ever to leave our shore and no doubt long hours and hard work is the cause of his broken health, but we all hope Charlie will be back with us again when sunny days come around.

The bingo held regularly was cancelled last week out of respect for the late Ed. Rossiter.

Mrs. Bill Aylward, who underwent a very serious operation some time ago is improving in health now at her home following her return from the hospital.

The rural mail drivers here report there is no road fit for anything now to make their rounds and it's about impossible for a man to walk a thirty mile route. It's sad to see mail drivers on a cold on a two wheeled cart, yet there seems to be no answer to the task. The mails must go through.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bellanger, who came here from Quebec last fall to reside again after several years absence, will take up residence at the shore late this month along with their several children.

Mr. George Bennett, local canner here, was a business visitor to the city last week. One of the best and the cleanest we have known. People have come here, with meats and chickens from past and western parts of the Island to have it canned. When George

A social half hour was enjoyed and lunch was served by the committee in charge.

It is reported that fishermen will go on daylight time this summer. They always do they are up so early in the morning. Early fishers get the fish.

The condition of Mr. Charles Eidershaw, who has been a patient for more than a year, is reported as somewhat better. We regret that Charlie won't be in the line-up with the fishermen on the opening day this spring.
